THE MAIL BAG ROBBERS MAY YET BE CAPTURED THROUGH A RECENT CLUE

Claim Made That the Wife of a Man Now in the City Accused Her Husband of the Crime.

There came to light this morning evidence which may result in the bringing to justice of the robbers who looted the mail bag containing checks, postal orders and other valuable papers representing thousands of dollars from the C. & P. platform on the night of October 6, the startling account of which was exclusively published in the News Review.

Both the local officers and the secret service men assigned to the case have worked untiringly, not leaving a stone unturned in an effort to locate the guilty parties or discover a clue which would result in the apprehension of them. It leaks out today that the men who stole the valuable pouch are right in East Liverpool and have not been out of the city at any time during the past two months. They are seen on the streets every day and are well known local characters. They are industrious men, each being an employe in a local pottery. How many of them there are connected with the crime is not positively known, but the work was completed by at least two individuals, and it is possible that there were four implicated to a certain degree. One, who, from all appearances, engineered the robbery in strict accordance with his plans and wishes, lives on lower Broadway.

It was through a conversation heard by the head of another family living under the same roof that the evidence was secured. The informant, who refuses to allow his name to be published, states that one night of a recent date the following was heard accidentally coming from the room where one of the men lives:

"I dare you to tell that on me. You know that I know enough about you to land you behind prison bars. If you think for a minute that I will not tell all I know about you men stealing that mail bag, if you open your mouth about me, you are badly mistaken."

The person who happened to hear the above remarks says that they were uttered by a woman to her husband. After giving vent to the threatening language the woman became

EXPERTS IN HANDWRITING UTTERLY AT VARIANCE IN THE OPINIONS GIVEN

A Pittsburg Chirographic Authority Sees No Evidence That Kelly Wrote White-cap Letters.

Lisbon, November 21.—(Special)—The examination of witnesses in the Kelly-McPherson damage suit, continued this morning. The attorneys hope to get the case to the jury today, but hardly expect to get a verdict before tomorrow.

A point blank difference of opinion as to the authorship of the white cap notices was brought out at the trial in the testimony of the hand writing experts. William J. Kinsley, the New York expert, who was on the stand for the defense yesterday, was an interesting witness. Mr. Kinsley has been called in some of most noted cases in the country among them the Molineux and the Rice will case in New York. He contended that the characteristics of individuals manifest themselves in peculiarities of hand writing as well as in personal appearances and other respects. On this basis he explained in detail why he believed after comparing the white cap letters with Kelley's writing that they were written by the same hand.

George W. Wood, a Pittsburg expert, summoned by the plaintiff was present and heard Kinsley's testimony. On the stand this morning he said, after a very careful comparison and investigation of the anonymous writings, with specimens of Kelly's writing he found nothing whatever to justify him in the belief that they were written by the same hand. He then went on to say that while he recognized in Mr. Kinsley an able and conscientious gentleman, in his opinion he had failed to observe some important and salient features. Mr. Wood compared the formation of certain characteristics which he says are usually overlooked by writers of anonymous literature, including the space between words in which it was shown that the condition in the two handwritings are opposite.

After Mr. Kinsley's testimony yesterday the outlook seemed dark for Kelly, but Mr. Wood's testimony this morning placed the case in a new light. The latter is also recognized as an eminent authority on hand writing.

NO SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

Both Journeymen and Boss Barbers Are Determined to Stand Out.

A MEETING LAST NIGHT

Barbers' Union Instructed Its Committee to Confer With the Employers With a View to Making a Last Attempt to Enforce the New Scale.

Owing to the continued firmness of both sides of the controversy it now looks more favorable for serious trouble between the boss barbers and their employes than at any time since the negotiations for the settlement of the journeymen's new scale began.

No less than three conferences have been held during the past few weeks, and though there is but one point upon which a settlement cannot be reached, neither party is willing to concede that question.

At a joint meeting held last week of the two committees a number of sections in the scale were adjusted satisfactorily, and the only clause remaining was that respecting the closing of all shops on legal holidays the entire day. It was after 1 o'clock when the confab ended and then it had been agreed upon that the question should be submitted to arbitration. The plan was altered, however, as the bosses concluded they might be able to agree among themselves.

Meantime the committee representing the journeymen made its report to the union, and the organization refused to accept it, placing the matter, so far as the journeymen are concerned, just where it was in the beginning.

The scale under which the union had been working for the past year expired on Wednesday and a walkout was expected, but did not occur. Matters were in such a mixed condition that it was thought best to defer action until the regular meeting was held last night. The session was a lengthy one and there were debates galore. The outcome was a continuance of the old committee with instructions to obtain a conference with the bosses at the earliest possible moment—tonight perhaps—and secure a definite answer as to whether or not they propose to sign the scale as it now stands.

In case they fail to receive a favorable reply it is difficult to conjecture what the final decision will be.

OHIO'S SUPPORT GOES TO CANNON

ONLY TWO WERE FOR HIM

Salineville Miners' Union In Bad Repute Because Members Refuse to Work With Natives—Will Lose Charter—Labor's Fine Showing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, November 21.—The Ohio Republican delegation will support Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker of the national house of representatives. At the meeting of the delegation held in this city yesterday it developed that the sentiment in this state was almost unanimous for Cannon. Harvey, of Cleveland, and John P. Carrothers, of Port Clinton, appeared at the meeting in behalf of Congressman T. E. Burton and formally announced his candidacy for speaker. The consensus of opinion was that it would be mere waste of time to declare for Burton as there seemed to be no possible chance of his election for the honor. Eleven members were present, and but two were for Mr. Burton. They were Morgan and Jackson, and they declared for Cannon as their second choice. Two of the members recorded as being present were represented by proxies, Kyle and Warnock.

General Dick sent a telegram to of the action taken at the conference. It was signed by Congressman Charles H. Grosvernor as chairman, and Congressman Charles Dick, as secretary. Those not present at the meeting were Gill, Beidler, Nevin and Burton. Congressman-elect James Kennedy was reported as being favorable to Burton when he arrived but he transferred his support to Cannon when it was made plain to him that Burton did not ahve a ghost of a show of winning. Mr. Kennedy was quite clever with the newspaper boys and made a very favorable impression among the members of the congressional delegation. He left for his home Thursday afternoon.

For the first time in the history of the United Mine Workers of America (Ohio) an Ohio local is in disrepute with the organization. The local referred to is located at Salineville, and has been found guilty of insubordination. It has been suspended and its seal and charter will be taken up. The members of the local refuse to work in a mine in which three Italians who are members in good standing of the state organization, are employed. The state officials investigated the matter and decided that as the Italians were unionists they should not be discriminated against on account of their nationality. The case was also placed before National President John Mitchell, who sustained the ruling of the state organization. Suspension is followed by forfeitures of rights to receive benefits from the state or national organizations. Secretary-Treasurer Savage has left for Salineville to secure the seal and charter of the recalcitrant body and he may encounter difficulty in getting them. The local may decide to become an independent miners' organization.

The advance sheets of the annual report of State Labor Commissioner M. D. Ratchford will be given out in a few days. They will show increases in the number of manufactories and wages so large as to be almost startling, according to the commissioner. The statistics were collected under the law passed last winter and will be presented on a more complete and elaborate scale than has been attempted heretofore. The report will deal extensively with the potting industry. Secretary of State Laylin's annual report will show that the receipts of his department for the fiscal year ending Nov. 15, will be upwards of $830,000, of which sum about $588,430 represents the fees paid in under the Willis law. The balance was from miscellaneous sources.

The Ashland contempt cases were heard by the supreme court yesterday. They were the outcome of the action of the probate court of that city in setting aside an order issued by the supreme court. The judge, whose name is Cloyd Mansfield, it developed, was not a lawyer, and he disfavored any intention of disobeying the order of the court. Similar pleas were made by the attorneys and litigant in the cases. The judge and one attorney were let off, but two of the attorneys and the litigant were fined $50, $75, and $100 respectively.

PROCEEDINGS AVOIDED

Complicated Case of Biddie Versus McSpadden Settled Before 'Squire McCarron.

The case of John Biddle against J. C. McSpadden was settled in 'Squire McCarron's court last evening, Biddle receiving all that he had sued for. The suit was for $43.20, alleged to be due for work done for McSpadden on the Pleasant Heights street railway line. When the case was filed Joan Rinehart appeared in court and stated that he owed the money and not McSpadden. He also said that he would settle with Biddle, providing the plaintiff would liquidate a note with interest amounting to about $10.

Biddle contested the note and there promised to be considerable litigation over the matter, but when Rinehart paid Biddle the total amount plus $25 for a wagon the case was at an end. Biddle allowed the note in order to save legal proceedings.

Another writ of the same kind was issued by the 'squire about noon which will result in the decampment of Mrs. William Evans from the property of Ralph Alcock. Mr. Alcock has waited for several weeks on Mrs. Evans to vacate and she refusing to do so, he decided to eject her by lawful proceedings.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF ELECTRIC LIGHTS

On the night of November 21, 1885, there was an occurrence in East Liverpool which created more excitement than any event during that year. Seventeen years ago tonight the first electric light which was ever turned on in the city was allowed to beam forth. There was great excitement and nearly the entire population turned out to witness the exhibition.

When the average citizen recalls that at the present time something over $800 is paid out each month in light bills for the city it can be readily seen that the growth and progress of the city of East Liverpool has been phenomenal.

GIRL'S SAD CASE

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD CHILD COMPLAINS TO THE MAYOR.

Compelled to Earn Own Living Among Disagreeable Associates And Away From Home.

Miss Grace Moore, the young girl of whom Samuel Mann, who was adjudged insane by Judge Boone, talked incessantly while confined in the city jail, appeared at the mayor's office this afternoon and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of Jack Brighouse. She stated that Brighouse had insulted her this morning and that he had acted in a very indecent manner. The mayor advised her to drop her complaint, having no witnesses and also warned her to find another boarding house. She accepted the advice and warning.

Her case is a deplorable one to say the least. She is not more than 15 years of age; she has no mother and is in the city working for a live, good. It is said her father made her leave home two weeks ago and upon her departure recommended the Brighouse home as one fit for her to live and get boarding. She has had an exciting time while in the city and has seen more of the world than in all her life before. After she told her story to the mayor he frankly told her that he did not think much of her father. For a true father would not send his child away unless he knew well the people to whom he sent her for guidance and protection.

She stated that she did not know that Sam Mann was infatuated with her and although she knew him she did not love him.

RAILROAD AT STATE LINE

Work of Grading Begun On a Line to Reach Coal Lands.

Captain J. L. B. Dawson and others of Beaver county some time ago got a charter for a railroad extending a mile or so up the Little Beaver on the west side. Work has now begun on grading the line, the object being to reach the coal fields in the vicinity of Ohioville.

Delightfully Entertained.

Mrs. George H. Owen and Mrs. J. W. Patterson, at the home of the former, 181 Jefferson street, delightfully entertained the past grands and officers of the society of the Daughters of Rebekah last evening. Much pleasure was derived from the enticing and enjoyable game, peanuts. At the conclusion of the game prizes were awarded to Miss Mary Lloyd and Mrs. Sheridan McGavern for superior playing and the booby prize to Mrs. Alex McBane. Choice refreshments were served and the evening was one long to be remembered by all present.

New Chief Operator.

Lisbon, November 21.—(Special.)—Miss Laura Lutes has been appointed chief operator in the Columbiana Telephone comp[illegible]'s office here, succeeding her sister, Miss Nell Lutes, who resigned. The new chief operator has been filling the position of night operator, and is succeeded by Miss Pearl Jones.

GIRL'S SAD CASE

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD CHILD COMPLAINS TO THE MAYOR.

Compelled to Earn Own Living Among Disagreeable Associates And Away From Home.

Miss Grace Moore, the young girl of whom Samuel Mann, who was adjudged insane by Judge Boone, talked incessantly while confined in the city jail, appeared at the mayor's office this afternoon and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of Jack Brighouse. She stated that Brighouse had insulted her this morning and that he had acted in a very indecent manner. The mayor advised her to drop her complaint, having no witnesses and also warned her to find another boarding house. She accepted the advice and warning.

Her case is a deplorable one to say the least. She is not more than 15 years of age; she has no mother and is in the city working for a live. ,ood. It is said her father made her leave home two weeks ago and upon her departure recommended the Brighouse home as o ne fit for her to live and get boarding. She has had an exciting time while in the city and has seen more of the world than in all her life before. After she told her story to the mayor he frankly told her that he did not think much of her father. For a true father would not send his child away unless he knew full well the people to whom he sent her for guidance and protection.

She stated that she did not know that Sam Mann was infatuated with her and although she knew him she did not love him.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Fred Ohlenhauser, Formerly of This City, Killed in Wreck at Carnegie.

As the result of injuries received in a railroad wreck at Carnegie, Pa., on Tuesday evening, Fred Ohlenhauser, aged 26 years, formerly of this city, working for several years at his trade at the plant of the Specialty Glass company, died Wednesday. His remains were shipped to this city, arriving on the midnight train for burial. The funeral was held at 3 p. m., at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rose Bowers, Florence street, conducted by Rev. Edwin Weary, of St. Stephen's church. Buriel was made in Spring Grove cemetery.

MANN IS VIOLENT

The East Liverpool Lunatic Breaks Everything Possible in His Cell at the Jail.

Lisbon, November 21.—(Special.)—Samuel Mann, the East Liverpool subject who was brought to jail and adjudged insane the other day, is very violent today.

He has broken up every moveable thing in his cell and is still raving this afternoon.

WHY NOT CHINA?

We have repeatedly advocated the substitution of beautiful so-called silverware for presents, says the Pottery Gazette. Whether as prizes for athletic, cycling, or boating competitions, or as souvenirs of personal regard, nothing can be more appropriate than artistic china. It will retain its beautiful features longer than ware that requires frequent cleanings, and it has the advantage that it may be preserved without deterioation where it can be seen daily for many years. Silver goods on the other hand, will tarnish even when enclosed in a glass case, and require constant attention to retain their brilliancy. It is becoming a custom to present a china loving cup when it is intended to honor a comrade, and we have seen some beautifully ornamented cups specially produced for the purpose. Colored and gilt monograms and crests make effective decorations to such presents. M. Loubet, the French president, gave instructions that the magnificient table service, modeled by Leonard, and which was so greatly admired at last year's exhibition, should be sent to Complege. It was used for the grand state banquet there on the occasion of the Czar's visit, and it is to be forwarded to St. Petersbrug as M. Loubet's gifts to the czarina. Critics are unanimous in approving the good taste of the president's selection, as it is a unique opportunity of bringing under the notice of the czar, the excellence of French decorative art. The set consists of 30 pieces representing female dancers in various costumes and postures, but all characters may be followed with advantage by municipal, legal and sporting bodies who wish to pay a graceful compliment to one of their number.

TWO OBJECT LESSONS.

"Our customers as well as ourselves will no doubt get an object lesson before the close of the year's business," said a prominent manufacturer to a News Review reporter this afternoon. "Most of us have been crowding on a full head of steam in our plants in our desire to have invoices reach our customers in time for the heavy buying season of the holidays and just when we were beginning to congratulate ourselves on our success along comes a freight blockade and shipments are no doubt being held up all along the line. We cannot ship by river as the water is too low for the boats to run, so there is no way out of the dilemma. The lesson we learn is the great advantage of having the river navigable the year round, and the lesson to our customers is that they should place their orders a month earlier in the season. If the river improvements were now completed we could send our western railway shipments by boat to some railroad center less congested than Pittsburg, avoiding the delays now experienced. I have learned the lesson," he concluded, "and will do all in my power to bring about a nine foot stage of water the year round."

FILLING ORDERS PROMPTLY.

The strong demand for the product of the Union Potteries company is evidenced by the heavy shipments from the plant in this city. Especially is this true of decorated ware which is recognized as the equal, in body, decoration and design, to any make in the country. With considerable extra effort the orders have been gotten out with a promptness gratifying to customers. Two cars were sent west this week, one to Peoria and the other to Chicago.

SOLD RIGHT OF WAY.

James Hargreaves, of the packing department at Cartwright's, is one of the owners of a tract of land on Little Beaver creek, near Smith's Ferry, and some time ago the agents of the company that propose to build a railroad along the waterway secured an option from him and the other heirs. This option was taken up this week by Attorney Harry Freese, of Canton, acting for the company and the deed is now in his possession.

LEARNING FROM THE FRENCH.

It is a funny thing, but French people are teaching us how to serve tea just now and Parisian artificers are supposed to lead the world in the production of dainty tea tables. The Louis XV. style is the one most affected just now by the tea makers of Paris, and the service must consist of six pieces—a samovar, a tea pot, coffee pot, sugar bowl, cream jug, and big tray on which the equipage rests.

LOST IN THE FOG.

Will Goppert, of the kiln crew at Vodrey's, lives in Chester and comes across the river every morning to his work in a skiff. The other morning he set sail from the foot of Union street in a heavy fog and soon lost his bearings, finally running aground on Line island. He was so exasperated that he returned to the West Virginia shore, procured his gun and spent the remainder of the day hunting.

TEMPORARY SHUTDOWN.

Operatives to the number of half a dozen were here Wednesday and yesterday from New Cumberland calling on friends in the various plants. They stated that the Chelsea China company's plant at that place was shut down temporarily owing to an unlooked for delay in receiving a car of flint.

FINE DRIVING HORSE.

John T. Cartwright, the popular manager of the Cartwright Bros.' pottery, recently purchased M. E. Golding's fine four-year-old gelding. The animal was "bred in old Kentucky" and has done some promising stunts on the track. Mr. Cartwright will use him only for driving purposes.

MR. McGONIGLE ILL.

It is reported today that Ab McGonigle, of the kiln crew at the Buckeye, is on the sick list, his malady being lead colic. Mr. McGonigle has been off duty several days and is at his home under the care of a physician. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

AT WORK AGAIN.

John Hagen, dish finisher at the D. E. McNicol, who was injured a week or more ago in Chester by stumbling over the car tracks while returning from a dance, has entirely recovered and was at work again yesterday.

POTTERY AT MINERVA.

A $50,000 loan from the town is all that stands in the way of a $75,000 pottery at Minerva, it is said. Frank Sebring and an East Liverpool potter, name not given, are the reported promoters.

NOTES OF THE POTTERS.

Miss Camilia McDonald, a finisher at the Union, has returned to work after a two week's illness.

Ed. Daugherty, who is now running a fruit jigger at New Cumberland, was calling on friends here yesterday.

EAST END

ACCORDING TO BENEFITS.

Councilman Marshall Says a Few Words About Assessment Plans.

Dr. R. J. Marshall, councilman from the Fifth ward, is highly pleased over the support the people of the East End are giving him in his efforts to prevent the entire cost of the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue from being assessed entirely upon the property owners of the East End. He read the interviews with prominent East End citizens in the News Review last evening with a great deal of satisfaction and said to a reporter this morning:

"In assessing according to benefits derived, not alone on Pennsylvania avenue, but on Trentvale street and Calcutta road as well, the assessing board levied according to the amount of money necessary to be raised instead of as to the actual benefits each piece of property derived from the improvement. A piece of property assessed $10 must oe enhanced in value an equal amount to be just. If you assess property that has not increased in value you get entirely away from the principle of assessments by benefits."

Social a Success.

The social last evening at the home of Rev. J. N. Swan, on Ohio avenue, given by the Y. P. S. C. E., of the Second Presbyterian church, was a success in every particular. The photograph guessing contest was the amusing feature. Twenty-seven pictures were presented out of which Mrs. Ira Chamberlain guessed 24 correctly. She was awarded the prize, a bunch of beautiful chrysanthemums. Mrs. Mayme Miller guessed correctly the least number and was given the consolation prize, a bag of salt. The sale of refreshments and home made candy netted about $10.

Freak Calf Unclaimed.

The men who appeared at the home of Mrs. Weaver, near the Klondike, recently, and deposited a sum of money in part payment for the freak calf have not appeared to pay the remainder of the purchase and claim the property. It may be that they have changed their minds about it as a museum attraction and if they have Mrs. Weaver is ahead the sum in her possession. Robert Parker, of the decorating room at the National pottery, recently photographed the animal and there has been quite a demand for the pictures.

A Lucky Accident.

Mrs. Taylor Larkins met with a painful injury about six o'clock this morning at her home on First avenue and that she was not more severely injured is almost miraculous The trap door on the rear porch leading to the cellar had been left open and Mrs. Larkins, failing to notice it in the semi-darkness, fell through the aperture. She was severely bruised but unfortunately no bones were broken.

The force of men from this company completed the work of laying the derailing switches just before noon yesterday and they went into use immediately. Retail Clerks' Dance.

One of the pleasantest social affairs of the season was the dance at the Columbian park pavilion last evening given by the Retail Clerks' union. Ormes Bros.' orchestra furnished the music.

EAST END

ACCORDING TO BENEFITS.

Councilman Marshall Says a Few Words About Assessment Plans.

Dr. R. J. Marshall, councilman from the Fifth ward, is highly pleased over the support the people of the East End are giving him in his efforts to prevent the entire cost of the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue from being assessed entirely upon the property owners of the East End. He read the interviews with prominent East End citizens in the News Review last evening with a great deal of satisfaction and said to a reporter this morning:

"In assessing according to benefits derived, not alone on Pennsylvania avenue, but on Trentvale street and Calcutta road as well, the assessing board levied according to the amount of money necessary to be raised instead of as to the actual benefits each piece of property derived from the improvement. A piece of property assessed $10 must be enhanced in value an equal amount to be just. If you assess property that has not increased in value you get entirely away from the principle of assessments by benefits."

Social a Success.

The social last evening at the home of Rev. J. N. Swan, on Ohio avenue, given by the Y. P. S. C. E., of the Second Presbyterian church, was a success in every particular. The photograph guessing contest was the amusing feature. Twenty-seven pictures were presented out of which Mrs. Ira Chamberlain guessed 24 correctly. She was awarded the prize, a bunch of beautiful chrysanthemums. Mrs. Mayme Miller guessed correctly the least number and was given the consolation prize, a bag of salt. The sale of refreshments and home made candy netted about $10.

Freak Calf Unclaimed.

The men who appeared at the home of Mrs. Weaver, near the Klondike, recently, and deposited a sum of money in part payment for the freak calf have not appeared to pay the remainder of the purchase and claim the property. It may be that they have changed their minds about it as a museum attraction and if they have Mrs. Weaver is ahead the sum in her possession. TWELVE PAGES.

"Each Filipino," says President Roosevelt, "is guaranteed his life, his liberty and a chance to pursue happiness as he wishes, so long as he does not harm his fellows, in a way the islands have never before known before during all their recorded history." The Filipinos for the first time in their history, are well governed, and most of them have sense enough to appreciate the fact, and let the antis at home do the complaining.

Secretary Hitchcock will win the country's plaudits for the vigorous way in which he is enforcing the law against the cattle kings who have illegally fenced in tracts of the public domain. The cattle kings are able to buy land if they need it. Even if they were not they would have no past excuse for shutting out settlers anxious to buy.

The Alliance Review of November 20 was printed bearing the date of November 19. Then the error was discovered and remedied by means of a rubber stamp. Fortunately for the "hand printer" the edition was not as large as that of the London Times and he was able to complete his task the same day.

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, whose case has been thoroughly investigated by a special committee, has been completely exonerated. This is welcome news to thousands of workingpeople throughout this country, who have the utmost confidence in Mr. Gompers.

East Liverpool would soon get the reputation of being as slow as Philadelphia if every job undretaken proceeded as slowly as the house moving on Jefferson street. The house has moved three inches in a week, but that was by settling.

The effect of our national prosperity is felt by our neighbors in Canada. American settlers and American capital are flocking in, bank clearings are increasing and farming and manufacturing are expanding in various directions.

The Chinese government is said to be training its army on modern methods, but finds it hard to persuade the soldiers that umbrellas ought not to be carried by soldiers during a battle.

Now an advance in railroad freights is promised, and there are people who will say that the railroads are making it to recoup themselves for that ten per cent. advance in wages.

One of the Democrats elected to congress in Massachusetts is a protectionist. This incident suggests that the Democratic party may yet find an issue.

Teddy killed no bears, but it will be recorded to his credit that he shot no guides either.

Highlandtown, from the testimony produced in court, must have had excitement enough last year to satisfy it for a century.

Alfred Austin's latest poem is disappointing. It is entitled "Good By," but there is nothing in it to indicate that he means it.

Carrie Nation's latest was an attempt to reform the Four Hundred. It succeeded no better than Henry Watterson's.

Salem newspapers are zealously booming two cross-county electric railroad projects. One at a time ought to suffice.

Ohio also helps to load Cannon for the speakership fight. But it looks now as if there were going to be no fight.

Freight congestion is bound to occur in a growing country that is slow in improving its waterways.

The freight blockade at Pittsburg is no longer effective and business men are rejoicing.

The president is now at home again and both he and the Mississippi bears are safe.

OBITUARY

Death of An Infant.

The seven months old child of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Bentz, of 371 Ida street, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from whooping cough. The interment was made at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Grove cemetery.

AT THE THEATER

Tonight the Chicogo Stock company will present the feature of their engagement, "Nell Gwynn." It is a drama where the men wear torrent curls and gold bespangled vestments. It is a gauntlet and the sword. It is picturesque, and aglow with tragedy and passion. The character of Nell Gwynn, England's once favorite actress, King Charles, the merry monarch of the Louis XVI century, Lord Shaftsbury, the Duke of York and play of velvet, satin and lace, of the Lord Rochester are all known personages of history, whose portrayal lend realism to the great romance and adds interest to the strong dramatic situations.

New specialties will brighten the waits between acts, and as this is a featured bill and tonight is society night, a crowded house will no doubt be out to enjoy the famous production.

Guatemalan Minister Says Loss of Life and Property by Volcanic Eruptions Was Not Large.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Mr. A. While it is true that a part of the present coffee crop is lost, the dispatches say it is generally expected that most of the plantations of the affected district will recuperate. The loss of life was very small and the president of the republic from the first moment adopted the most energetic measures of relief, which the dispatches say avoided considerable suffering and preserved peace and order in the affected region. Minister Lazo Arriaga last night emphatically denied reports that bands of robbers were swarming the desolated sections, robbing and murdering refugees, and said the official correspondence just received by him showed that such outrages could not be perpetrated.

All they are required to show is their badge of office.

DISCUSSED AT LENGTH BY THE CHESTER COUNCIL.

Mr. Croxall's Offer As Regards California Avenue—Vote to Open Third Street.

The extension of California avenue through the Croxall property was discussed by Chester council last night. Every member was present.

Mr. Riley, of the street committee, reported that he had seen Mr. Croxall and that the latter said, at 15 cents per square foot it would take $2,200 to buy the ground necessary for California avenue through his property, but he was willing to take one-half that, which would be $1,100, for the right to go through. He also stated that Mr. Croxall claims part of Second street between the Railroad and Virginia avenue for a distance of about 70 feet. This he agrees to donate if the town bears the paving assessment. A move to accept this proposition was carried.

Some discussion by all members of council was held in regard to paying Mr. Croxall $1,100 for the right of California avenue through his orchard. Council thought he would have to open the street himself before long. The matter was left, however, in the hands of the street committee.

The railroad crossing was brought up again. Mr. Skinner, who was present, was asked why the company had not met with council as previously arranged. He said he had not heard a word from the officials and did not know why they did not come at the time set. He asked for more time and said he would wire them this morning. A motion to give them another week was carried.

Council then ordered Street Commissioner Severs to repair the alley between Second street and Mr. Roan's on First street.

William Severs was present and showed council where certain streets damaged his property unnecessarily, and council voted unanimously to open up Third street from Carolina avenue through to Middle run.

A bill of Engineer Boyd for services of $232.75 was among those ordered paid.

Mayor Shrader said Contractor Freshwater had not received any money, and as he had finished some work he needed some money and thought property owners should pay it in.

Recorder Mercer was ordered to instruct Engineer Boyd to estimate each property owner's share of the paving assessment, so they could be ready to pay it.

Shrader and Riley referred to some water boxes being left too low on the streets. Mercer moved the light committee to see Risinger Bros. and have lights fixed immediately. The motion carried and council adjourned.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Further Steps Toward Organizing And Building in Chester.

Action was taken some time ago regarding the organization of a Presbyterian church in Chester. It is thought in a short time a church will be built and a regular pastor installed.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Call Money Easy and In Light Demand—Bonds Quieter and Fluctuations Slight.

New York, Nov. 21.—Except for a few irregular and comparatively unimportant moves yesterday's stock market was very like that of the preceding days of this week. Fractional losses were recorded in the early dealings by all the coal stocks, as well as by the more active industrials. The demand for stocks came chiefly from the shorts and was confined largely to Copper, Sugar, Reading, New York Central and Manhattan.

Time money conditions, while no more acute than they have been recently, continue to excite some apprehension. The demand yesterday was moderate, but lenders were still holding off for a stiff rate. Call money was easy and again in light demand. There was practically no change in the foreign exchange situation. As compared with last week the banks have lost only a nominal sum to the sub-treasury.

The bond market was much quieter and fluctuations were slight either way. Total sales, par value, $1,855,000.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Call Money Easy and In Light Demand—Bonds Quieter and Fluctuations Slight.

New York, Nov. 21.—Except for a few irregular and comparatively unimportant moves yesterday's stock market was very like that of the preceding days of this week. Fractional losses were recorded in the early dealings by all the coal stocks, as well as by the more active industrials. The demand for stocks came chiefly from the shorts and was confined largely to Copper, Sugar, Reading, New York Central and Manhattan.

Time money conditions, while no more acute than they have been recently, continue to excite some apprehension. The demand yesterday was moderate, but lenders were still holding off for a stiff rate. Call money was easy and again in light demand. There was practically no change in the foreign exchange situation. As compared with last week the banks have lost only a nominal sum to the sub-treasury.

The bond market was much quieter and fluctuations were slight either way. Total sales, par value, $1,855,000.

LISBON IS EACER

Her Football Team is Anxious to Meet East Liverpool And May Be Accommodated.

The East Liverpool football team, as stated exclusively in the News Review, is practically a thing of the past, but it is said that the members will reorganize for the purpose of playing the Lisbon team for a purse of $100. The following football article appeared in the Buckeye State:

"At a game of football between East Liverpool's first team and the Lisbon eleven played at the former town some time ago, Lisbon won the game by a score of 6 to 5. However, East Liverpool claimed the game by a similar score and proclaimed itself champions of the county. The manager of the East Liverpool team agreed to play a return game at Lisbon on the 15th of the present month, but at the last momont canceled the date. Manager Nicholls, of the Lisbon team, then challenged the East Liverpool team to play for $100 a side on neutral grounds, and that offer has not been accepted, and is still open. The East Liverpool eleven averages 181 pounds while the Lisbon team averages 154 pounds. The East Liverpool team also has two prize fighters in its lineup. The question naturally arises is East Liverpool afraid of Lisbon, or are they ashamed to take easy money? If it is the latter they need have no delicacy as they are most welcome to it. If the former they should hasten to get out of the business."

West Enders Have Practiced Diligently And Promise a Warm Game.

YOUNGSTOWN CHALLENGED

By Association Rovers And a Foot Ball Match Is Likely to Be Arranged.

J. H. Woolliscroft, secretary of the East Liverpool Rovers foot ball team, has written the following challenge to Manager McGrath, of the Youngstown team:

"The East Liverpool Rovers would like to play a game of association foot ball with the Youngstown team, also Niles. The Rovers claim the championship of eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. We have played all the good teams in western Pennsylvania and have not lost a game this season. We played East Pittsburg last Saturday and tied. We would now like to meet the best of the eastern Ohio teams, and from all we can learn the Youngstown team is one of them. If possible we would like to arrange a game with Manager McGrath's eleven for Christmas week, December 27, if he has not already booked that date."

It is thought quite likely that the Youngstown aggregation will accept the defi and local sports are already looking forward to the game with interest.

She wired the state board of health these facts, but the order came back for her to remain in quarantine the required period.

On Wednesday she made her boast that she would make her escape before Thursday, and she made her boast good. Nobody knows how she got out.

BOARD OF SAFETY UNDER NEW CODE

Important Provisions Regarding the Police and Fire Departments.

THE EMPLOYES CLASSIFIED

Personal Solicitation of the Board Disqualifies an Applicant from Securing a Place—Merit System Prevails in Appointments.

In addition to the details given in the News Review yesterday respecting duties and privileges of members of the police and fire departments, there are a number of other points of even more importance which were not touched upon.

It has been explained that the merit system shall control in both the police and fire departments, and the new municipal code makes it perfectly plain as to how the observance of this rule shall be carried out by the mayor and the board of public safety. It is the duty of the department of public safety to classify all offices and places of appointment and employment in each city, with special reference to the examination which shall in every case be made.

The rules in this case—East Liverpool—shall be made to apply to cities of the same sort less than 25,000, and no appointment shall be made unless the rules provided for the government of that department shall have been observed and carried out to the letter.

When the work of classification has been finished the board shall furnish to the mayor a list of all offices, employment of all employes connected therewith. It shall, in connection with these duties furnish to the mayor a detailed statement of the condition and workings of its respective department when called upon by him to do so.

An applicant, in order to entitle him to appear for examination or to be examined must certify to a large number of allegations, such as nationality, age, place of birth, health and physical capacity for public service, residence for the previous five years, educational qualifications and numberless other things which some might think had no bearing upon the subject.

The law also says that a person shall be ineligible for appointment to any position in the gift of the department of public safety unless he or she shall have been a resident of the state and city for at least one year previous to the appointment.

One of the strongest points in the new code, as it deals with this department is that which says: "Any personal solicitation to any officer or member of said board, or to the appointing power in favor of any candidate by any person whatsoever, unless fraudulently done in order to injure him, shall be taken to be and deemed to have been done at the instance of the candidate himself, and shall disqualify him from competing at any examination for appointment for and druing the term of one year thereafter."

The board is privileged to make such changes in the rules governing the departments as from time to time it may deem necessary. None of these rules shall become operative, however, until they shall have been made public for a certain length of time.

The mode of examination and the qualifications neccessary to enable a man to take the examination for appointment on either or both of these departments under the merit system, are lengthy and interesting, and will be given here at another time.

BOARD OF SAFETY UNDER NEW CODE

Important Provisions Regarding the Police and Fire Departments.

Personal Solicitation of the Board Disqualifies an Applicant from Securing a Place—Merit System Prevails in Appointments.

In addition to the details given in the News Review yesterday respecting duties and privileges of members of the police and fire departments, there are a number of other points of even more importance which were not touched upon.

It has been explained that the merit system shall control in both the police and fire departments, and the new municipal code makes it perfectly plain as to how the observance of this rule shall be carried out by the mayor and the board of public safety. It is the duty of the department of public safety to classify all offices and places of appointment and employment in each city, with special reference to the examination which shall in every case be made.

When the work of classification has been finished the board shall furnish to the mayor a list of all offices, employment of all employes connected therewith. It shall, in connection with these duties furnish to the mayor a detailed statement of the condition and workings of its respective department when called upon by him to do so.

An applicant, in order to entitle him to appear for examination or to be examined must certify to a large number of allegations, such as nationality, age, place of birth, health and physical capacity for public service, residence for the previous five years, educational qualifications and numberless other things which some might think had no bearing upon the subject.

The law also says that a person shall be ineligible for appointment to any position in the gift of the department of public safety unless he or she shall have been a resident of the state and city for at least one year previous to the appointment.

The board is privileged to make such changes in the rules governing the departments as from time to time it may deem necessary. None of these rules shall become operative, however, until they shall have been made public for a certain length of time.

SOCIAL EVENTS

GIVEN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON BY MRS. W. B. HILL.

Superb Decorations, Fine Music And Everything in Excellent Taste.

No entertainment of the social realm of this season has been more elegant in appointments or more typical of an able and popular hostess than the receptions given yesterday afternoon and evening by Mrs. Walter Briggs Hill at her spacious home on Cook street. From 2 until 5:30 the Hill home was thronged with the prominent society leaders of the city, who enjoyed the hospitality of a charming hostess.

As the guests arrived they were received at the door by Master Roland Hill, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill, who in a manner at ease and sedate escorted them to the reception room where they were greeted by the hostess, also by Mrs. H. W. Hill, Mrs. R. W. Patterson and others.

After some time spent in social chat, the guests withdrew to the dining room, where they partook of elaborate refreshments. The assistants in the dining room, who were clad in costumes of white, were Misses Florence Hill and Maude Fisher and Mesdames W. W. Harker, W. T. Tebbutt, W. L. Taylor, Thomas Anderson, Jr., Frank H. Grosshans, George Davidson, W. H. Vodrey, A. T. Kelly and W. L. Thompson.

As the guests passed from the dining room they were favored with a large white carnation by Muriel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tebbutt.

The docorations in the dining room were delicate in design and effectively arranged. Green and white were much in evidence. The center table was decorated with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums about which which was prettily arranged sprays of asparagus, suspended from the chandilier in festoons. Probably the prettiest feature of the latter part of the afternoon was little two year old Eleanor, who, as she danced about to strains of music rendered by Allen's Peerless Mandolin club, seemed utterly unconscious of the shower of compliments she was receiving from the admiring guests whom she was entertaining. It was not until 5:30 the company dispersed delighted with the gracious hospitality extended to them by a gifted hostess.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hill entertained the Flabbergaster club and the members' husbands at cards.

THE MISSIONARY TEA

At Mrs. John Patterson's Yesterday an Event of Interest in Church Circles.

One of the pleasantest events of the season in church circles was the missionary tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson yesterday afternoon. Quite a large number attended. By special invitation Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Pratt were present and joined the society. During the afternoon Mrs. Frank Crook, president, requested Dr. Pratt to address the society. He responded to this request in a most felicitous manner, and gave many valuable suggestions regarding home missionary work. At the conclusion of his remarks light refreshments were served.

A canvass for members resulted in eight accessions. Arrangements were perfected for the special service to be held next Sunday morning at the First M. E. church.

The following reception committee was appointed: Mesdames S. J. Cripps, Monroe Patterson, Lawrence Thomas, John Anderson, B. W. Haines, P. Fowler, Andrew Watson, William Morris, Arthur Hill, William Rowe, Esther Thomas, Florence Updegraff, Jessie Manley, Ella Cober and Georgia P. Ikirt.

Mrs. John Patterson, Misses Cliebe, Baum and Campbell were appointed as decorating committee.

Dr. Pratt is preparing a special sermon for this occasion and it is expected to be an occasion of eminent interest which all are cordially invited to attend.

ENTERTAINED AT PEANUTS

An Enjoyable Party Given By Mrs. Metz And Daughters, Fifth Street.

In response to invitations issued by Mrs. Harriet Metz and daughters at 2:30 yesterday a large company assembled and enjoyed to the utmost the hours which passed too swiftly.

The diversion of the afternoon was peanuts, and was participated in with much zest by all present. Mrs. Clifford Bough won the first prize, a handsome vase containing a large bouquet of pink and white carnations. At the conclusion of the game very choice refreshments were served.

After nearly two hours being devoted to the exquisite menu the guests departed with very happy memories of the cordial hospitality of Mrs. Metz and daughters.

No Thanksgiving Ball.

At a meeting of the High school club, composed of 20 members from the junior and senior classes, held at the home of Clarence Bauman, on Fourth street, the advisability of giving a dance on Thanksgiving evening was discussed. As the majority of the club members belong to the high school foot ball team which plays Steubenville on that day it was decided to select a later date.

The box was nailed to the building and contained a supply of chewing gum and a small sum of money. Mr. Hodson stated this morning that "he would be thankful for its return as he needs it in his business."

Spelling Bee Next—Stratton circle No. 40, P. H. C., held an important and interesting meeting last evening and initiated three candidates. Invitations will be extended to the East End, Chester, Calcutta and Wellsville circles.

A Native Filipino—H. Napoy, a native of the Phipippines, was in this city today. Mr. Napoy has seen a great part of the world, having traveled for the Mergenthaler Linotype company, setting up machines in almost every country where newspapers are published. He has just returned from South America. He said he thought South America was the best adapted for the human race, because the conditions of the country and climate, also the price of things, make it very cheap to live. SOCIAL EVENTS

Superb Decorations, Fine Music And Everything in Excellent Taste.

No entertainment of the social realm of this season has been more elegant in appointments or more typical of an able and popular hostess than the receptions given yesterday afternoon and evening by Mrs. Walter Briggs Hill at her spacious home on Cook street. From 2 until 5:30 the Hill home was thronged with the prominent society leaders of the city, who enjoyed the hospitality of a charming hostess.

As the guests arrived they were received at the door by Master Roland Hill, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill, who in a manner at ease and sedate escorted them to the reception room where they were greeted by the hostess, also by Mrs. H. W. Hill, Mrs. R. W. Patterson and others.

After some time spent in social chat, the guests withdrew to the dining room, where they partook of elaborate refreshments. The assistants in the dining room, who were clad in costumes of white, were Misses Florence Hill and Maude Fisher and Mesdames W. W. Harker, W. T. Tebbutt, W. L. Taylor, Thomas Anderson, Jr., Frank H. Grosshans, George Davidson, W. H. Vodrey, A. T. Kelly and W. L. Thompson.

As the guests passed from the dining room they were favored with a large white carnation by Muriel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tebbutt.

The docorations in the dining room were delicate in design and effectively arranged. Green and white were much in evidence. The center table was decorated with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums about which which was prettily arranged sprays of asparagus, suspended from the chandilier in festoons. Probably the prettiest feature of the latter part of the afternoon was little two year old Eleanor, who, as she danced about to strains of music rendered by Allen's Peerless Mandolin club, seemed utterly unconscious of the shower of compliments she was receiving from the admiring guests whom she was entertaining. It was not until 5:30 the company dispersed delighted with the gracious hospitality extended to them by a gifted hostess.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hill entertained the Flabbergaster club and the members' husbands at cards.

CENTER OF FINANCE

SPLENDID NEW HOME OF THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

How Its Business Has Increased In Recent Years—Membership Worth a Fortune—The Head of the Institution.

Half a block away from Wall street, nearly completed, stands the majestic new home of the New York Stock Exchange, which from the magnitude of its financial operations and its mighty influence in business affairs is destined to become one of the notable buildings of the world.

The new Stock Exchange is an immense structure, a block in length, extending from Broad street, on which it fronts, to New street, and it is 138 feet in width. It has a height of five stories, with a cornice. The effect of magnitude is enhanced by the architectural design of the building, for across its front are six immense Corinthian columns, guarding, as it were, the grand portico and supporting a broad pediment. All the exterior construction of the building is of white Georgia marble, and the interior is of white South Dover marble.

Aside from the beauty and magnitude of the structure there are two other features of it which are of special interest. One of these is the "floor" where the trading will be done, and the other is the safety deposit vault, which is one of the finest in the world.

The trading floor is to be a vast room 140 feet long from the inner face of the columns, 110 feet wide and 80 feet high. Ample opportunity for spectators to observe the busy scene on the great floor below has been provided by two broad galleries, one at either end of the room.

The vault in the basement is completed and is already used by banking and brokerage houses for depositing securities. It is a long room, in the walls of which are hundreds of safety deposit boxes of a variety of shapes and sizes. In the center of the room is a long steel cabinet and in both sides of it more boxes and lockers. The outside wall of the vault is fourteen inches thick. The exterior is a steel coat. Next to it is a wall of fireproof material, and inside of that a thick burglar proof plate of steel. Between the outer wall and the wall in which are the safety deposit boxes is a narrow passage extending entirely around the vault. In the center of each end and each side of the passageway are watchmen's signals. At night two men guard the vault. They pace continually around it through the narrow passage. They are required to "ring up" at each one of these signal boxes every fifteen minutes. This keeps the watchmen active. A further safeguard is the time lock at the front of the vault. It contains the finest and most elaborate lock mechanism made.

Rudolph Keppler, who was elected president of the New York Stock Exchange last spring for the fifth consecutive term, has been an active and beneficial influence in that organization for more than a quarter of a century. He entered the board of governors in May, 1877, and has been identified more or less with the management of the exchange since that date. Although of German birth, Mr. Keppler has been a resident of this country since his youth, and his business career has been developed in Wall street.

Since he became the administrative head of the Stock Exchange there has been a wonderful growth in the business of the institution. New securities aggregating in value $2,000,000,000 have been added to the stock list during the past four years, and the volume of the speculative business in the exchange has steadily increased.

Mr. Keppler's administration is the only period in the history of the New York Stock Exchange in which daily sales of 2,000,000 shares of stock have been recorded.

With the increase of business the value of membership has advanced, until now it takes nearly $100,000 to gain admission to what has been described as the greatest financial mart in the world.

DON'T MAKE FARMES

Grangers Say Agricultural Colleges Teach Cigaret And Cocktail Habit Instead.

Lansing, Mich., November 21.—The farmers of the National Grange, in solemn session, declared that the agricultural class has had another gold brick handed to them in the shape of agricultural colleges. They claim that the institution is a delusion and, instead of training their sons to raise "two blades of grass where one grew before," it gives them the cigaret and cocktail habit and otherwise unfits them for the sterling duties of providing the world with provisions.

The agricultural colleges of every state in the union is included in the attack of the educational committee of the grange. The report recites that the farmers were instrumental in obtaining from the different states the appropriations for colleges, which would train the sturdy offspring of the soil to follow in their father's footsteps, at rather a faster clip than that taken by pioneers.

The recital includes the charge that few of the graduates of the agricultural colleges ever go back to the farms. They declare that the time has come for a vigorous reform and the installation of a system which will turn out real farmers from farmers' colleges, instead of taking the brawn of the country and transforming it into material for city life.

SCRAP THREATENED

Man Against Whom Alex Chafin Got Judgment Wants to Get Even.

"It's all right. I have paid the bill. But mind you, 'Squire McCarron, if I ever get that man over the state line I will get more than that much satisfaction out of him."

These were the parting words of A. J. Decker as he left the office of the justice last evening after paying a judgment for $28 sued for by Alex Chafin on a grocery bill.

Decker can neither read nor write and he claims that he has been outfigured. The 'squire had all of the evidence in hand and Decker failed to produce any witnesses, making the case a clear one for Chafin. The amount orginally sued for was $69. Decker got off with the payment of $28, that including the costs.

Constable Powell states that he will not be at all surprised if he hears of the plaintiff and defendant coming together. On the day that the officer served the notice of action on Decker the two men came very near getting to blows. Decker was in a wagon and Chafin in a buggy. Both arose from their seats and started at each other. They were stopped only by the interference of the constable.

FEDERATION OF LABOR

The Socialists Came Within 400 Votes of Capturing the Convention.

STRUGGLED NEARLY ALL DAY.

President Gompers Completely Exhonorated of Charges of Infidelity to Trades Unionism—He Has No Opposition For the Presidency.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—The Socialists came within 400 votes of securing the control of the convention of the American Federation of Labor yesterday. The struggle lasted almost the entire day and many able speeches were made on both sides, notably those of D. A. Hayes, James Duncan and President Gompers, against the Socialists, and Victor Berger, Max Hayes and W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, in behalf of the resolution introduced by Delegate Berger and amended by Delegate Wilson in a manner acceptable to Berger. The debate lasted until 6 o'clock in the evening, when a roll call showed 4,744 votes against the amendment of Mr. Wilson and 4,344 in favor of it. The miners voted solidly in favor of the amendment. No business was transacted in the convention during the day, other than that of the debate and the report of the committee which investigated the Gompers-Shaffer trouble.

President Gompers was completely exhonorated of the charges of infidelity to the principles of trades unionism, said to have been made by Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The special committee reported to that effect before the convention. The committee reported that when Mr. Shaffer appeared before it he declared that he had not at any time, either in writing or otherwise, made any charges against Mr. Gompers of infidelity to trades unionism, nor did he desire to before the committee.

For the time being, at least, all opposition to the election of President Gompers has died out. Since the refusal of James Lynch, of the Typographical union, to run for the office no further effort has been made to secure a candidate, nor is it likely at the present time that there will be a rival candidate.

PRESIDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Shook Hands at Knoxville, Tenn., With Sister of Lieutenant Colonel of His Regiment.

Asheville, N. C. Nov. 21.—The president's homeward journey yesterday was without special incident. The ride across the mountains over the Southern road was made in fast time. The train stopped only to change crews and engines. Its coming was generally unheralded, but there was a small crowd at almost every station. Several times the train was cheered as it swept by. At Chattanooga the president received a telegram from Newport, Tenn., saying that the school children would turn out to see him. By his direction the train was slowed down when that place was reached. About 200 little ones, with flags in their hands, were lined up along the track. The president stood on the rear platform and waved his hand and hat to them. At Stevenson, Ala., early yesterday, about 50 children gathered around his car and begged the porter to let them see the president. The president, who had just got up, heard their cries, and rather than disappoint the little ones he stepped to the door in his stocking feet and said: "Good morning," just as the train drew out. At Ooltewah junction, where the train stopped for water, a tall, raw-boned mountaineer engaged the president in conversation. The Tennesseean remarked that bears in Mississippi had proved too wild for the president. "Perhaps they were Democratic bears, and took to the woods upon my arrival," replied the president, smiling.

At Knoxville the president shook hands with a sister of the lieutenant colonel of his regiment. The president reached Washington at 8 o'clock this morning.

National Founders' Association.

Detroit, Nov. 21.—The convention of the National Founders' association was brought to a close yesterday afternoon by the election of officers and the adoption of a resolution in favor of a national agreement with the molders' union and requesting the members of the association not to make any further local agreements. At the close of the convention the administrative council held an executive session.

Scaffold Gave Way.

Port Washington, Wis., Nov. 21.—While working on the third story of the Ozaukee County Malting company's new malt house yesterday the scaffolding gave way and three men were dashed to the ground below. Two of the men will die of their injuries. It is thought the third will live. The cause of the accident is unknown.

OIL INSPECTION

Report of Barrels Examined And Fees Collected in This Part of the State.

Columbus, November 21.—(Special.) F. L. Baird, inspector of oils of the First district, which comprises the northern and extreme southeastern counties of the state, has filed his annual report with Governor Nash. Toledo is headquarters of the district. During the year ending October 31, 1902, there were 368,969 barrels of oil inspected on which fees were collected amounting to $16,596, which is about $2,000 in excess of the sum collected by State Inspector John R. Malloy, of the Second district, who submitted his annual report on Monday. Of the oil inspected in the First district 311,941 barrels were manufactured in Ohio, 56,725 in Pennsylvania and 303 in West Virginia. There are 12 deputy inspectors in the district, the deputies for eastern Ohio being W. J. Oby, Canton; John K. Lewis, Youngstown, and D. C. Ekerman, Akron.

The inspections in Columbiana county were as follows: East Liverpool, number of barrels inspected, 3,286; fees collected, $164.30. Salem, barrels, 2,543; fees, $127.40. Wellsville, barrels, 1,798; fees, $89.90. East Palestine, barrels, 974; fees, $48.70. Lisbon, barrels, 1,349; fees, $67.45. Salineville, barrels, 1,079; fees, $53.95. Leetonia, barrels, 2,005; fees, $76.90.

MEETING OF RIVER MEN

Executive Council Assembles at Cincinnati to Arrange a Visit to President.

A meeting of the executive council of the Ohio Valley Improvement association was held yesterday at Cincinnati, for the purpose of making preparations to visit President Roosevelt and lay before him the resolutions adopted by last week's convention held at Parkersburg. It is the desire of the association to have the president make some reference to Ohio river improvements in his forthcoming message, and in view of his public utterances already made in that direction, rivermen do not anticipate any trouble in having the chief executive take cognizance of the worthiness of the improvement.

Robert L. Gregory, the newly elected member of the legislature from Sistersville, W. Va., will introduce a resolution at the next session of the legislature, which was prepared by James Francis Burke, of Pittsburg, demanding of congress the improvement of the Ohio and the sending of a committee to Washington to lay demands of the legislature before congress. The governors of the states bordering on the Ohio river will also be asked to join in similar requests.

WABASH SURVEY

To Reach East Liverpool Is Now Promised—Extension from Steubenville.

Word has just been received that the much-talked-of Wabash road will be surveyed to this city within the next few days.

The rights of way have already been taken from Cross creek, where the river will be bridged and where the company is already grading, to Toronto. That city is in fever heat with excitement over the prospects of the greatest industrial boom it has ever known.

It is now generally believed that the road will be extended from the terminal of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road at Market street, Steubenville, to this city.

The plans and specifications for the bridge to span the Ohio at Cross creek, Brooke county, have been delayed on account of not being in accordance with the law and to the satisfaction of the secretary of war, who has jurisdiction over the matter.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE

M. A. Norris, of Mahoning County, Announced As a Candidate for Next Year.

Youngstown, November 21.—The formal announcement was made yesterday that M. A. Norris, of this city, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for supreme judge at the next state convention.

This announcement has been expected since the convention last summer, when Mr. Norris was within call of the nomination and narrowly missed securing it. As before, Mr. Norris will be the candidate of Mahoning county and every effort will be put forward by the Mahoning county delegation to land him in the office.

His long experience at the bar and the work that he has done while practicing law is of such a nature as to make him one of the foremost men considered for the position.

CENTER OF FINANCE

SPLENDID NEW HOME OF THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

Half a block away from Wall street, nearly completed, stands the majestic new home of the New York Stock Exchange, which from the magnitude of its financial operations and its mighty influence in business affairs is destined to become one of the notable buildings of the world.

The new Stock Exchange is an immense structure, a block in length, extending from Broad street, on which it fronts, to New street, and it is 138 feet in width. It has a height of five stories, with a cornice. The effect of magnitude is enhanced by the architectural design of the building, for across its front are six immense Corinthian columns, guarding, as it were, the grand portico and supporting a broad pediment. All the exterior construction of the building is of white Georgia marble, and the interior is of white South Dover marble.

Aside from the beauty and magnitude of the structure there are two other features of it which are of special interest. One of these is the "floor" where the trading will be done, and the other is the safety deposit vault, which is one of the finest in the world.

The trading floor is to be a vast room 140 feet long from the inner face of the columns, 110 feet wide and 80 feet high. Ample opportunity for spectators to observe the busy scene on the great floor below has been provided by two broad galleries, one at either end of the room.

The vault in the basement is completed and is already used by banking and brokerage houses for depositing securities. It is a long room, in the walls of which are hundreds of safety deposit boxes of a variety of shapes and sizes. In the center of the room is a long steel cabinet and in both sides of it more boxes and lockers. The outside wall of the vault is fourteen inches thick. The exterior is a steel coat. Next to it is a wall of fireproof material, and inside of that a thick burglar proof plate of steel. Between the outer wall and the wall in which are the safety deposit boxes is a narrow passage extending entirely around the vault. In the center of each end and each side of the passageway are watchmen's signals. At night two men guard the vault. They pace continually around it through the narrow passage. They are required to "ring up" at each one of these signal boxes every fifteen minutes. This keeps the watchmen active. A further safeguard is the time lock at the front of the vault. It contains the finest and most elaborate lock mechanism made.

Rudolph Keppler, who was elected president of the New York Stock Exchange last spring for the fifth consecutive term, has been an active and beneficial influence in that organization for more than a quarter of a century. He entered the board of governors in May, 1877, and has been identified more or less with the management of the exchange since that date. Although of German birth, Mr. Keppler has been a resident of this country since his youth, and his business career has been developed in Wall street.

Since he became the administrative head of the Stock Exchange there has been a wonderful growth in the business of the institution. New securities aggregating in value $2,000,000,000 have been added to the stock list during the past four years, and the volume of the speculative business in the exchange has steadily increased.

Mr. Keppler's administration is the only period in the history of the New York Stock Exchange in which daily sales of 2,000,000 shares of stock have been recorded.

With the increase of business the value of membership has advanced, until now it takes nearly $100,000 to gain admission to what has been described as the greatest financial mart in the world.

DON'T MAKE FARMES

Grangers Say Agricultural Colleges Teach Cigaret And Cocktail Habit Instead.

Lansing, Mich., November 21.—The farmers of the National Grange, in solemn session, declared that the agricultural class has had another gold brick handed to them in the shape of agricultural colleges. They claim that the institution is a delusion and, instead of training their sons to raise "two blades of grass where one grew before," it gives them the cigaret and cocktail habit and otherwise unfits them for the sterling duties of providing the world with provisions.

The agricultural colleges of every state in the union is included in the attack of the educational committee of the grange. The report recites that the farmers were instrumental in obtaining from the different states the appropriations for colleges, which would train the sturdy offspring of the soil to follow in their father's footsteps, at rather a faster clip than that taken by pioneers.

The recital includes the charge that few of the graduates of the agricultural colleges ever go back to the farms. They declare that the time has come for a vigorous reform and the installation of a system which will turn out real farmers from farmers' colleges, instead of taking the brawn of the country and transforming it into material for city life.

SCRAP THREATENED

Man Against Whom Alex Chafin Got Judgment Wants to Get Even.

"It's all right. I have paid the bill. But mind you, 'Squire McCarron, if I ever get that man over the state line I will get more than that much satisfaction out of him."

These were the parting words of A. J. Decker as he left the office of the justice last evening after paying a judgment for $28 sued for by Alex Chafin on a grocery bill.

Decker can neither read nor write and he claims that he has been outfigured. The 'squire had all of the evidence in hand and Decker failed to produce any witnesses, making the case a clear one for Chafin. The amount orginally sued for was $69. Decker got off with the payment of $28, that including the costs.

Constable Powell states that he will not be at all surprised if he hears of the plaintiff and defendant coming together. On the day that the officer served the notice of action on Decker the two men came very near getting to blows. Decker was in a wagon and Chafin in a buggy. Both arose from their seats and started at each other. They were stopped only by the interference of the constable.

The Socialists Came Within 400 Votes of Capturing the Convention.

STRUGGLED NEARLY ALL DAY.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—The Socialists came within 400 votes of securing the control of the convention of the American Federation of Labor yesterday. The struggle lasted almost the entire day and many able speeches were made on both sides, notably those of D. A. Hayes, James Duncan and President Gompers, against the Socialists, and Victor Berger, Max Hayes and W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, in behalf of the resolution introduced by Delegate Berger and amended by Delegate Wilson in a manner acceptable to Berger. The debate lasted until 6 o'clock in the evening, when a roll call showed 4,744 votes against the amendment of Mr. Wilson and 4,344 in favor of it. The miners voted solidly in favor of the amendment. No business was transacted in the convention during the day, other than that of the debate and the report of the committee which investigated the Gompers-Shaffer trouble.

President Gompers was completely exhonorated of the charges of infidelity to the principles of trades unionism, said to have been made by Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The special committee reported to that effect before the convention. The committee reported that when Mr. Shaffer appeared before it he declared that he had not at any time, either in writing or otherwise, made any charges against Mr. Gompers of infidelity to trades unionism, nor did he desire to before the committee.

For the time being, at least, all opposition to the election of President Gompers has died out. Since the refusal of James Lynch, of the Typographical union, to run for the office no further effort has been made to secure a candidate, nor is it likely at the present time that there will be a rival candidate.

Toledo is headquarters of the district. During the year ending October 31, 1902, there were 368,969 barrels of oil inspected on which fees were collected amounting to $16,596, which is about $2,000 in excess of the sum collected by State Inspector John R. REVIEW OF BASEBALL

John T. Brush on the Past Season

CONTRAST OF NATIONAL AND JOHNSON CLUBS

SUCCESSFUL YEAR IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

NOW that the pennant races have been won, it is interesting to glance back over the year's work in the baseball world to take note of the season's developments.

John T. Brush, the real head of the National league, in a recent interview is credited with the positive statement that the National league has enjoyed a more prosperous season this year than the American, and the former Cincinnati magnate is quoted with details to prove his statement.

Without going into those details and accepting Brush's veracity as a matter of course, the average "fan" who has watched attendance and other figures closely wonders what the magnates have been and are going to do with all their money. No wonder there is a scarcity of the long green in the banks and expedients were considered with reference to obtaining enough to move the crops.

The American league has made money in all but two of its eight cities, and of these Detroit claims to have broken even in spite of the big slump in the playing of the Tigers. It is a pleasure to learn that the National league has surpassed this record, for it means that the game has prospered this year as it has not for many a season past, according to the magnates themselves. It is of course a problem which will puzzle the layman to understand how the old league has beaten out its younger rival in profits, with the latter outdrawing it in all four of the cities where there are conflicting teams and with a tail ender in New York, where a winning team would have been a veritable gold mine. But these problems may be left to Brush's brain to explain. It may be that the National league's salary roll has been so much smaller than the American's that its clubs have been able to make big money out of small receipts. It may possibly be that Brush has multiplied figures where he should have merely added them, and so caused the figures to prevaricate.

The Salary Question.

The records will show, according to other magnates, that the National league has been paying salaries this year to young players quite as high as it used to pay its stars of former years and has been compelled to raise the salaries of what star players it kept out of the ranks of the enemy. If the National league has made more money than Ban Johnson's league this year, the question then arises, What must Brush and his allies have made out of baseball in earlier years, when there was only one big league, paying its players salaries which a Three Eye league player would scorn nowadays and enjoying the undivided patronage of all the larger cities?

Little wonder the National league magnates claim an immense reserve fund and resources enough to exterminate the American league with ease. They ought by this time to have accumulated enough to almost pay off the debt incurred by cutting the league circuit from twelve to eight cities.

Just how the National leaguers will justify a return to the former scale of salaries after they have exterminated the American league is another interesting problem. If they are making so much money now, it would be a crime worse than the famous "crime of '92," when all the players were released in midseason and signed over again at salaries from 30 to 60 per cent lower to save the magnates from sure bankruptcy—so they then claimed.

There is one thing that puzzles the outsider in this war of extermination more than anything else. All summer long the National league has had agents out at big expense offering huge salaries and bonuses to American league players to sign National league contracts. The natural question is, "What's the use?" If the National league's declarations are true that the young league is on its last legs and toppling on the verge of bankruptcy, why all this generosity toward the players whom the National can have for the asking as soon as the American league dies the speedy and natural death so freely predicted by Brush and others?

The American Association.

The season just closed has been a successful one for the American Baseball association despite the prediction that as an "outlaw" organization it would be a failure.

Every team in the association is at least even with the game, and two or three have piled up a satisfactory surplus. The quality of ball played has been of a high standard for the most part.

The Louisville and Indianapolis teams have been the chief money makers, for since the middle of the season they have about evenly divided the honor of heading the percentage table. During the final series between these two teams in Indianapolis the attendance was 25,000.

Manager Tebeau of Louisville says his club has made $10,000, but it is generally believed that $20,000 would come nearer being the true figure.

The Indianapolis club is also a winner, but not to any such extent as Louisville. Manager Watkins admits he is a slight winner. Up to the middle of the season, when Indianapolis reached first place, the team was a loser.

Louisville had the highest priced team in the association and drew big crowds at home from the first.

The Columbus Slump.

Columbus, O., started out with a good team, but the discipline became lax, due to the interference of the owners with Manager Grim. The slump occurred in the middle of the season, and up to that time the team had drawn well. Milwaukee may not have broken even owing to the competition by the Western league. Kansas City receipts were also cut by competition.

Louisville's success has been due largely to its hard hitters, while Indianapolis depends on its fielding and pitchers. The Indianapolis team work has been superior.

Kansas City had the next to the highest priced team, but has been a disappointment.

Milwaukee's players also failed to deliver the goods, such men as Dungan and Algy McBride failing to hit. Outfielder Holman was the best man on the team and is said to be billed for the big league.

Kellum was the best pitcher on Indianapolis' staff, his strong point being his absolute control. The veteran Killen was next in point of effectiveness. Captain Fox at second for Indianapolis was the most marvelous fielder in the association.

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

The Quiet Way In Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin:

My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts. I shall need Mlle. Georges, Mme. Dorval, Bocage, Lockroy, Provost and five new scenes.

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till better days.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shyly draw a manuscript out of his pocket. He would agree to everything. The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musingly, "Dieu, how fine Frederick would be in that part!" "That is true," Horel would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the equipose of the cast and Raucourt, Laferriere and Mlle. Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the stage setting. Old scenes, that the public had tired of, were almost an insult to these great artists. If Horel showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the game would go on, till, little by little, Hugo had obtained everything he wanted, even to changing the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Jim O'Brien's Epitaph.

"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epitaph line than all the rest of the world," remarked a Colorado ex-congressman.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It seems that in the course of a barroom broil one Jim O'Brien, a well known character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's associates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large letters:

"Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m.

"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:

"Heaven, 4:20 p. m.—O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. The worst is feared."

Weeping at a Wedding.

A Chinese marriage is all ceremony—no talk, no levity and much crying. The solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care in a red gown, brocade or silk, if she can get it; her eyelashes are painted a deep black, and she wears a heavy red veil attached to a scarlet headdress, from which imitation pearls are pendent over the forehead. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the blushing bride is led by five of her best female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. The utmost silence prevails, when, finally, the mother leads off in a cry, the maids follow and the bride echoes in the chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters, with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits, and, preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away to his own home. The guests then throw rice at the happy couple, a custom we have borrowed from the heathen.

Army Versus Navy

By FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

Uncle Sam's army and navy are laying plans for the complete annihilation of each other, to wipe each other off the map. No; this is not a story of a terrible complication at Washington or of a deadly feud between Secretary Root and Secretary Moody. The facts in the case are that the army and navy football teams clash on Franklin field, Philadelphia, Nov. 29 in their annual contest, and every officer in either branch of the service that can spare the time will journey to the Quaker City's splendid gridiron to "root" for the team of his choice. And the ladies will be there, too, in goodly numbers and gala dress, for the cadets from West Point and the Annapolis middies are long on popularity as well as ability.

Captain Boyers of West Point is confident of repeating the victory of last year over the navy. The ex-captain and quarterback of Harvard, Charlie Daly, the best man in his position in the country, has been reserved especially for the coming match, and there is every reason to believe that he will duplicate his brilliant work of a year ago, when he secured for West Point the victory over their old time rivals. Daly's work it was that called forth unstinted applause from President Roosevelt, who was on the side lines.

The middies have an able team this year, but I doubt if they will score on West Point. The soldiers are even stronger now than when they played Yale to a standstill (6-6) early in the season.

Probably the best individual all around work on the gridiron this season has been done by John A. De Witt of Princeton university. De Witt at tackle has proved an anchor to the whole tiger line, and his phenomenal goal kicking ability places him easily in the lead among men in his position. He is sure of a place on the official All America's team of 1902. De Witt is also a splendid ground gainer, and a large part of the distance covered on center plays during the year by the

DE WITT KICKING A GOAL FROM THE FIELD.

Jerseymen was the result of the champion hammer thrower's line hitting power.

De Witt's performances in the Cornell and Yale games will never be forgotten by Princeton admirers, and, although he is somewhat inclined to "show off" on some occasions, he is nevertheless deservedly popular and merits the praise of all followers of the orange and black.

Twenty years from now, when present Michigan undergraduates are honored alumni, they will shake their heads and say to the football candidates of those days: "Yes, youngsters, but you should have seen that great game of 1902, when the best team that ever wore the maize and blue beat Wisconsin on Marshall field by a score of 6 to 0. They don't have teams like those now."

Michigan showed the most powerful and concerted attack ever seen in western football. Few of the immense crowd which saw Michigan sweep aside the Wisconsin forwards in the first ten minutes of play for a steady march to a touchdown nearly eighty yards away knew that they were witnessing the acme of modern attack. But the football critics and galaxy of western coaches, drawn from far and wide to see the battle of gridiron giants, marveled at the perfection of unified effort which Yost had taught and his pupils so ably carried out.

It was better offense than the Michigan team of 1901, which registered 550 points without being scored on, showed in its best games of last year.

In addition to winning the one great game upon which the football minds at Ann Arbor have been set, Michigan's team left the field the conceded champions of 1902. "Michigan is the best team in the west," as the refrain of one of its student songs suggests.

REVIEW OF BASEBALL

CONTRAST OF NATIONAL AND JOHNSON CLUBS

NOW that the pennant races have been won, it is interesting to glance back over the year's work in the baseball world to take note of the season's developments.

John T. Brush, the real head of the National league, in a recent interview is credited with the positive statement that the National league has enjoyed a more prosperous season this year than the American, and the former Cincinnati magnate is quoted with details to prove his statement.

of course, the average "fan" who has watched attendance and other figures closely wonders what the magnates have been and are going to do with all their money. No wonder there is a scarcity of the long green in the banks and expedients were considered with reference to obtaining enough to move the crops.

The American league has made money in all but two of its eight cities, and of these Detroit claims to have broken even in spite of the big slump in the playing of the Tigers. It is a pleasure to learn that the National league has surpassed this record, for it means that the game has prospered this year as it has not for many a season past, according to the magnates themselves. It is of course a problem which will puzzle the layman to understand how the old league has beaten out its younger rival in profits, with the latter outdrawing it in all four of the cities where there are conflicting teams and with a tail ender in New York, where a winning team would have been a veritable gold mine. But these problems may be left to Brush's brain to explain. It may be that the National league's salary roll has been so much smaller than the American's that its clubs have been able to make big money out of small receipts. It may possibly be that Brush has multiplied figures where he should have merely added them, and so caused the figures to prevaricate.

The Salary Question.

The records will show, according to other magnates, that the National league has been paying salaries this year to young players quite as high as it used to pay its stars of former years and has been compelled to raise the salaries of what star players it kept out of the ranks of the enemy. If the National league has made more money than Ban Johnson's league this year, the question then arises, What must Brush and his allies have made out of baseball in earlier years, when there was only one big league, paying its players salaries which a Three Eye league player would scorn nowadays and enjoying the undivided patronage of all the larger cities?

Little wonder the National league magnates claim an immense reserve fund and resources enough to exterminate the American league with ease. They ought by this time to have accumulated enough to almost pay off the debt incurred by cutting the league circuit from twelve to eight cities.

Just how the National leaguers will justify a return to the former scale of salaries after they have exterminated the American league is another interesting problem. If they are making so much money now, it would be a crime worse than the famous "crime of '92," when all the players were released in midseason and signed over again at salaries from 30 to 60 per cent lower to save the magnates from sure bankruptcy—so they then claimed.

There is one thing that puzzles the outsider in this war of extermination more than anything else. All summer long the National league has had agents out at big expense offering huge salaries and bonuses to American league players to sign National league contracts. The natural question is, "What's the use?" If the National league's declarations are true that the young league is on its last legs and toppling on the verge of bankruptcy, why all this generosity toward the players whom the National can have for the asking as soon as the American league dies the speedy and natural death so freely predicted by Brush and others?

The American Association.

The season just closed has been a successful one for the American Baseball association despite the prediction that as an "outlaw" organization it would be a failure.

Every team in the association is at least even with the game, and two or three have piled up a satisfactory surplus. The quality of ball played has been of a high standard for the most part.

The Louisville and Indianapolis teams have been the chief money makers, for since the middle of the season they have about evenly divided the honor of heading the percentage table. During the final series between these two teams in Indianapolis the attendance was 25,000.

Manager Tebeau of Louisville says his club has made $10,000, but it is generally believed that $20,000 would come nearer being the true figure.

The Indianapolis club is also a winner, but not to any such extent as Louisville. Manager Watkins admits he is a slight winner. Up to the middle of the season, when Indianapolis reached first place, the team was a loser.

Louisville had the highest priced team in the association and drew big crowds at home from the first.

The Columbus Slump.

Columbus, O., started out with a good team, but the discipline became lax, due to the interference of the owners with Manager Grim. The slump occurred in the middle of the season, and up to that time the team had drawn well. Milwaukee may not have broken even owing to the competition by the Western league. Kansas City receipts were also cut by competition.

Louisville's success has been due largely to its hard hitters, while Indianapolis depends on its fielding and pitchers. The Indianapolis team work has been superior.

Kansas City had the next to the highest priced team, but has been a disappointment.

Milwaukee's players also failed to deliver the goods, such men as Dungan and Algy McBride failing to hit. Outfielder Holman was the best man on the team and is said to be billed for the big league.

Kellum was the best pitcher on Indianapolis' staff, his strong point being his absolute control. The veteran Killen was next in point of effectiveness. Captain Fox at second for Indianapolis was the most marvelous fielder in the association.

Louisville has in First Base Man Ganzel and Kerwin, a general utility man, sure winners. Report says Pitcher Flaherty will be with Cincinnati next year.

Kansas City's salvation was in Pitchers Gibson and Wolfe and Catcher Beville, who has signed with New

OUR NATIVE TREES

... By ...

THOMAS H. MACBRIDE, Ph. D.,

VI.—Forests and Man.

JUST what the forests of the world stand for, what they signify in the general economy of the lands of earth, has long been a disputed problem. Of course we all know something of the economic value of forest products—we can all at least use wood as fuel—but that the forest plays also its part in the great economies, in the equilibrium of nature's delicate adjustments, we less appreciate. Indeed it is very hard for even the wisest to understand what the equilibrium of nature is. We know not exactly how it has been brought about and too often discover its existence only by the catastrophe which follows close upon some ill advised bit of interference. Nevertheless the problem of the forest is an earth problem second in importance to none other with which as intelligent men we have to deal, more difficult indeed than most because at once physiological and physical. Forests constitute great physical masses on the surface of the earth, and at the same time they are made up of living plants which as such affect the elements about them. There are those who contend that the very climate of the earth is modified by the presence of trees exhaling moisture, conditioning atmospheric heat, the distribution of electric currents, the chemical constitution of the air and soil, but our information in these particulars is less trustworthy, and we shall perhaps for the present keep within the limits of actual knowledge if we assert that trees associated in a forest affect more or less profoundly local conditions of climate and atmospheric change, whatever may be true of their wider and more farreaching influence.

The climate of the locality occupied by the forest or immediately contiguous to it is affected by the organic activity of the trees, but we do not know how or how much. The climatic effect of the forest as a purely physical object, a physical covering of the earth's surface, we can better estimate and understand. For instance, climate is largely a matter of temperature and moisture. Now, the presence of trees certainly greatly retards air currents, but air currents are the usual efficient agents of evaporation and falling temperature. It might seem incredible that forests of trees a hundred feet high or more should avail to check the movements of the great ocean of atmosphere above our heads, but we all know that it is a fact. Men and beasts are wont to take shelter behind a grove. In fact, in the deep woods the air may be perfectly quiet, there may be a great calm, while the storm wind roars and rides high above the treetops. In such case the atmosphere is of heat an almost perfect nonconductor. Caught amid the trunks and branches of the forest, it is comparable to the air entangled in the meshes of a coat of fur, almost impervious to heat or cold. This is the explanation of the western windbreak. A simple grove of trees makes the prairie habitable. Even the willow and the cottonwood and the despised box elder may bid defiance to the blizzard. On a wider scale groves and forests of greater extent may affect in different ways their immediate surroundings. There are scores of instances where the felling of the forest has changed entirely the climatic conditions of the locality, sometimes to such an extent as to modify the whole industry of the region. Such are the stories of the orange orchards and olive yards of southern France and northern Italy, where the path of the mistral seems to vary as the forests wax and wane. Many years ago Mr. Lapham published a paper on the "Transactions of the Wisconsin Agricultural Society," in which he showed that the wholesale destruction of the forests of Wisconsin had already modified the climate of many localities in so far as concerned the raising of fruit.

But, whatever may be the effect of the presence of woodland in matters of heat and cold, it is in relation to the second climatic factor, to moisture, that the forest is most positive and farreaching in influence and efficiency. Forests are great conservators of moisture—this, too, in a purely mechanical way. In summer they greatly retard evaporation, first, by checking the air currents, as we have seen, which would otherwise carry the moisture away, and, second, by their shadows shutting out the solar heat, which would otherwise speedily dry up, dissipate, any moisture that might have fallen. Trees, it is true, in the process of transpiration take from the soil and give off to the surrounding air an immense amount of water, though probably nothing like so much as has been supposed. Nevertheless in a forest the loss of water due to the life processes of the trees does not compare with the results of evaporation in the unprotected open. Every one must have noticed that woodland roads are muddy, very muddy, long after the highway that passes the open field has become perfectly dry. Indeed, road supervisors often make this an excuse for felling shade trees planted by generous landowners along the public way. Trees are cut down to make the road dry. So much for what happens in summer. In winter the same conditions are efficient to retain precipitation in the form of snow. The snow of the woodland is permitted neither to blow away nor to evaporate. The extent to which a coniferous forest, with its dense, persistent foliage, retains the snow is something phenomenal. The snows in the Minnesota pineries used to accumulate all winter and lie unthawed in June; the snows in the Sierras are sometimes fifteen feet in thickness, though perhaps slowly thawing all the time.

But there is still another way in which trees affect the retention of local moisture, and that is by the physical obstacles they oppose to surface drainage. The bodies of the trees, the fallen twigs and foliage with which they strew the ground, and myriad roots and rootlets with which they crowd the soil, all these things hinder the escape of water by process of ordinary drainage, hold it back and suffer a very slow departure, if it escapes at all. The forest sits on the hillside as a giant sponge. The rains and showers keep it forever saturated. It yields to the atmosphere moving about it some of its moisture, to be sure, but the greater part, led by gravitation, escapes at length slowly at the bottom of the hill.

The effect of all this upon the steadfast flow of springs and streams and even rivers has long ago been pointed out. The surplus water of the mountain side filters through roots and rocks and beds of sand or gravel, finally reaches an impervious layer and approaches the surface, there to become an unfailing source of spring or rivulet. The snows of winter linger long in the shadows of the trees, thawing slowly, yielding scarcely anything to drainage on the surface.

It is evident from the present argument that forests tend by their very nature to keep uniform the water supply in the region they affect. It is not always the amount of water a land receives that determines its fertility. It is rather the amount retained and used. So that even if we concede, as some people would have us do, that forests have little to do with the amount of rainfall in any case it is yet evident that a land with its proportion of woodland is likely to be more moist than one without. The moisture it receives is longer retained. The state of Iowa, for instance, enjoys perchance as much precipitation as it ever enjoyed. Nevertheless the state as a whole is much drier than it was thirty or forty years ago simply because ill advised agriculture is rapidly removing from all the streams their forest cover, is draining every lake and pond. The prairie slopes, trodden hard by the hoofs of ten thousand herds, shed rainwater like slated roofs, and much of the rainfall the state receives today is hurried as rapidly as possible to the sea.

But there is another particular in which the presence or absence of forest may profoundly affect the welfare of civilized men. This also is a matter of the purely mechanical or physical sort. Forests not only hold the air, the water, but they likewise hold the soil on which they stand. Where this is loose, sandy, gravelly or rocky the removal of the trees exposes it to an erosion which, as far as all human purposes are concerned, is often simply destruction. The best illustrations of this are seen in the older countries of the world. Thus in Asia Minor, in southern Europe, lands once the happy homes of millions are now desert; the hills are naked rocks, the uncovered framework of the world; the valleys are drifting sands. But Americans need by no means visit the old world to find ruin of this sort. In almost any of our older states the same thing can everywhere be seen. In northern Mississippi thousands of acres of land have been abandoned of the farmer, sold for taxes to the state, because ruined by erosion. Every river valley in the west shows the same disastrous condition in greater or less degree. In eastern Iowa, where the woods have been cleared from steep clay hills, these now exhibit great ravines and gullies, down which with every storm torrents of water carry loads of sand and gravel, at least of inferior soil, to cover the richer fields and meadows spread below.

When a country loses its forest cover, especially from collecting basins, from hills, ridges and mountain sides, the loss is therefore at least threefold—it loses its timber supply; it loses its water supply, at least in regularity; it loses large portions of its tillable soil, swept away or buried by the force of uncontrollable torrents.

The bearing of all this is plain. Especially is it interesting in view of our present effort to reclaim our western arid lands, to utilize the scant supplies of water that reach our interior mountain ridges. Artificial dams encounter their greatest hazard in the flood. Nothing known to man so holds back a deluge as does a forest. It is thought the Johnstown calamity might have been averted by more regard to doctrines such as these, and the effort is now making by planting trees to prevent the recurrence of the disaster. The fact is the forests are actually part and parcel in nature's equilibrium after all. They are, as we saw in a preceding chapter, the result of geologic changes long gone by.

Making and Curing Dimples.

A pretty, lifelike dimple can be made to appear on a lady's cheek by means of a specially designed knife with a very small and very sharp blade, a daintily tiny, keen edged, silvered scoop and a very fine needle.

A small, straight incision is first made in the flesh. The little scoop is then used to remove a small portion of the underlying fat, while the sewing together with the needle the edges of the cut completes the operation. In a day or two the stitches are taken out, within a week the wound being usually entirely healed, leaving the becoming little depression in the surface of the skin that is called a dimple.

It is not often that a woman desires the removal of a natural dimple, but occasionally a man who considers the mark to be a badge of effeminacy desires to get rid of it. Instead of removing the superfluous fat from beneath the surface a small portion of the skin is cut away. The edges of the dimple are drawn together with stitches, the incision heals and the depression disappears.

Fighting Lizards.

The ring necked lizard of the Arizona deserts is not a mere devourer of weaklings. He is always ready to fight, whether he is challenged by another or cornered by a man. When brought to bay in some hole, he opens his jaws and dashes bravely out, snapping at everything which opposes him, and so fierce and sudden is his rush that it is impossible to face it without flinching. By holding two of these lizards loosely by the small of the back and allowing their heads to clash as they struggle to escape, one may be able to induce combats such as must occur every day in the desperate lizard world.

Forgetting that they were captives, they would seize upon each other and vent their thwarted rage to the utmost in a fight which, but for timely interference, would doubtless lead to the death of one or the other. Such bull dog pugnacity is rather unlooked for in lizards, but a student of character could easily read in the set jaw and pouched throat of this species the signs of fighting blood.—Country Life In America.

Billiard Terms.

"What are the principal shots in billiards?" asked the fair young damsel of the wise young man. "The kiss, the follow, the bank and the draw," he replied. "How lovely!" she exclaimed. "It is almost like a courtship. First the lover gets a kiss, then he follows the girl all about and then"—

"And then," interrupts the man who aspires to pessimism—"and then they get married and he goes to the bank and draws, for that is his cue, unless he wises to be frozen." (For the benefit of the unsuspecting reader, adds the Baltimore American, we will state that "cue" and "frozen" also are billiard terms. There are still more than might be worked into the little jeu d'esprit, such as "scratch," "break," "drive," "tip," "table," "run," etc., but lack of space prevents carrying the theme to the bitter end.)

AND MANY OTHERS

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

JUST what the forests of the world stand for, what they signify in the general economy of the lands of earth, has long been a disputed problem. Of course we all know something of the economic value of forest products—we can all at least use wood as fuel—but that the forest plays also its part in the great economies, in the equilibrium of nature's delicate adjustments, we less appreciate. Indeed it is very hard for even the wisest to understand what the equilibrium of nature is. We know not exactly how it has been brought about and too often discover its existence only by the catastrophe which follows close upon some ill advised bit of interference. Nevertheless the problem of the forest is an earth problem second in importance to none other with which as intelligent men we have to deal, more difficult indeed than most because at once physiological and physical. Forests constitute great physical masses on the surface of the earth, and at the same time they are made up of living plants which as such affect the elements about them. There are those who contend that the very climate of the earth is modified by the presence of trees exhaling moisture, conditioning atmospheric heat, the distribution of electric currents, the chemical constitution of the air and soil, but our information in these particulars is less trustworthy, and we shall perhaps for the present keep within the limits of actual knowledge if we assert that trees associated in a forest affect more or less profoundly local conditions of climate and atmospheric change, whatever may be true of their wider and more farreaching influence.

The climate of the locality occupied by the forest or immediately contiguous to it is affected by the organic activity of the trees, but we do not know how or how much. The climatic effect of the forest as a purely physical object, a physical covering of the earth's surface, we can better estimate and understand. For instance, climate is largely a matter of temperature and moisture. Now, the presence of trees certainly greatly retards air currents, but air currents are the usual efficient agents of evaporation and falling temperature. It might seem incredible that forests of trees a hundred feet high or more should avail to check the movements of the great ocean of atmosphere above our heads, but we all know that it is a fact. Men and beasts are wont to take shelter behind a grove. In fact, in the deep woods the air may be perfectly quiet, there may be a great calm, while the storm wind roars and rides high above the treetops. In such case the atmosphere is of heat an almost perfect nonconductor. Caught amid the trunks and branches of the forest, it is comparable to the air entangled in the meshes of a coat of fur, almost impervious to heat or cold. This is the explanation of the western windbreak. A simple grove of trees makes the prairie habitable. Even the willow and the cottonwood and the despised box elder may bid defiance to the blizzard. On a wider scale groves and forests of greater extent may affect in different ways their immediate surroundings. There are scores of instances where the felling of the forest has changed entirely the climatic conditions of the locality, sometimes to such an extent as to modify the whole industry of the region. Such are the stories of the orange orchards and olive yards of southern France and northern Italy, where the path of the mistral seems to vary as the forests wax and wane. Many years ago Mr. Lapham published a paper on the "Transactions of the Wisconsin Agricultural Society," in which he showed that the wholesale destruction of the forests of Wisconsin had already modified the climate of many localities in so far as concerned the raising of fruit.

But, whatever may be the effect of the presence of woodland in matters of heat and cold, it is in relation to the second climatic factor, to moisture, that the forest is most positive and farreaching in influence and efficiency. Forests are great conservators of moisture—this, too, in a purely mechanical way. In summer they greatly retard evaporation, first, by checking the air currents, as we have seen, which would otherwise carry the moisture away, and, second, by their shadows shutting out the solar heat, which would otherwise speedily dry up, dissipate, any moisture that might have fallen. Trees, it is true, in the process of transpiration take from the soil and give off to the surrounding air an immense amount of water, though probably nothing like so much as has been supposed. Nevertheless in a forest the loss of water due to the life processes of the trees does not compare with the results of evaporation in the unprotected open. Every one must have noticed that woodland roads are muddy, very muddy, long after the highway that passes the open field has become perfectly dry. Indeed, road supervisors often make this an excuse for felling shade trees planted by generous landowners along the public way. Trees are cut down to make the road dry. So much for what happens in summer. In winter the same conditions are efficient to retain precipitation in the form of snow. The snow of the woodland is permitted neither to blow away nor to evaporate. The extent to which a coniferous forest, with its dense, persistent foliage, retains the snow is something phenomenal. The snows in the Minnesota pineries used to accumulate all winter and lie unthawed in June; the snows in the Sierras are sometimes fifteen feet in thickness, though perhaps slowly thawing all the time.

But there is still another way in which trees affect the retention of local moisture, and that is by the physical obstacles they oppose to surface drainage. The bodies of the trees, the fallen twigs and foliage with which they strew the ground, and myriad roots and rootlets with which they crowd the soil, all these things hinder the escape of water by process of ordinary drainage, hold it back and suffer a very slow departure, if it escapes at all. The forest sits on the hillside as a giant sponge. The rains and showers keep it forever saturated. It yields to the atmosphere moving about it some of its moisture, to be sure, but the greater part, led by gravitation, escapes at length slowly at the bottom of the hill.

The effect of all this upon the steadfast flow of springs and streams and even rivers has long ago been pointed out. The surplus water of the mountain side filters through roots and rocks and beds of sand or gravel, finally reaches an impervious layer and approaches the surface, there to become an unfailing source of spring or rivulet. The snows of winter linger long in the shadows of the trees, thawing slowly, yielding scarcely anything to drainage on the surface.

It is evident from the present argument that forests tend by their very nature to keep uniform the water supply in the region they affect. It is not always the amount of water a land receives that determines its fertility. It is rather the amount retained and used. So that even if we concede, as some people would have us do, that forests have little to do with the amount of rainfall in any case it is yet evident that a land with its proportion of woodland is likely to be more moist than one without. The moisture it receives is longer retained. The state of Iowa, for instance, enjoys perchance as much precipitation as it ever enjoyed. Nevertheless the state as a whole is much drier than it was thirty or forty years ago simply because ill advised agriculture is rapidly removing from all the streams their forest cover, is draining every lake and pond. The prairie slopes, trodden hard by the hoofs of ten thousand herds, shed rainwater like slated roofs, and much of the rainfall the state receives today is hurried as rapidly as possible to the sea.

But there is another particular in which the presence or absence of forest may profoundly affect the welfare of civilized men. This also is a matter of the purely mechanical or physical sort. Forests not only hold the air, the water, but they likewise hold the soil on which they stand. Where this is loose, sandy, gravelly or rocky the removal of the trees exposes it to an erosion which, as far as all human purposes are concerned, is often simply destruction. The best illustrations of this are seen in the older countries of the world. Thus in Asia Minor, in southern Europe, lands once the happy homes of millions are now desert; the hills are naked rocks, the uncovered framework of the world; the valleys are drifting sands. But Americans need by no means visit the old world to find ruin of this sort. In almost any of our older states the same thing can everywhere be seen. In northern Mississippi thousands of acres of land have been abandoned of the farmer, sold for taxes to the state, because ruined by erosion. Every river valley in the west shows the same disastrous condition in greater or less degree. In eastern Iowa, where the woods have been cleared from steep clay hills, these now exhibit great ravines and gullies, down which with every storm torrents of water carry loads of sand and gravel, at least of inferior soil, to cover the richer fields and meadows spread below.

When a country loses its forest cover, especially from collecting basins, from hills, ridges and mountain sides, the loss is therefore at least threefold—it loses its timber supply; it loses its water supply, at least in regularity; it loses large portions of its tillable soil, swept away or buried by the force of uncontrollable torrents.

The bearing of all this is plain. Especially is it interesting in view of our present effort to reclaim our western arid lands, to utilize the scant supplies of water that reach our interior mountain ridges. Artificial dams encounter their greatest hazard in the flood. Nothing known to man so holds back a deluge as does a forest. It is thought the Johnstown calamity might have been averted by more regard to doctrines such as these, and the effort is now making by planting trees to prevent the recurrence of the disaster. The fact is the forests are actually part and parcel in nature's equilibrium after all. They are, as we saw in a preceding chapter, the result of geologic changes long gone by.

Making and Curing Dimples.

A pretty, lifelike dimple can be made to appear on a lady's cheek by means of a specially designed knife with a very small and very sharp blade, a daintily tiny, keen edged, silvered scoop and a very fine needle.

A small, straight incision is first made in the flesh. The little scoop is then used to remove a small portion of the underlying fat, while the sewing together with the needle the edges of the cut completes the operation. In a day or two the stitches are taken out, within a week the wound being usually entirely healed, leaving the becoming little depression in the surface of the skin that is called a dimple.

It is not often that a woman desires the removal of a natural dimple, but occasionally a man who considers the mark to be a badge of effeminacy desires to get rid of it. Instead of removing the superfluous fat from beneath the surface a small portion of the skin is cut away. The edges of the dimple are drawn together with stitches, the incision heals and the depression disappears.

Fighting Lizards.

The ring necked lizard of the Arizona deserts is not a mere devourer of weaklings. He is always ready to fight, whether he is challenged by another or cornered by a man. When brought to bay in some hole, he opens his jaws and dashes bravely out, snapping at everything which opposes him, and so fierce and sudden is his rush that it is impossible to face it without flinching. By holding two of these lizards loosely by the small of the back and allowing their heads to clash as they struggle to escape, one may be able to induce combats such as must occur every day in the desperate lizard world.

Forgetting that they were captives, they would seize upon each other and vent their thwarted rage to the utmost in a fight which, but for timely interference, would doubtless lead to the death of one or the other. Such bull dog pugnacity is rather unlooked for in lizards, but a student of character could easily read in the set jaw and pouched throat of this species the signs of fighting blood.—Country Life In America.

Billiard Terms.

"What are the principal shots in billiards?" asked the fair young damsel of the wise young man. "The kiss, the follow, the bank and the draw," he replied. "How lovely!" she exclaimed. "It is almost like a courtship. First the lover gets a kiss, then he follows the girl all about and then"—

"And then," interrupts the man who aspires to pessimism—"and then they get married and he goes to the bank and draws, for that is his cue, unless he wises to be frozen." (For the benefit of the unsuspecting reader, adds the Baltimore American, we will state that "cue" and "frozen" also are billiard terms. There are still more than might be worked into the little jeu d'esprit, such as "scratch," "break," "drive," "tip," "table," "run," etc., but lack of space prevents carrying the theme to the bitter end.)

AND MANY OTHERS

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

MOB LYNCHES NEGRO

Governor Had Ordered Out Militia to Protect the Rapist but His Instructions Were Received Too Late. Crowd Quietly Dispersed.

Sullivan, Ind., Nov. 21.—James Dillard, the Kentucky negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Mary Davis, of Sullivan county, and Mrs. John Lemon, of Knox county, on Tuesday last, was hanged to a telegraph pole one mile east of John Lemon's farm, at 8 o'clock last night by a mob.

Dillard was captured at Lawrenceville, Ills., late Wednesday, after a battle with the town marshal, during which the negro was shot three times and severely wounded. He was then taken to Robinson, Ills., for safe keeping. Late yesterday afternoon the negro was brought to Sullivan in a wagon by the sheriff and his deputies for further identification. A mob of 40 or 50 farmers, heavily armed, took the prisoner from the officers. The negro was taken to the homes of both his victims and by them was identified. From the home of Mrs. Lemon, 10 miles east of here, the crowd started back to Sullivan with the prisoner, but one mile east of the Lemon farm a rope was thrown over the arm of a telegraph pole and the negro was hanged.

The governor had ordered out the Vincennes militia company to protect the negro, but his instructions were received too late.

After hanging the negro the mob quietly dispersed. It was composed mostly of farmers, but was largely augmented by citizens of Sullivan, Oaktown and other towns of this county.

SPECIAL POLICEMAN KILLED.

Surprised a Gang Looting Freight Cars and Was Shot.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Charles F. Dillon, a special policeman employed by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, was shot and instantly killed early yesterday in the yards of the railroad company while endeavoring to prevent the looting of a freight car by a gang of thieves. C. H. Yoran, a switchman, employed by the same company, was arrested shortly after the shooting and in his possession were found a number of broken seals.

After the capture of Yoran, Captain Kelly secured evidence which, he says, brought to light the fact that a conspiracy has existed among employes of the railroad company to rob the cars. Soon after the arrest of Yoran detectives also arrested Charles Watts, engineer, and William Melville, fireman. They were locked up. Watts is a brother of the assistant yardmaster. According to the police, Watts told them that for a long time several railroad employes had been engaged in a conspiracy to rob the company. He mentioned himself, Melville and Yoran.

Smallpox Increasing.

Harrisburg, Nov. 21.—The state board of health held its fifty-third regular meeting yesterday in the senate chamber. The annual report of Dr. Benjamin Lee of Philadelphia, secretary of the board, showed that there were 87 points in the state where smallpox exists and that the increase in the number of cases since Aug. 1 has been over 50 per cent monthly. Most of the cases are in the western and southern counties of Pennsylvania. Dr. Lee also reported that diphtheria exists in six localities in the state; scarlet fever in three and typhoid fever in three.

Freight Congestion Felt at Shamokin.

Shamokin, Pa., Nov. 21.—The effect of the freight congestion which the Pennsylvania railroad is experiencing on account of a shortage of locomotives and cars was first felt here yesterday, when a number of collieries were shut down because of a lack of cars. Several train crews were suspended and some locomotives were shipped to the west.

150 Persons Reported Drowned.

Vienna, Nov. 21.—A Bucharest newspaper publishes an unconfirmed report that the steamer Bosnia, belonging to the Florio and Rubattino company, loaded with cereals, has foundered in a gale in the Black sea, off Sulina, at the mouth of the Danube. One hundred and fifty persons are reported to have perished.

Admiral Schley at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Rear Admiral Schley and party arrived from Kansas City this morning and were tendered a breakfast at the Hamilton club by W. B. Washburn and Edwin A. Munger. There were present at the breakfast a number of the club members and other prominent citizens.

A Bachelor's Cost of Living.

If the average bachelor, with a millionaire's income, not the fellow who goes in for extravagant fads, but the man who maintains good social position and who entertains liberally, were to balance up his personal account for the year, it might contain these charges without comparative extravagance:

House or apartment and service	$10,000
Valet	500
Clubs	1,000
Restaurant and entertaining	12,000
Clothing	3,000
Automobiles	5,000
Chartered yacht	10,000
Cards	5,000
Horses, coach, grooms, etc	10,000
Total	$59,500

These are the more or less fixed items of expense, and any one who has ever attempted to keep a personal account knows that when you have put down the necessary expenses you may add almost as much for the thousand and one things that may be grouped conveniently under the head of "incidental expenses." In a general way it may be said that the millionaire bachelor who spends from $75,000 to $100,000 a year is living his life in accordance with the demands of the time on men of wealth.—Ainslee's.

A Catch Bet.

Turn round, and, with your back to the table, ask somebody to throw the dice. Then tell the person who threw them to double the number of the spots on the die on the left, and keep the number to himself. Tell him to add five, then multiply by five. To this figure have him add the number of spots on the die in the middle and multiply the product by ten.

Then ask him to multiply the number of spots on the third die and give you the aggregate sum. From the amount subtract mentally 250, and the remainder will show in the three figures the number of spots on each of the three dice. For instance, take three dice. Their numbers are three, five and two. Double the one on the left—five plus five equals ten. Add five, equals fifteen. Multiply by five, equals seventy-five. Add the number of spots on the die in the middle, three, equals seventy-eight. Multiply by ten, equals 780. Add number of spots on the third die, two, equals 782. Subtract 250 and 532 remains, which are numbers on the dice.

PHYSICIANS TESTIFY.

Say the Occupatior of a Mine Worker Is Very Unhealthy and Shortens Life.

Principal Ills Miners' Asthma, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. One Man Coughed Up Coal Dust 15 Years After Leaving Mines.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The economic and socialogical features of the anthracite coal industry and the effect employment in and about the mines has upon the health of the mine workers were the principal things brought before the arbitration commission yesterday by the attorneys of each side of the controversy. While there was an entire absence of oratory or brilliant cross-examination, which marked the proceedings during the last few days, the cross-examination nevertheless closely held the attention of the commissioners and they gained much information on the several features touched upon by witnesses.

The afternoon session was particularly interesting, because it brought out much expert testimony on the part of the health of the mine workers. The physicians who have practiced in Scranton and Wilkesbarre took the stand for the miners and in substance testified that the occupation of a mine worker was very unhealthy and shortened his life. One physician, Dr. Frank P. Lenahan, of Wilkesbarre, who says he has had a long experience among mine workers, testified that 90 per cent of the men who worked in the mine are anaemic. The health is impoverished and their general condition is below par, thus decreasing their earning power. The principal ills suffered by the miners, the physicians said, were the miners' asthma, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. The miners' asthma comes from coal dust, powder smoke and vitiated air. Dr. John O'Malley, of Scranton, said that at postmortems he had seen miners' lungs as black as anthracite itself, and Dr. Lenahan testified he had personal knowledge of a man coughing up coal dust nine years after he left the mines. He said he had information that a man had coughed up coal dust 15 years after he had left the mines It was also stated that 90 per cent of the miners who reach the age of 50 years are afflicted with some form of rheumatism.

The cross-examination of Rev. Peter Roberts, D. D., of Mahanoy City, Pa., who has studied the anthracite coal industry and written a book on the subject, left the witness stand shortly after the noon recess. He began his testimony Wednesday. Copious extracts from his book were read and placed on record. Ex-Congressman Simon P. Wolverton, counsel for the Reading company, read much of the matter pertaining to violence in the 1900 strike, and also read articles written by Mr. Roberts during the progress of the late contest, which he described in strong language the acts of violence, intimidation and boycotting committed during that suspension. His articles spoke of some of these acts as "brutal outrages," and he also branded the union's action in calling out the steam men in Juneas "foolhardy." In explaining his articles Dr. Roberts said that he did not wish to infer that the organization was responsible for all the lawlessness committed. The doctor said Wednesday that newspaper accounts exaggerated the amount of lawlessness in the coal regions, but Mr. Wolverton's reading of Dr. Robert's description of serious acts of violence and boycotting afforded much amusement for the attorney for the coal companies.

Dr. Roberts gave it as his opinion that attempts to have non-union men form a separate organization instigated by parties opposed to organized labor. In attempting to show that carelessness of the miner contributes materially to the dangerousness of his occupation. Chairman Gray interposed with the remak that a margin of carelessness incident to human nature must be taken into account when estimating the dangerousness of any hazardous occupation.

Mr. Wilcox consumed the greater part of the time of the afternoon session in reading extracts from the book of Dr. Roberts on the anthracite coal industry. Occasionally he asked a question, and, replying to one, Dr. Roberts said that an established minimum wage would necessarily enable a man to live as a man.

Answering a question by Commissioner Parker, Dr. Roberts said that of the 64 children employed in the Olyphant Breaker near this city, 50 per cent were under 14 years of age, and had others dependent on them.

The health of miners was still under investigation when the commission adjourned until today.

The commissioners were in conference last night until almost midnight. Among the matters discussed was that of having both sides present evidence more rapidly than it is now being done.

A Score.

Twenty is called a score because it represents the whole man, ten fingers and ten toes. Etymologically it means a cut or mark. In very early times, when men could not count beyond twenty, or "one man," it was usual to cut a notch in a stick and begin again, and so it went on, one man, two men, and so on. This is why sheep are still counted by the score. Now, a tally (French taille, cut or nicked) means an account kept by means of a notched stick, and until the end of the eighteenth century such sticks were given as exchequer receipts, accompanied by a written document. This was also the usual way of keeping accounts in the inns of the middle ages. The number of drinks or meals a customer had were scored against him on what was called a tally stick, and when it reached twenty, or a "whole man," he was expected to pay. In some English country inns scores are still kept on a slate, four chalk marks and one across—five—and four of these make twenty, or a score.

Freaks of the Tariff.

The following amusing details of the freaks of the custom house are told in the Munchener Zeitung: A German gentleman returning from southwest Africa brought with him a tiny monkey weighing about two pounds. From Tanga to Genoa the animal was conveyed gratis. Thence to the Swiss frontier 15d. was charged on it as "a bird." The St. Gothard railway officials, however, viewed it as "a dog," and charged 7s., while on the Eastern Swiss railway it became a mere "package," liable to 8d. Through Baden and Wurttemberg the animal was passed free, but at Stuttgart it again became "a dog" and cost another 17d.

Lacked Heart.

"Once there was a lawyer out near Galesburg," said an Illinois congressman, "who made a brilliant defense in a certain case. Men praised his effort. 'Will he make his mark for ability as an advocate?' some one asked. 'No,' replied the veteran lawyer. 'His ability begins here at the Adam's apple and extends upward. He must have something under his left breast.'" The congressman cited this as an example why some speeches fail in the house of representatives.—Washington Post

A Modest Request.

To judge from an incident reported in the Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune, the department of agriculture sometimes appears from a distance like a big department store. During the season when members of congress send out seeds one of the packages found its way back to the sender, accompanied by a note from the farmer to whom it had been addressed.

"My dear sir," wrote the farmer, "I appreciate your good will in sending the seeds, but my eldest daughter, Matilda, is going to marry the doctor down to the village next month, and wife and I think of giving up the farm and going there to live. If we do, the seeds won't be much good, as we shan't have a garden; so if you could change them for some stockings (No. 9) and some handkerchiefs or a nice spring bonnet for Matilda I would be much obliged."

Minute Parts of a Watch.

MOB LYNCHES NEGRO

James Dillard, Criminal Assailof Two White Women, Is Hanged by Farmers.

Governor Had Ordered Out Militia to Protect the Rapist but His Instructions Were Received Too Late. Crowd Quietly Dispersed.

Sullivan, Ind., Nov. 21.—James Dillard, the Kentucky negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Mary Davis, of Sullivan county, and Mrs. John Lemon, of Knox county, on Tuesday last, was hanged to a telegraph pole one mile east of John Lemon's farm, at 8 o'clock last night by a mob.

Dillard was captured at Lawrenceville, Ills., late Wednesday, after a battle with the town marshal, during which the negro was shot three times and severely wounded. He was then taken to Robinson, Ills., for safe keeping. Late yesterday afternoon the negro was brought to Sullivan in a wagon by the sheriff and his deputies for further identification. A mob of 40 or 50 farmers, heavily armed, took the prisoner from the officers. The negro was taken to the homes of both his victims and by them was identified. From the home of Mrs. Lemon, 10 miles east of here, the crowd started back to Sullivan with the prisoner, but one mile east of the Lemon farm a rope was thrown over the arm of a telegraph pole and the negro was hanged.

The governor had ordered out the Vincennes militia company to protect the negro, but his instructions were received too late.

After hanging the negro the mob quietly dispersed. It was composed mostly of farmers, but was largely augmented by citizens of Sullivan, Oaktown and other towns of this county.

SPECIAL POLICEMAN KILLED.

Surprised a Gang Looting Freight Cars and Was Shot.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Charles F. Dillon, a special policeman employed by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, was shot and instantly killed early yesterday in the yards of the railroad company while endeavoring to prevent the looting of a freight car by a gang of thieves. C. H. Yoran, a switchman, employed by the same company, was arrested shortly after the shooting and in his possession were found a number of broken seals.

After the capture of Yoran, Captain Kelly secured evidence which, he says, brought to light the fact that a conspiracy has existed among employes of the railroad company to rob the cars. Soon after the arrest of Yoran detectives also arrested Charles Watts, engineer, and William Melville, fireman. They were locked up. Watts is a brother of the assistant yardmaster. According to the police, Watts told them that for a long time several railroad employes had been engaged in a conspiracy to rob the company. He mentioned himself, Melville and Yoran.

Smallpox Increasing.

Harrisburg, Nov. 21.—The state board of health held its fifty-third regular meeting yesterday in the senate chamber. The annual report of Dr. Benjamin Lee of Philadelphia, secretary of the board, showed that there were 87 points in the state where smallpox exists and that the increase in the number of cases since Aug. 1 has been over 50 per cent monthly. Most of the cases are in the western and southern counties of Pennsylvania. Dr. Lee also reported that diphtheria exists in six localities in the state; scarlet fever in three and typhoid fever in three.

Freight Congestion Felt at Shamokin.

Shamokin, Pa., Nov. 21.—The effect of the freight congestion which the Pennsylvania railroad is experiencing on account of a shortage of locomotives and cars was first felt here yesterday, when a number of collieries were shut down because of a lack of cars. Several train crews were suspended and some locomotives were shipped to the west.

A Bachelor's Cost of Living.

If the average bachelor, with a millionaire's income, not the fellow who goes in for extravagant fads, but the man who maintains good social position and who entertains liberally, were to balance up his personal account for the year, it might contain these charges without comparative extravagance:

House or apartment and service	$10,000
Clubs	1,000
Automobiles	5,000
Total	$59,500

These are the more or less fixed items of expense, and any one who has ever attempted to keep a personal account knows that when you have put down the necessary expenses you may add almost as much for the thousand and one things that may be grouped conveniently under the head of "incidental expenses." In a general way it may be said that the millionaire bachelor who spends from $75,000 to $100,000 a year is living his life in accordance with the demands of the time on men of wealth.—Ainslee's.

A Catch Bet.

Turn round, and, with your back to the table, ask somebody to throw the dice. Then tell the person who threw them to double the number of the spots on the die on the left, and keep the number to himself. Tell him to add five, then multiply by five. To this figure have him add the number of spots on the die in the middle and multiply the product by ten.

Then ask him to multiply the number of spots on the third die and give you the aggregate sum. From the amount subtract mentally 250, and the remainder will show in the three figures the number of spots on each of the three dice. For instance, take three dice. Their numbers are three, five and two. Double the one on the left—five plus five equals ten. Add five, equals fifteen. Multiply by five, equals seventy-five. Add the number of spots on the die in the middle, three, equals seventy-eight. Multiply by ten, equals 780. Add number of spots on the third die, two, equals 782. Subtract 250 and 532 remains, which are numbers on the dice.

PHYSICIANS TESTIFY.

Principal Ills Miners' Asthma, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. One Man Coughed Up Coal Dust 15 Years After Leaving Mines.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The economic and socialogical features of the anthracite coal industry and the effect employment in and about the mines has upon the health of the mine workers were the principal things brought before the arbitration commission yesterday by the attorneys of each side of the controversy. While there was an entire absence of oratory or brilliant cross-examination, which marked the proceedings during the last few days, the cross-examination nevertheless closely held the attention of the commissioners and they gained much information on the several features touched upon by witnesses.

The afternoon session was particularly interesting, because it brought out much expert testimony on the part of the health of the mine workers. The physicians who have practiced in Scranton and Wilkesbarre took the stand for the miners and in substance testified that the occupation of a mine worker was very unhealthy and shortened his life. One physician, Dr. Frank P. Lenahan, of Wilkesbarre, who says he has had a long experience among mine workers, testified that 90 per cent of the men who worked in the mine are anaemic. The health is impoverished and their general condition is below par, thus decreasing their earning power. The principal ills suffered by the miners, the physicians said, were the miners' asthma, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. The miners' asthma comes from coal dust, powder smoke and vitiated air. Dr. John O'Malley, of Scranton, said that at postmortems he had seen miners' lungs as black as anthracite itself, and Dr. Lenahan testified he had personal knowledge of a man coughing up coal dust nine years after he left the mines. He said he had information that a man had coughed up coal dust 15 years after he had left the mines. It was also stated that 90 per cent of the miners who reach the age of 50 years are afflicted with some form of rheumatism.

The cross-examination of Rev. Peter Roberts, D. D., of Mahanoy City, Pa., who has studied the anthracite coal industry and written a book on the subject, left the witness stand shortly after the noon recess. He began his testimony Wednesday. Copious extracts from his book were read and placed on record. Ex-Congressman Simon P. Wolverton, counsel for the Reading company, read much of the matter pertaining to violence in the 1900 strike, and also read articles written by Mr. Roberts during the progress of the late contest, which he described in strong language the acts of violence, intimidation and boycotting committed during that suspension. His articles spoke of some of these acts as "brutal outrages," and he also branded the union's action in calling out the steam men in Juneas "foolhardy." In explaining his articles Dr. Roberts said that he did not wish to infer that the organization was responsible for all the lawlessness committed. The doctor said Wednesday that newspaper accounts exaggerated the amount of lawlessness in the coal regions, but Mr. Wolverton's reading of Dr. Robert's description of serious acts of violence and boycotting afforded much amusement for the attorney for the coal companies.

Dr. Roberts gave it as his opinion that attempts to have non-union men form a separate organization instigated by parties opposed to organized labor. In attempting to show that carelessness of the miner contributes materially to the dangerousness of his occupation. Chairman Gray interposed with the remak that a margin of carelessness incident to human nature must be taken into account when estimating the dangerousness of any hazardous occupation.

Mr. Wilcox consumed the greater part of the time of the afternoon session in reading extracts from the book of Dr. Roberts on the anthracite coal industry. Occasionally he asked a question, and, replying to one, Dr. Roberts said that an established minimum wage would necessarily enable a man to live as a man.

Answering a question by Commissioner Parker, Dr. Roberts said that of the 64 children employed in the Olyphant breaker near this city, 50 per cent were under 14 years of age, and had others dependent on them.

The health of miners was still under investigation when the commission adjourned until today.

The commissioners were in conference last night until almost midnight. Among the matters discussed was that of having both sides present evidence more rapidly than it is now being done.

THE MAIL BAG ROBBERS MAY YET BE CAPTURED THROUGH A RECENT CLUE

There came to light this morning evidence which may result in the bringing to justice of the robbers who looted the mail bag containing checks, postal orders and other valuable papers representing thousands of dollars from the C. & P. platform on the night of October 6, the startling account of which was exclusively published in the News Review.

Both the local officers and the secret service men assigned to the case have worked untiringly, not leaving a stone unturned in an effort to locate the guilty parties or discover a clue which would result in the apprehension of them. It leaks out today that the men who stole the valuable pouch are right in East Liverpool and have not been out of the city at any time during the past two months. They are seen on the streets every day and are well known local characters. They are industrious men, each being an employe in a local pottery. How many of them there are connected with the crime is not positively known, but the work was completed by at least two individuals, and it is possible that there were four implicated to a certain degree. One, who, from all appearances, engineered the robbery in strict accordance with his plans and wishes, lives on lower Broadway.

It was through a conversation heard by the head of another family living under the same roof that the evidence was secured. The informant, who refuses to allow his name to be published, states that one night of a recent date the following was heard accidentally coming from the room where one of the men lives:

"I dare you to tell that on me. You know that I know enuogh about you to land you behind prison bars. If you think for a minute that I will not tell all I know about you men stealing that mail bag, if you open your mouth about me, you are badly mistaken."

The person who happened to hear the above remarks says that they were uttered by a woman to her husband. After giving vent to the threatening language the woman became

EXPERTS IN HANDWRITING UTTERLY AT VARIANCE IN THE OPINIONS GIVEN

A Pittsburg Chirographic Authority Sees No Evidence That Kelly Wrote White-cap Letters.

Lisbon, November 21.—(Special)—The examination of witnesses in the Kelly-McPherson damage suit, continued this morning. The attorneys hope to get the case to the jury today, but hardly expect to get a verdict before tomorrow.

A point blank difference of opinion as to the authorship of the white cap notices was brought out at the trial in the testimony of the hand writing experts. William J. Kinsley, the New York expert, who was on the stand for the defense yesterday, was an interesting witness. Mr. Kinsley has been called in some of most noted cases in the country among them the Molineux and the Rice will case in New York. He contended that the characteristics of individuals manifest themselves in peculiarities of hand writing as well as in personal appearances and other respects. On this basis he explained in detail why he believed after comparing the white cap letters with Kelley's writing that they were written by the same hand.

George W. Wood, a Pittsburg expert, summoned by the plaintiff was present and heard Kinsley's testimony. On the stand this morning he said, after a very careful comparison and investigation of the anonymous writings, with specimens of Kelly's writing he found nothing whatever to justify him in the belief that they were written by the same hand. He then went on to say that while he recognized in Mr. Kinsley an able and conscientious gentleman, in his opinion he had failed to observe some important and salient features. Mr. Wood compared the formation of certain characteristics which he says are usually overlooked by writers of anonymous literature, including the space between words in which it was shown that the condition in the two handwritings are opposite.

After Mr. Kinsley's testimony yesterday the outlook seemed dark for Kelly, but Mr. Wood's testimony this morning placed the case in a new light. The latter is also recognized as an eminent authority on hand writing.

NO SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

Both Journeymen and Boss Barbers Are Determined to Stand Out.

A MEETING LAST NIGHT

Barbers' Union Instructed its Committee to Confer With the Employers With a View to Making a Last Attempt to Enforce the New Scale.

Owing to the continued firmness of both sides of the controversy it now looks more favorable for serious trouble between the boss barbers and their employes than at any time since the negotiations for the settlement of the journeymen's new scale began.

No less than three conferences have been held during the past few weeks, and though there is but one point upon which a settlement cannot be reached, neither party is willing to concede that question.

At a joint meeting held last week of the two committees a number of sections in the scale were adjusted satisfactorily, and the only clause remaining was that respecting the closing of all shops on legal holidays the entire day. It was after 1• o'clock when the confab ended and then it had been agreed upon that the question should be submitted to arbitration. The plan was altered, however, as the bosses concluded they might be able to agree among themselves.

Meantime the committee representing the journeymen made its report to the union, and the organization refused to accept it, placing the matter, so far as the journeymen are concerned, just where it was in the beginning.

The scale under which the union had been working for the past year expired on Wednesday and a walkout was expected, but did not occur. Matters were in such a mixed condition that it was thought best to defer action until the regular meeting was held last night. The session was a lengthy one and there were debates galore. The outcome was a continuance of the old committee with instructions to obtain a conference with the bosses at the earliest possible moment—tonight perhaps—and secure a definite answer as to whether or not they propose to sign the scale as it now stands.

In case they fail to receive a favorable reply it is difficult to conjecture what the final decision will be.

ONLY TWO WERE FOR HIM

Salineville Miners' Union In Bad Repute Because Members Refuse to Work With Natives—Will Lose Charter—Labor's Fine Showing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, November 21.—The Ohio Republican delegation will support Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker of the national house of representatives. At the meeting of the delegation held in this city yesterday it developed that the sentiment in this state was almost unanimous for Cannon. Harvey, of Cleveland, and John P. Carrothers, of Port Clinton, appeared at the meeting in behalf of Congressman T. E. Burton and formally announced his candidacy for speaker. The consensus of opinion was that it would be mere waste of time to declare for Burton as there seemed to be no possible chance of his election for the honor. Eleven members were present, and but two were for Mr. Burton. They were Morgan and Jackson, and they declared for Cannon as their second choice. Two of the members recorded as being present were represented by proxies, Kyle and Warnock.

General Dick sent a telegram to of the action taken at the conference. It was signed by Congressman Charles H. Grosvernor as chairman, and Congressman Charles Dick, as secretary. Those not present at the meeting were Gill, Beidler, Nevin and Burton. Congressman-elect James Kennedy was reported as being favorable to Burton when he arrived but he transferred his support to Cannon when it was made plain to him that Burton did not ahve a ghost of a show of winning. Mr. Kennedy was quite clever with the newspaper boys and made a very favorable impression among the members of the congressional delegation. He left for his home Thursday afternoon.

For the first time in the history of the United Mine Workers of America (Ohio) an Ohio local is in disrepute with the organization. The local referred to is located at Salineville, and has been found guilty of insubordination. It has been suspended and its seal and charter will be taken up. The members of the local refuse to work in a mine in which three Italians who are members in good standing of the state organization, are employed. The state officials investigated the matter and decided that as the Italians were unionists they should not be discriminated against on account of their nationality. The case was also placed before National President John Mitchell, who sustained the ruling of the state organization. Suspension is followed by forfeitures of rights to receive benefits from the state or national organizations. Secretary-Treasurer Savage has left for Salineville to secure the seal and charter of the recalcitrant body and he may encounter difficulty in getting them. The local may decide to become an independent miners' organization.

The advance sheets of the annual report of State Labor Commissioner M. D. Ratchford will be given out in a few days. They will show increases in the number of manufactories and wages so large as to be almost startling, according to the commissioner. The statistics were collected under the law passed last winter and will be presented on a more complete and elaborate scale than has been attempted heretofore. The report will deal extensively with the potting industry. Secretary of State Laylin's annual report will show that the receipts of his department for the fiscal year ending Nov. 15, will be upwards of $830,000, of which sum about $588,430 represents the fees paid in under the Willis law. The balance was from miscellaneous sources.

The Ashland contempt cases were heard by the supreme court yesterday. They were the outcome of the action of the probate court of that city in setting aside an order issued by the supreme court. The judge, whose name is Cloyd Mansfield, it developed, was not a lawyer, and he disfavored any intention of disobeying the order of the court. Similar pleas were made by the attorneys and litigant in the cases. The judge and one attorney were let off, but two of the attorneys and the litigant were fined $50, $75, and $100 respectively.

ADS THAT COUNT

Valuable Property Sold Through Five Line Announcement in the News Review.

While other papers are boasting of the recovery of lost watches, brindle pups and similar property through advertisements in their columns, the News Review desires to cite an instance where advertising really counts. By a five line ad inserted in the News Review, J. S. McIntosh, of 1042 Neil avenue, Columbus, Ohio, was enabled to sell a new house and lot in the East End, and the expense to him was only a trifle. He writes: "Through the ad in your paper I have sold the property." Scores of similar instances could be cited.

The News Review is the advertising medium in East Liverpool through which results are certain. And it never boasts unless it has something to boast about. Make your wants known and put your announcements in it and they will receive attention.

Rifled Slot Machine.

A chewing gum slot machine in a shattered condition was found this morning at the rear of Hall's lumber yard on Broadway and the pieces were later removed to the city hall by Officer Dawson. The machine had been rifled of its contents, both money and gum being taken. The police do not know to whom it belongs.

Granted a Pension.

'Squire J. N. Rose received notice this morning that a pension had been granted John P. McIntosh, of this city, who served with Company E in the Eighth Ohio volunteer infantry during the Spanish-American war. Mr. McIntosh will receive over $200 from the government, being granted $6 per month from December 29, 1898, to October 19, 1902.

PROCEEDINGS AVOIDED

Complicated Case of Biddie Versus McSpadden Settled Before 'Squire McCarron.

The case of John Biddle against J. C. McSpadden was settled in 'Squire McCarron's court last evening, Biddle receiving all that he had sued for. The suit was for $43.20, alleged to be due for work done for McSpadden on the Pleasant Heights street railway line. When the case was filed Joan Rinehart appeared in court and stated that he owed the money and not McSpadden. He also said that he would settle with Biddle, providing the plaintiff would liquidate a note with interest amounting to about $10.

Biddle contested the note and there promised to be considerable litigation over the matter, but when Rinehart paid Biddle the total amount plus $25 for a wagon the case was at an end. Biddle allowed the note in order to save legal proceedings.

FORCIBLE DETENTION

Charged in Two Writs Issued By Justice H. P. McCarron Today.

A writ for forcible detention was written in 'Squire McCarron's court this morning for Mrs. Hattie Woodburn, who alleges that "Chip" Gamble and his wife are living in her property on Second street, notwithstanding that she notified them to leave on November 8. The case will be heard tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Another writ of the same kind was issued by the 'squire about noon which will result in the decampment of Mrs. William Evans from the property of Ralph Alcock. Mr. Alcock has waited for several weeks on Mrs. Evans to vacate and she refusing to do so, he decided to eject her by lawful proceedings.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF ELECTRIC LIGHTS

On the night of November 21, 1885, there was an occurrence in East Liverpool which created more excitement than any event during that year. Seventeen years ago tonight the first electric light which was ever turned on in the city was allowed to beam forth. There was great excitement and nearly the entire population turned out to witness the exhibition.

When the average citizen recalls that at the present time something over $800 is paid out each month in light bills for the city it can be readily seen that the growth and progress of the city of East Liverpool has been phenomenal.

RAILROAD AT STATE LINE

Work of Grading Begun On a Line to Reach Coal Lands.

Captain J. L. B. Dawson and others of Beaver county some time ago got a charter for a railroad extending a mile or so up the Little Beaver on the west side. Work has now begun on grading the line, the object being to reach the coal fields in the vicinity of Ohioville.

Delightfully Entertained.

Mrs. George H. Owen and Mrs. J. W. Patterson, at the home of the former, 181 Jefferson street, delightfully entertained the past grands and officers of the society of the Daughters of Rebekah last evening. Much pleasure was derived from the enticing and enjoyable game, peanuts. At the conclusion of the game prizes were awarded to Miss Mary Lloyd and Mrs. Sheridan McGavern for superior playing and the booby prize to Mrs. Alex McBane. Choice refreshments were served and the evening was one long to be remembered by all present.

New Chief Operator.

GIRL'S SAD CASE

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD CHILD COMPLAINS TO THE MAYOR.

Compelled to Earn Own Living Among Disagreeable Associates And Away From Home.

Miss Grace Moore, the young girl of whom Samuel Mann, who was adjudged insane by Judge Boone, talked incessantly while confined in the city jail, appeared at the mayor's office this afternoon and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of Jack Brighouse. She stated that Brighouse had insulted her this morning and that he had acted in a very indecent manner. The mayor advised her to drop her complaint, having no witnesses and also warned her to find another boarding house. She accepted the advice and warning.

Her case is a deplorable one to say the least. She is not more than 15 years of age; she has no mother and is in the city working for a live. ood. It is said her father made her leave home two weeks ago and upon her departure recommended the Brighouse's home as one fit for her to live and get boarding. She has had an exciting time while in the city and has seen more of the world than in all her life before. After she told her story to the mayor he frankly told her that he did not think much of her father. For a true father would not send his child away unless he knew full well the people to whom he sent her for guidance and protection.

She stated that she did not know that Sam Mann was infatuated with her and although she knew him she did not love him.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Fred Ohlenhauser, Formerly of This City, Killed in Wreck at Carnegie.

As the result of injuries received in a railroad wreck at Carnegie, Pa., on Tuesday evening, Fred Ohlenhauser, aged 26 years, formerly of this city, working for several years at his trade at the plant of the Specialty Glass company, died Wednesday. His remains were shipped to this city, arriving on the midnight train for burial. The funeral was held at 3 p. m., at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rose Bowers, Florence street, conducted by Rev. Edwin Weary, of St. Stephen's church. Buriel was made in Spring Grove cemetery.

MANN IS VIOLENT

The East Liverpool Lunatic Breaks Everything Possible in His Cell at the Jail.

Lisbon, November 21.—(Special.)—Samuel Mann, the East Liverpool subject who was brought to jail and adjudged insane the other day, is very violent today.

He has broken up every moveable thing in his cell and is still raving this afternoon.

WHY NOT CHINA?

We have repeatedly advocated the substitution of beautiful so-called silverware for presents, says the Pottery Gazette. Whether as prizes for athletic, cycling, or boating competitions, or as souvenirs of personal regard, nothing can be more appropriate than artistic china. It will retain its beautiful features longer than ware that requires frequent cleanings, and it has the advantage that it may be preserved without deterioation where it can be seen daily for many years. Silver goods on the other hand, will tarnish even when enclosed in a glass case, and require constant attention to retain their brilliancy. It is becoming a custom to present a china loving cup when it is intended to honor a comrade, and we have seen some beautifully ornamented cups specially produced for the purpose. Colored and gilt monograms and crests make effective decorations to such presents. M. Loubet, the French president, gave instructions that the magnificient table service, modeled by Leonard, and which was so greatly admired at last year's exhibition, should be sent to Complege. It was used for the grand state banquet there on the occasion of the Czar's visit, and it is to be forwarded to St. Petersbrug as M. Loubet's gifts to the czarina. Critics are unanimous in approving the good taste of the president's selection, as it is a unique opportunity of bringing under the notice of the czar, the excellence of French decorative art. The set consists of 30 pieces representing female dancers in various costumes and postures, but all characters may be followed with advantage by municipal, legal and sporting bodies who wish to pay a graceful compliment to one of their number.

TWO OBJECT LESSONS.

"Our customers as well as ourselves will no doubt get an object lesson before the close of the year's business," said a prominent manufacturer to a News Review reporter this afternoon. "Most of us have been crowding on a full head of steam in our plants in our desire to have invoices reach our customers in time for the heavy buying season of the holidays and just when we were beginning to congratulate ourselves on our success along comes a freight blockade and shipments are no doubt being held up all along the line. We cannot ship by river as the water is too low for the boats to run, so there is no way out of the dilemma. The lesson we learn is the great advantage of having the river navigable the year round, and the lesson to our customers is that they should place their orders a month earlier in the season. If the river improvements were now completed we could send our western railway shipments by boat to some railroad center less congested than Pittsburg, avoiding the delays now experienced. I have learned the lesson," he concluded, "and will do all in my power to bring about a nine foot stage of water the year round."

FILLING ORDERS PROMPTLY.

The strong demand for the product of the Union Potteries company is evidenced by the heavy shipments from the plant in this city. Especially is this true of decorated ware which is recognized as the equal, in body, decoration and design, to any make in the country. With considerable extra effort the orders have been gotten out with a promptness gratifying to customers. Two cars were sent west this week, one to Peoria and the other to Chicago.

SOLD RIGHT OF WAY.

James Hargreaves, of the packing department at Cartwright's, is one of the owners of a tract of land on Little Beaver creek, near Smith's Ferry, and some time ago the agents of the company that propose to build a railroad along the waterway secured an option from him and the other heirs. This option was taken up this week by Attorney Harry Freese, of Canton, acting for the company and the deed is now in his possession.

LEARNING FROM THE FRENCH.

It is a funny thing, but French people are teaching us how to serve tea just now and Parisian artificers are supposed to lead the world in the production of dainty tea tables. The Louis XV. style is the one most affected just now by the tea makers of Paris, and the service must consist of six pieces—a samovar, a tea pot, coffee pot, sugar bowl, cream jug, and big tray on which the equipage rests.

LOST IN THE FOG.

Will Goppert, of the kiln crew at Vodrey's, lives in Chester and comes across the river every morning to his work in a skiff. The other morning he set sail from the foot of Union street in a heavy fog and soon lost his bearings, finally running aground on Line island. He was so exasperated that he returned to the West Virginia shore, procured his gun and spent the remainder of the day hunting.

TEMPORARY SHUTDOWN.

Operatives to the number of half a dozen were here Wednesday and yesterday from New Cumberland calling on friends in the various plants. They stated that the Chelsea China company's plant at that place was shut down temporarily owing to an unlooked for delay in receiving a car of flint.

FINE DRIVING HORSE.

John T. Cartwright, the popular manager of the Cartwright Bros.' pottery, recently purchased M. E. Golding's fine four-year-old gelding. The animal was "bred in old Kentucky" and has done some promising stunts on the track. Mr. Cartwright will use him only for driving purposes.

MR. McGONIGLE ILL.

It is reported today that Ab McGonigle, of the kiln crew at the Buckeye, is on the sick list, his malady being lead colic. Mr. McGonigle has been off duty several days and is at his home under the care of a physician. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

AT WORK AGAIN.

John Hagen, dish finisher at the D. E. McNicol, who was injured a week or more ago in Chester by stumbling over the car tracks while returning from a dance, has entirely recovered and was at work again yesterday.

POTTERY AT MINERVA.

A $50,000 loan from the town is all that stands in the way of a $75,000 pottery at Minerva, it is said. Frank Sebring and an East Liverpool potter, name not given, are the reported promoters.

NOTES OF THE POTTERS.

Miss Camilia McDonald, a finisher at the Union, has returned to work after a two week's illness.

Ed. Daugherty, who is now running a fruit jigger at New Cumberland, was calling on friends here yesterday.

EAST END

ACCORDING TO BENEFITS

Councilman Marshall Says a Few Words About Assessment Plans.

Dr. R. J. Marshall, councilman from the Fifth ward, is highly pleased over the support the people of the East End are giving him in his efforts to prevent the entire cost of the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue from being assessed entirely upon the property owners of the East End. He read the interviews with prominent East End citizens in the News Review last evening with a great deal of satisfaction and said to a reporter this morning:

"In assessing according to benefits derived, not alone on Pennsylvania avenue, but on Trentvale street and Calcutta road as well, the assessing board levied according to the amount of money necessary to be raised instead of as to the actual benefits each piece of property derived from the improvement. A piece of property assessed $10 must be enhanced in value an equal amount to be just. If you assess property that has not increased in value you get entirely away from the principle of assessments by benefits."

Social a Success.

The social last evening at the home of Rev. J. N. Swan, on Ohio avenue, given by the Y. P. S. C. E., of the Second Presbyterian church, was a success in every particular. The photograph guessing contest was the amusing feature. Twenty-seven pictures were presented out of which Mrs. Ira Chamberlain guessed 24 correctly. She was awarded the prize, a bunch of beautiful chrysanthemums. Mrs. Mayme Miller guessed correctly the least number and was given the consolation prize, a bag of salt. The sale of refreshments and home made candy netted about $10.

Freak Calf Unclaimed.

The men who appeared at the home of Mrs. Weaver, near the Klondike, recently, and deposited a sum of money in part payment for the freak calf have not appeared to pay the remainder of the purchase and claim the property. It may be that they have changed their minds about it as a museum attraction and if they have Mrs. Weaver is ahead the sum in her possession. Robert Parker, of the decorating room at the National pottery, recently photographed the animal and there has been quite a demand for the pictures.

A Lucky Accident.

Mrs. Taylor Larkins met with a painful injury about six o'clock this morning at her home on First avenue and that she was not more severely injured is almost miraculous The trap door on the rear porch leading to the cellar had been left open and Mrs. Larkins, failing to notice it in the semi-darkness, fell through the aperture. She was severely bruised but unfortunately no bones were broken.

Car No. 1 Was First.

The safety device at the Mulberry street crossing is completed so far as the East Liverpool Street Car company is concerned. The force of men from this company completed the work of laying the derailing switches just before noon yesterday and they went into use immediately. Car No. 1 in charge of Conductor Goodman and Motorman Tice had the honor of being the first to use the switch.

Retail Clerks' Dance.

One of the pleasantest social affairs of the season was the dance at the Columbian park pavilion last evening given by the Retail Clerks' union. At least 250 tickets were sold and the attendance was very little short of this number. The dancing commenced about 8:30 and continued until the last car at 11:30. Ormes Bros.' orchestra furnished the music.

Entertains This Evening.

Miss Inez Darringer will entertain a number of her young friends this evening with a party. Music and games will provide the amusement and refreshments will be served. Thirty invitations are out.

Fractured His Knee.

James Jamison, employed at the Smith & Phillips pottery as a kiln placer, and who lives near the plant, sustained a serious injury yesterday while placing a sagger in one of the kilns. In some way he fell from the steps striking his knee. The injury pained him severely but was not thought to be serious until this morning when it was learned that the knee joint was fractured.

Finish Up Tonight.

District Deputy D. F. White, assisted by A. P. Myler, will go to Calcutta this evening to put the finishing touches on the installation of Calcutta circle No. 535 Protected Home Circle. A class of about twelve candidates are to be initiated and a number of additional officers are to be elected.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

The clay hands at Laughlin No. 3 were reported idle today on account of a shortage of boards.

Mrs. Frank Knowles, who has been ill the past three weeks with an attack of grip, is slowly improving.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston, of the Second U. P. church, continues to improve from his recent serious illness.

'Squire L. W. Carman returned this morning from a visit of a few days with relatives in Washington county, Pa.

Attorney J. E. Davis, and T. J. Andrews, Jr., were out near Calcutta yesterday on a hunting expedition and were very successful, bringing home four rabbits and a number of birds.

The operation performed yesterday on Milton Martin, of the Klondike, by Dr. Mowen, assisted by Dr. Hendershot, was very successful and the patient rallied nicely from it. This morning he was resting easy and it is now thought that he will recover from now on.

"Each Filipino," says President Roosevelt, "is guaranteed his life, his liberty and a chance to pursue happiness as he wishes, so long as he does not harm his fellows, in a way the islands have never before known before during all their recorded history." The Filipinos for the first time in their history, are well governed, and most of them have sense enough to appreciate the fact, and let the antis at home do the complaining.

Secretary Hitchcock will win the country's plaudits for the vigorous way in which he is enforcing the law against the cattle kings who have illegally fenced in tracts of the public domain. The cattle kings are able to buy land if they need it. Even if they were not they would have no past excuse for shutting out settlers anxious to buy.

The Alliance Review of November 20 was printed bearing the date of November 19. Then the error was discovered and remedied by means of a rubber stamp. Fortunately for the "hand printer" the edition was not as large as that of the London Times and he was able to complete his task the same day.

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, whose case has been thoroughly investigated by a special committee, has been completely exonerated. This is welcome news to thousands of workingpeople throughout this country, who have the utmost confidence in Mr. Gompers.

East Liverpool would soon get the reputation of being as slow as Philadelphia if every job undretaken proceeded as slowly as the house moving on Jefferson street. The house has moved three inches in a week, but that was by settling.

The effect of our national prosperity is felt by our neighbors in Canada. American settlers and American capital are flocking in, bank clearings are increasing and farming and manufacturing are expanding in various directions.

The Chinese government is said to be training its army on modern methods, but finds it hard to persuade the soldiers that umbrellas ought not to be carried by soldiers during a battle.

Now an advance in railroad freights is promised, and there are people who will say that the railroads are making it to recoup themselves for that ten per cent. advance in wages.

One of the Democrats elected to congress in Massachusetts is a protectionist. This incident suggests that the Democratic party may yet find an issue.

Teddy killed no bears, but it will be recorded to his credit that he shot no guides either.

Highlandtown, from the testimony produced in court, must have had excitement enough last year to satisfy it for a century.

Alfred Austin's latest poem is disappointing. It is entitled "Good By," but there is nothing in it to indicate that he means it.

Salem newspapers are zealously booming two cross-county electric railroad projects. One at a time ought to suffice.

Ohio also helps to load Cannon for the speakership fight. But it looks now as if there were going to be no fight.

Freight congestion is bound to occur in a growing country that is slow in improving its waterways.

The freight blockade at Pittsburg is no longer effective and business men are rejoicing.

The president is now at home again and both he and the Mississippi bears are safe.

AT THE THEATER

Tonight the Chicogo Stock company will present the feature of their engagement, "Nell Gwynn." It is a drama where the men wear torrent curls and gold bespangled vestments. It is a gauntlet and the sword. It is picturesque, and aglow with tragedy and passion. The character of Nell Gwynn, England's once favorite actress, King Charles, the merry monarch of the Louis XVI century, Lord Shaftsbury, the Duke of York and play of velvet, satin and lace, of the Lord Rochester are all known personages of history, whose portrayal lend realism to the great romance and adds interest to the strong dramatic situations.

New specialties will brighten the waits between acts, and as this is a featured bill and tonight is society night, a crowded house will no doubt be out to enjoy the famous production.

THE REPORTS ARE EXAGGERATED

Washington, Nov. 21.—Mr. A. Lazo Arriaga, the minister from Guatemala to the United States, has just received from his government letters and telegrams stating that the reports published in this country about the loss of life and property caused by the eruption of the Santa Maria volcano are exaggerated. While it is true that a part of the present coffee crop is lost, the dispatches say it is generally expected that most of the plantations of the affected district will recuperate. The loss of life was very small and the president of the republic from the first moment adopted the most energetic measures of relief, which the dispatches say avoided considerable suffering and preserved peace and order in the affected region. Minister Lazo Arriaga last night emphatically denied reports that bands of robbers were swarming the desolated sections, robbing and murdering refugees, and said the official correspondence just received by him showed that such outrages could not be perpetrated.

Are For Cannon For Speaker.

Columbus, Nov. 21.—At a conference held here yesterday 12 of the Republican congressmen-elect from Ohio declared in favor of Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker of the house. Two members, Messrs. Jackson and Morgan, are pledged to support Burton, of Ohio, in the event he shall become a candidate. Mr. Burton did not attend the conference.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 21.—Ten of the 11 Republican congressmen in Michigan met yesterday and discussed the speakership of the next house. A formal motion was carried that the Michigan delegation go on record in favor of the candidacy of Congressman Joseph Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker.

Substitute For Coal.

Berlin, Nov. 21.—The manufacturers of machinery for compressing coal waste and lignite into the fuel called "briquettes," of which enormous quantities are used in Germany, have organized a syndicate for promoting the exports of this machinery to the United States. During the recent coal strike in the United States "briquette" dealers here arranged to send 10,000 tons to New York, but before cargo space could be engaged the strike was ended.

WELLSVILLE

An Enjoyable Meeting Held And an Interesting Program Carried Out.

The third meeting of the New Era club was held last evening at the home of Miss Mary Bruner on Front street. Nearly all of the members were present and thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

The following program was rendered: Quotations, Miss Beranger; "Feudalism and Castle Life," Miss Grace Parker; "Blanche, of Castile," Miss McLean; reading, "Heloise," Julia Ward Howe, Miss Cope; the lesson, Middle Ages. Miss Margaret Arnold acted as leader for the program.

Music and games were enjoyed during the remainder of the evening and refreshments were served at a late hour, after which the members retired to their respective homes.

POLICE RIDE FREE

A Badge And Not Full Uniform Now Suffices Instead of Car Fare.

Wellsville police officers are now allowed to ride on the street cars of the East Liverpool Railway company without car fare. The rule which Manager Healy introduced some time ago compelling local policemen to pay fare when not in full uniform has been annulled and now local officers can ride at any time. All they are required to show is their badge of office.

At a recent meeting of the city council Mayor Fogo requested council to send a written request to the street railway company, asking that the Wellsville policemen be allowed to ride free of charge when wearing their badge. The request was granted by council and Mr. Healy complied favorably.

Trades Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Potters' hall. Final arrangements were m ade f or the dance to be given by the council on New Year's evening. McGraw's orchestra, of East Liverpool, has been engaged. Refreshments will also be served. Trades council took up the question of ascertaining which of the Pittsburg papers were union newspapers and which were not. The question of cleaning the streets of the city was talked of and resolutions will be drawn up and signed at the next meeting.

Excellent Lectures.

Another of Dr. Tracy's superb lectures was given last evening at the Cooper opera house. His subject was "Bitters Creek and Beer River." The lecture was on temperance. The lecture this evening will be on "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." His subject for Saturday evening will be "Our National Curse." All of the moving pictures which Dr. Tracy shows while lecturing are first-class. Excellent music is furnished.

Fire Plugs to Be Placed.

The new fire plugs and the two iron water troughs which were ordered some time ago by the water works trustees from the Eddy Valve company, of Waterford, N. Y., have arrived and will soon be placed around the outlying districts of the city, especially along Steubenville street, where fire protection is badly needed.

Mission Society Meeting.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas Allen on Eighth street. After the usual business a social session was held. Local topics were discussed and music was enjoyed.

Wellsville Barber Held Up.

While en route to his home last night at about 11 o'clock, in the West End, Wellsville, Van Cornell, a barber, was held up by a brutish looking man, but before being victimized he scared the evil accoster away and reached home without further trouble.

Three Arrests Made.

S. E. Anderson, Sylvester Toho and G. G. Burkhart were before the mayor this morning. The latter was charged with resisting officers. The first two were each fined $4.75 and Burkhart had to pay $9.35. He will probably not be so anxious hereafter to show his fighting blood.

quiet, but since that she has burst out in similar threats several times. The husband has for months acted in a very mysterious manner. He leaves the house every night at about 2 o'clock and returns an hour or so later.

It is thought that he is at the head of an organized band of thieves and that the results of their work have reaped them a rich harvest. Early in the morning of October 6, an hour before daylight, sounds came from the room which now are thought to have been made in hammering at the lock on the mail bag. However, this may be only a conjecture, as the lock to all appearances was not dented. Almost every night sounds of a similar ring come forth from the room, and it is said to be plain that something unlawful is being done by the man and his confederates.

Shrewd Celestial Apparently Got a Lot of Free Advertising.

The New York Herald is swelling up and boasting about its "world-wide circulation" because a Chinaman in Shanghai has inserted an ad in its want columns. The same shrewd Celestial has inserted the same ad in half a dozen Ohio papers and numerous papers all through the country. The Herald is a good journal, but it is not the only paper in the directory.—Youngstown Telegram.

The Shangnai ad was offered to the News Review and to thousands of other papers. The News Review rejected it because it was not accompanied by cash. It would be interesting to know how many of the publishers who inserted the notice for the shrewd Celestial have received pay for doing so.

STREET EXTENSIONS

DISCUSSED AT LENGTH BY THE CHESTER COUNCIL.

Mr. Croxall's Offer As Regards California Avenue—Vote to Open Third Street.

The extension of California avenue through the Croxall property was discussed by Chester council last night. Every member was present.

Mr. Riley, of the street committee, reported that he had seen Mr. Croxall and that the latter said, at 15 cents per square foot it would take $2,200 to buy the ground necessary for California avenue through his property, but he was willing to take one-half that, which would be $1,100, for the right to go through. He also stated that Mr. Croxall claims part of Second street between the Railroad and Virginia avenue for a distance of about 70 feet. This he agrees to donate if the town bears the paving assessment. A move to accept this proposition was carried.

Some discussion by all members of council was held in regard to paying Mr. Croxall $1,100 for the right of California avenue through his orchard. Council thought he would have to open the street himself before long. The matter was left, however, in the hands of the street committee.

The railroad crossing was brought up again. Mr. Skinner, who was present, was asked why the company had not met with council as previously arranged. He said he had not heard a word from the officials and did not know why they did not come at the time set. He asked for more time and said he would wire them this morning. A motion to give them another week was carried.

Council then ordered Street Commissioner Severs to repair the alley between Second street and Mr. Roan's on First street.

William Severs was present and showed council where certain streets damaged his property unnecessarily, and council voted unanimously to open up Third street from Carolina avenue through to Middle run.

A bill of Engineer Boyd for services of $232.75 was among those ordered paid.

Mayor Shrader said Contractor Freshwater had not received any money, and as he had finished some work he needed some money and thought property owners should pay it in.

Recorder Mercer was ordered to instruct Engineer Boyd to estimate each property owner's share of the paving assessment, so they could be ready to pay it.

Shrader and Riley referred to some water boxes being left too low on the streets. Mercer moved the light committee to see Risinger Bros. and have lights fixed immediately. The motion carried and council adjourned.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Further Steps Toward Organizing And Building in Chester.

Action was taken some time ago regarding the organization of a Presbyterian church in Chester. It was found that a number of members of that church resided in the town and a committee was appointed to look up a location for a church. This was done and a lot purchased on Indiana street, near Fifth. Samuel Allison and A. G. Pugh were engaged yesterday in securing a list of members of the church, which will reach nearly 100.

It is thought in a short time a church will be built and a regular pastor installed.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Call Money Easy and In Light Demand—Bonds Quieter and Fluctuations Slight.

New York, Nov. 21.—Except for a few irregular and comparatively unimportant moves yesterday's stock market was very like that of the preceding days of this week. Fractional losses were recorded in the early dealings by all the coal stocks, as well as by the more active industrials. The demand for stocks came chiefly from the shorts and was confined largely to Copper, Sugar, Reading, New York Central and Manhattan.

Time money conditions, while no more acute than they have been recently, continue to excite some apprehension. The demand yesterday was moderate, but lenders were still holding off for a stiff rate. Call money was easy and again in light demand. There was practically no change in the foreign exchange situation. As compared with last week the banks have lost only a nominal sum to the sub-treasury.

The bond market was much quieter and fluctuations were slight either way. Total sales, par value, $1,855,000.

REALM OF SPORTS

LISBON IS EAGER

The East Liverpool football team, as stated exclusively in the News Review, is practically a thing of the past, but it is said that the members will reorganize for the purpose of playing the Lisbon team for a purse of $100. The following football article appeared in the Buckeye State:

"At a game of football between East Liverpool's first team and the Lisbon eleven played at the former town some time ago, Lisbon won the game by a score of 6 to 5. However, East Liverpool claimed the game by a similar score and proclaimed itself champions of the county. The manager of the East Liverpool team agreed to play a return game at Lisbon on the 15th of the present month, but at the last momont canceled the date. Manager Nicholls, of the Lisbon team, then challenged the East Liverpool team to play for $100 a side on neutral grounds, and that offer has not been accepted, and is still open. The East Liverpool eleven averages 181 pounds while the Lisbon team averages 154 pounds. The East Liverpool team also has two prize fighters in its lineup. The question naturally arises is East Liverpool afraid of Lisbon, or are they ashamed to take easy money? If it is the latter they need have no delicacy as they are most welcome to it. If the former they should hasten to get out of the business."

ROVERS VS. SEBRING

West Enders Have Practiced Diligently And Promise a Warm Game.

Manager Ashbaugh, of the West End Rovers foot ball team, states that his team has not been during the season in better condition than at the present time. The members have been practicing much for the game to be played in West End park on Saturday afternoon with Sebring. Last evening by electric light the team practiced for several hours and this afternoon they will try it again. Following are the lineups that will meet tomorrow:

J. H. Wooliscroft, secretary of the East Liverpool Rovers foot ball team, has written the following challenge to Manager McGrath, of the Youngstown team:

"The East Liverpool Rovers would like to play a game of association foot ball with the Youngstown team, also Niles. The Rovers claim the championship of eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. We have played all the good teams in western Pennsylvania and have not lost a game this season. We played East Pittsburg last Saturday and tied. We would now like to meet the best of the eastern Ohio teams, and from all we can learn the Youngstown team is one of them. If possible we would like to arrange a game with Manager McGrath's eleven for Christmas week, December 27, if he has not already booked that date."

It is thought quite likely that the Youngstown aggregation will accept the defi and local sports are already looking forward to the game with interest.

An attempt will be made to hold a joint meeting for the purpose of initiating all three. If this can be arranged an enjoyable session is anticipated.

LEFT QUARANTINE

Without Permission, Going Away on Crutches—Beggar Eludes Guard.

Alliance, November 21. — Mrs. M. Sherman, a street beggar, who walks with a crutch and who hails from Canton, was one of the unfortunates who by chance was in the Russell house when quarantine was established. She claimed that 29 years ago she had the small pox and hence was immune. She wired the state board of health these facts, but the order came back for her to remain in quarantine the required period.

On Wednesday she made her boast that she would make her escape before Thursday, and she made her boast good. Nobody knows how she got out.

Important Provisions Regarding the Police and Fire Departments.

Personal Solicitation of the Board Disqualifies an Applicant from Securing a Place—Merit System Prevails in Appointments.

In addition to the details given in the News Review yesterday respecting duties and privileges of members of the police and fire departments, there are a number of other points of even more importance which were not touched upon.

It has been explained that the merit system shall control in both the police and fire departments, and the new municipal code makes it perfectly plain as to how the observance of this rule shall be carried out by the mayor and the board of public safety. It is the duty of the department of public safety to classify all offices and places of appointment and employment in each city, with special reference to the examination which shall in every case be made.

The rules in this case—East Liverpool—shall be made to apply to cities of the same sort less than 25,000, and no appointment shall be made unless the rules provided for the government of that department shall have been observed and carried out to the letter.

When the work of classification has been finished the board shall furnish to the mayor a list of all offices, employment of all employes connected therewith. It shall, in connection with these duties furnish to the mayor a detailed statement of the condition and workings of its respective department when called upon by him to do so.

An applicant, in order to entitle him to appear for examination or to be examined must certify to a large number of allegations, such as nationality, age, place of birth, health and physical capacity for public service, residence for the previous five years, educational qualifications and numberless other things which some might think had no bearing upon the subject.

The law also says that a person shall be ineligible for appointment to any position in the gift of the department of public safety unless he or she shall have been a resident of the state and city for at least one year previous to the appointment.

One of the strongest points in the new code, as it deals with this department is that which says: "Any personal solicitation to any officer or member of said board, or to the appointing power in favor of any candidate by any person whatsoever, unless fraudulently done in order to injure him, shall be taken to be and deemed to have been done at the instance of the candidate himself, and shall disqualify him from competing at any examination for appointment for and druing the term of one year thereafter."

The board is privileged to make such changes in the rules governing the departments as from time to time it may deem necessary. None of these rules shall become operative, however, until they shall have been made public for a certain length of time.

The mode of examination and the qualifications neccessary to enable a man to take the examination for appointment on either or both of these departments under the merit system, are lengthy and interesting, and will be given here at another time.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment, and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Druggist.

Superb Decorations, Fine Music And Everything in Excellent Taste.

No entertainment of the social realm of this season has been more elegant in appointments or more typical of an able and popular hostess than the receptions given yesterday afternoon and evening by Mrs. Walter Briggs Hill at her spacious home on Cook street. From 2 until 5:30 the Hill home was thronged with the prominent society leaders of the city, who enjoyed the hospitality of a charming hostess.

As the guests arrived they were received at the door by Master Roland Hill, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill, who in a manner at ease and sedate escorted them to the reception room where they were greeted by the hostess, also by Mrs. H. W. Hill, Mrs. R. W. Patterson and others.

After some time spent in social chat, the guests withdrew to the dining room, where they partook of elaborate refreshments. The assistants in the dining room, who were clad in costumes of white, were Misses Florence Hill and Maude Fisher and Mesdames W. W. Harker, W. T. Tebbutt, W. L. Taylor, Thomas Anderson, Jr., Frank H. Grosshans, George Davidson, W. H. Vodrey, A. T. Kelly and W. L. Thompson.

As the guests passed from the dining room they were favored with a large white carnation by Muriel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tebbutt.

The decorations in the dining room were delicate in design and effectively arranged. Green and white were much in evidence. The center table was decorated with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums about which which was prettily arranged sprays of asparagus, suspended from the chandilier in festoons. Probably the prettiest feature of the latter part of the afternoon was little two year old Eleanor, who, as she danced about to strains of music rendered by Allen's Peerless Mandolin club, seemed utterly unconscious of the shower of compliments she was receiving from the admiring guests whom she was entertaining. It was not until 5:30 the company dispersed delighted with the gracious hospitality extended to them by a gifted hostess.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hill entertained the Flabbergaster club and the members' husbands at cards.

At Mrs. John Patterson's Yesterday an Event of Interest in Church Circles.

One of the pleasantest events of the season in church circles was the missionary tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson yesterday afternoon. Quite a large number attended. By special invitation Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Pratt were present and joined the society. During the afternoon Mrs. Frank Crook, president, requested Dr. Pratt to address the society. He responded to this request in a most felicitous manner, and gave many valuable suggestions regarding home missionary work. At the conclusion of his remarks light refreshments were served.

A canvass for members resulted in eight accessions. Arrangements were perfected for the special service to be held next Sunday morning at the First M. E. church.

The following reception committee was appointed: Mesdames S. J. Cripps, Monroe Patterson, Lawrence Thomas, John Anderson, B. W. Haines, P. Fowler, Andrew Watson, William Morris, Arthur Hill, William Rowe, Esther Thomas, Florence Updegraff, Jessie Manley, Ella Cober and Georgia P. Ikirt.

Mrs. John Patterson, Misses Cliebe, Baum and Campbell were appointed as decorating committee.

Dr. Pratt is preparing a special sermon for this occasion and it is expected to be an occasion of eminent interest which all are cordially invited to attend.

ENTERTAINED AT PEANUTS

An Enjoyable Party Given By Mrs. Metz And Daughters, Fifth Street.

In response to invitations issued by Mrs. Harriet Metz and daughters at 2:30 yesterday a large company assembled and enjoyed to the utmost the hours which passed too swiftly.

The diversion of the afternoon was peanuts, and was participated in with much zest by all present. Mrs. Clifford Bough won the first prize, a handsome vase containing a large bouquet of pink and white carnations. At the conclusion of the game very choice refreshments were served.

After nearly two hours being devoted to the exquisite menu the guests departed with very happy memories of the cordial hospitality of Mrs. Metz and daughters.

No Thanksgiving Ball.

At a meeting of the High school club, composed of 20 members from the junior and senior classes, held at the home of Clarence Bauman, on Fourth street, the advisability of giving a dance on Thanksgiving evening was discussed. As the majority of the club members belong to the high school foot ball team which plays Steubenville on that day it was decided to select a later date.

Son Born—A son was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Palmer, of West Morket street.

Rev. H. H. Bawden Coming—Rev. H. H. Bawden, of Green Bay, Wis., yesterday notified the First Baptist church of the call to the pastorate in this city. He will be here by December 1.

Quarantine Raised—Sanitary Policeman Burgess has raised the quarantines from the homes of Charley Finney, in the East End, and Joseph Vogel, of Third street. Both families were afflicted with scarlet fever.

Stole Chewing Gum Machine—Last evening an automatic chewing gum machine was stolen from the Hodson Drug company's building, corner Fifth and Broadway. The box was nailed to the building and contained a supply of chewing gum and a small sum of money. Mr. Hodson stated this morning that "he would be thankful for its return as he needs it in his business."

Spelling Bee Next—Stratton circle No. 40, P. H. C., held an important and interesting meeting last evening and initiated three candidates. It was decided to have a spelling bee at the next meeting, to be held on the evening of December 4, and W. E. Warren and George Wilhelm were selected to captain the contesting forces. Invitations will be extended to the East End, Chester, Calcutta and Wellsville circles.

A Native Filipino—H. Napoy, a native of the Phipippines, was in this city today. Mr. Napoy has seen a great part of the world, having traveled for the Mergenthaler Linotype company, setting up machines in almost every country where newspapers are published. He has just returned from South America. He said he thought South America was the best adapted for the human race, because the conditions of the country and climate, also the price of things, make it very cheap to live. Mr. Napoy was bound for Pittsburg.

CENTER OF FINANCE

SPLENDID NEW HOME OF THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

Half a block away from Wall street, nearly completed, stands the majestic new home of the New York Stock Exchange, which from the magnitude of its financial operations and its mighty influence in business affairs is destined to become one of the notable buildings of the world.

The new Stock Exchange is an immense structure, a block in length, extending from Broad street, on which it fronts, to New street, and it is 138 feet in width. It has a height of five stories, with a cornice. The effect of magnitude is enhanced by the architectural design of the building, for across its front are six immense Corinthian columns, guarding, as it were, the grand portico and supporting a broad pediment. All the exterior construction of the building is of white Georgia marble, and the interior is of white South Dover marble.

Aside from the beauty and magnitude of the structure there are two other features of it which are of special interest. One of these is the "floor" where the trading will be done, and the other is the safety deposit vault, which is one of the finest in the world.

The trading floor is to be a vast room 140 feet long from the inner face of the columns, 110 feet wide and 80 feet high. Ample opportunity for spectators to observe the busy scene on the great floor below has been provided by two broad galleries, one at either end of the room.

The vault in the basement is completed and is already used by banking and brokerage houses for depositing securities. It is a long room, in the walls of which are hundreds of safety deposit boxes of a variety of shapes and sizes. In the center of the room is a long steel cabinet and in both sides of it more boxes and lockers. The outside wall of the vault is fourteen inches thick. The exterior is a steel coat. Next to it is a wall of fireproof material, and inside of that a thick burglar proof plate of steel. Between the outer wall and the wall in which are the safety deposit boxes is a narrow passage extending entirely around the vault. In the center of each end and each side of the passageway are watchmen's signals. At night two men guard the vault. They pace continually around it through the narrow passage. They are required to "ring up" at each one of these signal boxes every fifteen minutes. This keeps the watchmen active. A further safeguard is the time lock at the front of the vault. It contains the finest and most elaborate lock mechanism made.

Rudolph Keppler, who was elected president of the New York Stock Exchange last spring for the fifth consecutive term, has been an active and beneficial influence in that organization for more than a quarter of a century. He entered the board of governors in May, 1877, and has been identified more or less with the management of the exchange since that date. Although of German birth, Mr. Keppler has been a resident of this country since his youth, and his business career has been developed in Wall street.

Since he became the administrative head of the Stock Exchange there has been a wonderful growth in the business of the institution. New securities aggregating in value $2,000,000,000 have been added to the stock list during the past four years, and the volume of the speculative business in the exchange has steadily increased.

Mr. Keppler's administration is the only period in the history of the New York Stock Exchange in which daily sales of 2,000,000 shares of stock have been recorded.

With the increase of business the value of membership has advanced, until now it takes nearly $100,000 to gain admission to what has been described as the greatest financial mart in the world.

'Tis sad, friend turk, that you must die,
But if you'll prove in leaving

A somewhat formal visitor asked a little girl:

"How are you, my dear?"

"Very well, thank you," said the little girl.

"Now," continued the visitor, "you should ask me how I am."

"But I don't want to know," was the unexpected reply.

Grangers Say Agricultural Colleges Teach Cigaret And Cocktail Habit Instead.

Lansing, Mich., November 21.—The farmers of the National Grange, in solemn session, declared that the agricultural class has had another gold brick handed to them in the shape of agricultural colleges. They claim that the institution is a delusion and, instead of training their sons to raise "two blades of grass where one grew before,' it gives them the cigaret and cocktail habit and otherwise unfits them for the sterling duties of providing the world with provisions.

The agricultural colleges of every state in the union is included in the attack of the educational committee of the grange. The report recites that the farmers were instrumental in obtaining from the different states the appropriations for colleges, which would train the sturdy offspring of the soil to follow in their father's footsteps, at rather a faster clip than that taken by pioneers.

The recital includes the charge that few of the graduates of the agricultural colleges ever go back to the farms. They declare that the time has come for a vigorous reform and the installation of a system which will turn out real farmers from farmers' colleges, instead of taking the brawn of the country and transforming it into material for city life.

SCRAP THREATENED

Man Against Whom Alex Chafin Got Judgment Wants to Get Even.

"It's all right. I have paid the bill. But mind you, 'Squire McCarron, if I ever get that man over the state line I will get more than that much satisfaction out of him."

These were the parting words of A. J. Decker as he left the office of the justice last evening after paying a judgment for $28 sued for by Alex Chafin on a grocery bill.

Decker can neither read nor write and he claims that he has been outfigured. The 'squire had all of the evidence in hand and Decker failed to produce any witnesses, making the case a clear one for Chafin. The amount orginally sued for was $69. Decker got off with the payment of $28, that including the costs.

Constable Powell states that he will not be at all surprised if he hears of the plaintiff and defendant coming together. On the day that the officer served the notice of action on Decker the two men came very near getting to blows. Decker was in a wagon and Chafin in a buggy. Both arose from their seats and started at each other. They were stopped only by the interference of the constable.

The Socialists Came Within 400 Votes of Capturing the Convention.

STRUGGLED NEARLY ALL DAY.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—The Socialists came within 400 votes of securing the control of the convention of the American Federation of Labor yesterday. The struggle lasted almost the entire day and many able speeches were made on both sides, notably those of D. A. Hayes, James Duncan and President Gompers, against the Socialists, and Victor Berger, Max Hayes and W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, in behalf of the resolution introduced by Delegate Berger and amended by Delegate Wilson in a manner acceptable to Berger. The debate lasted until 6 o'clock in the evening, when a roll call showed 4,744 votes against the amendment of Mr. Wilson and 4,344 in favor of it. The miners voted solidly in favor of the amendment. No business was transacted in the convention during the day, other than that of the debate and the report of the committee which investigated the Gompers-Shaffer trouble.

President Gompers was completely exhonorated of the charges of infidelity to the principles of trades unionism, said to have been made by Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The special committee reported to that effect before the convention. The committee reported that when Mr. Shaffer appeared before it he declared that he had not at any time, either in writing or otherwise, made any charges against Mr. Gompers of infidelity to trades unionism, nor did he desire to before the committee.

For the time being, at least, all opposition to the election of President Gompers has died out. Since the refusal of James Lynch, of the Typographical union, to run for the office no further effort has been made to secure a candidate, nor is it likely at the present time that there will be a rival candidate.

PRESIDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Shook Hands at Knoxville, Tenn., With Sister of Lieutenant Colonel of His Regiment.

Asheville, N. C. Nov. 21.—The president's homeward journey yesterday was without special incident. The ride across the mountains over the Southern road was made in fast time. The train stopped only to change crews and engines. Its coming was generally unheralded, but there was a small crowd at almost every station. Several times the train was cheered as it swept by. At Chattanooga the president received a telegram from Newport, Tenn., saying that the school children would turn out to see him. By his direction the train was slowed down when that place was reached. About 200 little ones, with flags in their hands, were lined up along the track. The president stood on the rear platform and waved his hand and hat to them. At Stevenson, Ala., early yesterday, about 50 children gathered around his car and begged the porter to let them see the president. The president, who had just got up, heard their cries, and rather than disappoint the little ones he stepped to the door in his stocking feet and said: "Good morning," just as the train drew out. At Ooltewah junction, where the train stopped for water, a tall, raw-boned mountaineer engaged the president in conversation. The Tennesseean remarked that bears in Mississippi had proved too wild for the president. "Perhaps they were Democratic bears, and took to the woods upon my arrival," replied the president, smiling.

At Knoxville the president shook hands with a sister of the lieutenant colonel of his regiment. The president reached Washington at 8 o'clock this morning.

National Founders' Association.

Detroit, Nov. 21.—The convention of the National Founders' association was brought to a close yesterday afternoon by the election of officers and the adoption of a resolution in favor of a national agreement with the molders' union and requesting the members of the association not to make any further local agreements. At the close of the convention the administrative council held an executive session.

Scaffold Gave Way.

Port Washington, Wis., Nov. 21.—While working on the third story of the Ozaukee County Malting company's new malt house yesterday the scaffolding gave way and three men were dashed to the ground below. Two of the men will die of their injuries. It is thought the third will live. The cause of the accident is unknown.

OIL INSPECTION

Report of Barrels Examined And Fees Collected in This Part of the State.

Columbus, November 21.—(Special.) F. L. Baird, inspector of oils of the First district, which comprises the northern and extreme southeastern counties of the state, has filed his annual report with Governor Nash. Toledo is headquarters of the district. During the year ending October 31, 1902, there were 368,969 barrels of oil inspected on which fees were collected amounting to $16,506, which is about $2,000 in excess of the sum collected by State Inspector John R. Malloy, of the Second district, who submitted his annual report on Monday. Of the oil inspected in the First district 311,941 barrels were manufactured in Ohio, 56,725 in Pennsylvania and 303 in West Virginia. There are 12 deputy inspectors in the district, the deputies for eastern Ohio being W. J. Oby, Canton; John K. Lewis, Youngstown, and D. C. Ekerman, Akron.

The inspections in Columbiana county were as follows: East Liverpool, number of barrels inspected, 3,286; fees collected, $164.30. Salem, barrels, 2,543; fees, $127.40. Wellsville, barrels, 1,798; fees, $89.90. East Palestine, barrels, 974; fees, $48.70. Lisbon, barrels, 1,349; fees, $67.45. Salineville, barrels, 1,079; fees, $53.95. Leetonia, barrels, 2,005; fees, $76.90.

MEETING OF RIVER MEN

A meeting of the executive council of the Ohio Valley Improvement association was held yesterday at Cincinnati, for the purpose of making preparations to visit President Roosevelt and lay before him the resolutions adopted by last week's convention held at Parkersburg. It is the desire of the association to have the president make some reference to Ohio river improvements in his forthcoming message, and in view of his public utterances already made in that direction, rivermen do not anticipate any trouble in having the chief executive take cognizance of the worthiness of the improvement.

Robert L. Gregory, the newly elected member of the legislature from Sistersville, W. Va., will introduce a resolution at the next session of the legislature, which was prepared by James Francis Burke, of Pittsburg, demanding of congress the improvement of the Ohio and the sending of a committee to Washington to lay demands of the legislature before congress. The governors of the states bordering on the Ohio river will also be asked to join in similar requests.

WABASH SURVEY

To Reach East Liverpool Is Now Promised—Extension from Steubenville.

Word has just been received that the much-talked-of Wabash road will be surveyed to this city within the next few days.

The rights of way have already been taken from Cross creek, where the river will be bridged and where the company is already grading, to Toronto. That city is in fever heat with excitement over the prospects of the greatest industrial boom it has ever known.

It is now generally believed that the road will be extended from the terminal of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road at Market street, Steubenville, to this city.

The plans and specifications for the bridge to span the Ohio at Cross creek, Brooke county, have been delayed on account of not being in accordance with the law and to the satisfaction of the secretary of war, who has jurisdiction over the matter.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE

M. A. Norris, of Mahoning County, Announced As a Candidate for Next Year.

Youngstown, November 21.—The formal announcement was made yesterday that M. A. Norris, of this city, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for supreme judge at the next state convention.

This announcement has been expected since the convention last summer, when Mr. Norris was within call of the nomination and narrowly missed securing it. As before, Mr. Norris will be the candidate of Mahoning county and every effort will be put forward by the Mahoning county delegation to land him in the office.

His long experience at the bar and the work that he has done while practicing law is of such a nature as to make him one of the foremost men considered for the position.

REVIEW OF BASEBALL

CONTRAST OF NATIONAL AND JOHNSON CLUBS — SUCCESSFUL YEAR IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

NOW that the pennant races have been won, it is interesting to glance back over the year's work in the baseball world to take note of the season's developments.

John T. Brush, the real head of the National league, in a recent interview is credited with the positive statement that the National league has enjoyed a more prosperous season this year than the American, and the former Cincinnati magnate is quoted with details to prove his statement.

of course, the average "fan" who has watched attendance and other figures closely wonders what the magnates have been and are going to do with all their money. No wonder there is a scarcity of the long green in the banks and expedients were considered with reference to obtaining enough to move the crops.

The American league has made money in all but two of its eight cities, and of these Detroit claims to have broken even in spite of the big slump in the playing of the Tigers. It is a pleasure to learn that the National league has surpassed this record, for it means that the game has prospered this year as it has not for many a season past, according to the magnates themselves. It is of course a problem which will puzzle the layman to understand how the old league has beaten out its younger rival in profits, with the latter outdrawing it in all four of the cities where there are conflicting teams and with a tail ender in New York, where a winning team would have been a veritable gold mine. But these problems may be left to Brush's brain to explain. It may be that the National league's salary roll has been so much smaller than the American's that its clubs have been able to make big money out of small receipts. It may possibly be that Brush has multiplied figures where he should have merely added them, and so caused the figures to prevaricate.

The Salary Question.

The records will show, according to other magnates, that the National league has been paying salaries this year to young players quite as high as it used to pay its stars of former years and has been compelled to raise the salaries of what star players it kept out of the ranks of the enemy. If the National league has made more money than Ban Johnson's league this year, the question then arises, What must Brush and his allies have made out of baseball in earlier years, when there was only one big league, paying its players salaries which a Three Eye league player would scorn nowadays and enjoying the undivided patronage of all the larger cities?

Little wonder the National league magnates claim an immense reserve fund and resources enough to exterminate the American league with ease. They ought by this time to have accumulated enough to almost pay off the debt incurred by cutting the league circuit from twelve to eight cities.

Just how the National leaguers will justify a return to the former scale of salaries after they have exterminated the American league is another interesting problem. If they are making so much money now, it would be a crime worse than the famous "crime of '92," when all the players were released in midseason and signed over again at salaries from 30 to 60 per cent lower to save the magnates from sure bankruptcy—so they then claimed.

There is one thing that puzzles the outsider in this war of extermination more than anything else. All summer long the National league has had agents out at big expense offering huge salaries and bonuses to American league players to sign National league contracts. The natural question is, "What's the use?" If the National league's declarations are true that the young league is on its last legs and toppling on the verge of bankruptcy, why all this generosity toward the players whom the National can have for the asking as soon as the American league dies the speedy and natural death so freely predicted by Brush and others?

The American Association.

The season just closed has been a successful one for the American Baseball association despite the prediction that as an "outlaw" organization it would be a failure.

Every team in the association is at least even with the game, and two or three have piled up a satisfactory surplus. The quality of ball played has been of a high standard for the most part.

The Louisville and Indianapolis teams have been the chief money makers, for since the middle of the season they have about evenly divided the honor of heading the percentage table. During the final series between these two teams in Indianapolis the attendance was 25,000.

Manager Tebeau of Louisville says his club has made $10,000, but it is generally believed that $20,000 would come nearer being the true figure.

The Indianapolis club is also a winner, but not to any such extent as Louisville. Manager Watkins admits he is a slight winner. Up to the middle of the season, when Indianapolis reached first place, the team was a loser.

The Columbus Slump.

Columbus, O., started out with a good team, but the discipline became lax, due to the interference of the owners with Manager Grim. The slump occurred in the middle of the season, and up to that time the team had drawn well. Milwaukee may not have broken even owing to the competition by the Western league. Kansas City receipts were also cut by competition.

Louisville's success has been due largely to its hard hitters, while Indianapolis depends on its fielding and pitchers. The Indianapolis team work has been superior.

Kansas City had the next to the highest priced team, but has been a disappointment.

Milwaukee's players also failed to deliver the goods, such men as Dungan and Algy McBride failing to hit. Outfielder Holman was the best man on the team and is said to be billed for the big league.

Kellum was the best pitcher on Indianapolis' staff, his strong point being his absolute control. The veteran Killen was next in point of effectiveness. Captain Fox at second for Indianapolis was the most marvelous fielder in the association.

Louisville has in First Base Man Ganzel and Kerwin, a general utility man, sure winners. Report says Pitcher Flaherty will be with Cincinnati next year.

Kansas City's salvation was in Pitchers Gibson and Wolfe and Catcher Beville, who has signed with New BAN JOHNSON.

York. Grady, first base man, said to be the highest priced man in the association, did good work.

Ferguson, who was with the Chicago Nationals awhile last season, pitched good ball for St. Paul.

In the Toledo team Catcher Kleinow, First Base Man Turner and Pitcher Mock are worth a trial in faster company.

Minneapolis had few players of merit and won its victories chiefly through the fighting qualities of Manager Wilmot.

Floyd McFarland will not follow motors again. The Californian says that the shoulder which he fractured has been giving him a great deal of trouble of late, and he does not care to take the risk.

Major Taylor is waiting for an offer from France to be made. He has been asked to ride there again, but has asked for a proposition which will give him a guaranteed amount.

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

The Quiet Way In Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin:

My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts. I shall need Mlle. Georges, Mme. Dorval, Bocage, Lockroy, Provost and five new scenes.

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till better days.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shyly draw a manuscript out of his pocket. He would agree to everything. The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musingly, "Dieu, how fine Frederick would be in that part!" "That is true," Horel would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the equipose of the cast and Raucourt, Laferriere and Mlle. Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the stage setting. Old scenes, that the public had tired of, were almost an insult to these great artists. If Horel showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the game would go on, till, little by little, Hugo had obtained everything he wanted, even to changing the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Jim O'Brien's Epitaph.

"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epitaph line than all the rest of the world," remarked a Colorado ex-congressman.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It seems that in the course of a barroom broil one Jim O'Brien, a well known character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's associates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large letters:

"Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m.

"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:

"Heaven, 4:20 p. m.—O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. The worst is feared."

Weeping at a Wedding.

A Chinese marriage is all ceremony—no talk, no levity and much crying. The solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care in a red gown, brocade or silk, if she can get it; her eyelashes are painted a deep black, and she wears a heavy red veil attached to a scarlet headdress, from which imitation pearls are pendent over the forehead. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the blushing bride is led by five of her best female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. The utmost silence prevails, when, finally, the mother leads off in a cry, the maids follow and the bride echoes in the chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters, with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits, and, preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away to his own home. The guests then throw rice at the happy couple, a custom we have borrowed from the heathen.

Army Versus Navy

By FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

Uncle Sam's army and navy are laying plans for the complete annihilation of each other, to wipe each other off the map. No; this is not a story of a terrible complication at Washington or of a deadly feud between Secretary Root and Secretary Moody. The facts in the case are that the army and navy football teams clash on Franklin field, Philadelphia, Nov. 29 in their annual contest, and every officer in either branch of the service that can spare the time will journey to the Quaker City's splendid gridiron to "root" for the team of his choice. And the ladies will be there, too, in goodly numbers and gala dress, for the cadets from West Point and the Annapolis middies are long on popularity as well as ability.

Captain Boyers of West Point is confident of repeating the victory of last year over the navy. The ex-captain and quarterback of Harvard, Charlie Daly, the best man in his position in the country, has been reserved especially for the coming match, and there is every reason to believe that he will duplicate his brilliant work of a year ago, when he secured for West Point the victory over their old time rivals. Daly's work it was that called forth unstinted applause from President Roosevelt, who was on the side lines.

The middies have an able team this year, but I doubt if they will score on West Point. The soldiers are even stronger now than when they played Yale to a standstill (6-6) early in the season.

Probably the best individual all around work on the gridiron this season has been done by John A. De Witt of Princeton university. De Witt at tackle has proved an anchor to the whole tiger line, and his phenomenal goal-kicking ability places him easily in the lead among men in his position. He is sure of a place on the official All America's team of 1902. De Witt is also a splendid ground gainer, and a large part of the distance covered on center plays during the year by the

DE WITT KICKING A GOAL FROM THE FIELD.

Jerseymen was the result of the champion hammer thrower's line hitting power.

De Witt's performances in the Cornell and Yale games will never be forgotten by Princeton admirers, and, although he is somewhat inclined to "show off" on some occasions, he is nevertheless deservedly popular and merits the praise of all followers of the orange and black.

Twenty years from now, when present Michigan undergraduates are honored alumni, they will shake their heads and say to the football candidates of those days: "Yes, youngsters, but you should have seen that great game of 1902, when the best team that ever wore the maize and blue beat Wisconsin on Marshall field by a score of 6 to 0. They don't have teams like those now."

Michigan showed the most powerful and concerted attack ever seen in western football. Few of the immense crowd which saw Michigan sweep aside the Wisconsin forwards in the first ten minutes of play for a steady march to a touchdown nearly eighty yards away knew that they were witnessing the acme of modern attack. But the football critics and galaxy of western coaches, drawn from far and wide to see the battle of gridiron giants, marveled at the perfection of unified effort which Yost had taught and his pupils so ably carried out.

It was better offense than the Michigan team of 1901, which registered 550 points without being scored on, showed in its best games of last year.

In addition to winning the one great game upon which the football minds at Ann Arbor have been set, Michigan's team left the field the conceded champions of 1902. "Michigan is the best team in the west," as the refrain of one of its student songs suggests.

Bait For Patsy.

The American league is negotiating with Manager Patsy Donovan. He can name his own salary and manage any team he selects except the Boston and Athletic teams. Donovan has the offer under consideration.

OUR NATIVE TREES

... By ...

THOMAS H. MACBRIDE, Ph. D.,

JUST what the forests of the world stand for, what they signify in the general economy of the lands of earth, has long been a disputed problem. Of course we all know something of the economic value of forest products—we can all at least use wood as fuel—but that the forest plays also its part in the great economies, in the equilibrium of nature's delicate adjustments, we less appreciate. Indeed it is very hard for even the wisest to understand what the equilibrium of nature is. We know not exactly how it has been brought about and too often discover its existence only by the catastrophe which follows close upon some ill advised bit of interference. Nevertheless the problem of the forest is an earth problem second in importance to none other with which as intelligent men we have to deal, more difficult indeed than most because at once physiological and physical. Forests constitute great physical masses on the surface of the earth, and at the same time they are made up of living plants which as such affect the elements about them. There are those who contend that the very climate of the earth is modified by the presence of trees exhaling moisture, conditioning atmospheric heat, the distribution of electric currents, the chemical constitution of the air and soil, but our information in these particulars is less trustworthy, and we shall perhaps for the present keep within the limits of actual knowledge if we assert that trees associated in a forest affect more or less profoundly local conditions of climate and atmospheric change, whatever may be true of their wider and more farreaching influence.

The climate of the locality occupied by the forest or immediately contiguous to it is affected by the organic activity of the trees, but we do not know how or how much. The climatic effect of the forest as a purely physical object, a physical covering of the earth's surface, we can better estimate and understand. For instance, climate is largely a matter of temperature and moisture. Now, the presence of trees certainly greatly retards air currents, but air currents are the usual efficient agents of evaporation and falling temperature. It might seem incredible that forests of trees a hundred feet high or more should avail to check the movements of the great ocean of atmosphere above our heads, but we all know that it is a fact. Men and beasts are wont to take shelter behind a grove. In fact, in the deep woods the air may be perfectly quiet, there may be a great calm, while the storm wind roars and rides high above the treetops. In such case the atmosphere is of heat an almost perfect nonconductor. Caught amid the trunks and branches of the forest, it is comparable to the air entangled in the meshes of a coat of fur, almost impervious to heat or cold. This is the explanation of the western windbreak. A simple grove of trees makes the prairie habitable. Even the willow and the cottonwood and the despised box elder may bid defiance to the blizzard. On a wider scale groves and forests of greater extent may affect in different ways their immediate surroundings. There are scores of instances where the felling of the forest has changed entirely the climatic conditions of the locality, sometimes to such an extent as to modify the whole industry of the region. Such are the stories of the orange orchards and olive yards of southern France and northern Italy, where the path of the mistral seems to vary as the forests wax and wane. Many years ago Mr. Lapham published a paper on the "Transactions of the Wisconsin Agricultural Society," in which he showed that the wholesale destruction of the forests of Wisconsin had already modified the climate of many localities in so far as concerned the raising of fruit.

But, whatever may be the effect of the presence of woodland in matters of heat and cold, it is in relation to the second climatic factor, to moisture, that the forest is most positive and farreaching in influence and efficiency. Forests are great conservators of moisture—this, too, in a purely mechanical way. In summer they greatly retard evaporation, first, by checking the air currents, as we have seen, which would otherwise carry the moisture away, and, second, by their shadows shutting out the solar heat, which would otherwise speedily dry up, dissipate, any moisture that might have fallen. Trees, it is true, in the process of transpiration take from the soil and give off to the surrounding air an immense amount of water, though probably nothing like so much as has been supposed. Nevertheless in a forest the loss of water due to the life processes of the trees does not compare with the results of evaporation in the unprotected open. Every one must have noticed that woodland roads are muddy, very muddy, long after the highway that passes the open field has become perfectly dry. Indeed, road supervisors often make this an excuse for felling shade trees planted by generous landowners along the public way. Trees are cut down to make the road dry. So much for what happens in summer. In winter the same conditions are efficient to retain precipitation in the form of snow. The snow of the woodland is permitted neither to blow away nor to evaporate. The extent to which a coniferous forest, with its dense, persistent foliage, retains the snow is something phenomenal. The snows in the Minnesota pineries used to accumulate all winter and lie unthawed in June; the snows in the Sierras are sometimes fifteen feet in thickness, though perhaps slowly thawing all the time.

But there is still another way in which trees affect the retention of local moisture, and that is by the physical obstacles they oppose to surface drainage. The bodies of the trees, the fallen twigs and foliage with which they strew the ground, and myriad roots and rootlets with which they crowd the soil, all these things hinder the escape of water by process of ordinary drainage, hold it back and suffer a very slow departure, if it escapes at all. The forest sits on the hillside as a giant sponge. The rains and showers keep it forever saturated. It yields to the atmosphere moving about it some of its moisture, to be sure, but the greater part, led by gravitation, escapes at length slowly at the bottom of the hill.

The effect of all this upon the steadfast flow of springs and streams and even rivers has long ago been pointed out. The surplus water of the mountain side filters through roots and rocks and beds of sand or gravel, finally reaches an impervious layer and approaches the surface, there to become an unfailing source of spring or rivulet. The snows of winter linger long in the shadows of the trees, thawing slowly, yielding scarcely anything to drainage on the surface.

It is evident from the present argument that forests tend by their very nature to keep uniform the water supply in the region they affect. It is not always the amount of water a land receives that determines its fertility. It is rather the amount retained and used. So that even if we concede, as some people would have us do, that forests have little to do with the amount of rainfall in any case it is yet evident that a land with its proportion of woodland is likely to be more moist than one without. The moisture it receives is longer retained. The state of Iowa, for instance, enjoys perchance as much precipitation as it ever enjoyed. Nevertheless the state as a whole is much drier than it was thirty or forty years ago simply because ill advised agriculture is rapidly removing from all the streams their forest cover, is draining every lake and pond. The prairie slopes, trodden hard by the hoofs of ten thousand herds, shed rainwater like slated roofs, and much of the rainfall the state receives today is hurried as rapidly as possible to the sea.

But there is another particular in which the presence or absence of forest may profoundly affect the welfare of civilized men. This also is a matter of the purely mechanical or physical sort. Forests not only hold the air, the water, but they likewise hold the soil on which they stand. Where this is loose, sandy, gravelly or rocky the removal of the trees exposes it to an erosion which, as far as all human purposes are concerned, is often simply destruction. The best illustrations of this are seen in the older countries of the world. Thus in Asia Minor, in southern Europe, lands once the happy homes of millions are now desert; the hills are naked rocks, the uncovered framework of the world; the valleys are drifting sands. But Americans need by no means visit the old world to find ruin of this sort. In almost any of our older states the same thing can everywhere be seen. In northern Mississippi thousands of acres of land have been abandoned of the farmer, sold for taxes to the state, because ruined by erosion. Every river valley in the west shows the same disastrous condition in greater or less degree. In eastern Iowa, where the woods have been cleared from steep clay hills, these now exhibit great ravines and gullies, down which with every storm torrents of water carry loads of sand and gravel, at least of inferior soil, to cover the richer fields and meadows spread below.

When a country loses its forest cover, especially from collecting basins, from hills, ridges and mountain sides, the loss is therefore at least threefold—it loses its timber supply; it loses its water supply, at least in regularity; it loses large portions of its tillable soil, swept away or buried by the force of uncontrollable torrents.

The bearing of all this is plain. Especially is it interesting in view of our present effort to reclaim our western arid lands, to utilize the scant supplies of water that reach our interior mountain ridges. Artificial dams encounter their greatest hazard in the flood. Nothing known to man so holds back a deluge as does a forest. It is thought the Johnstown calamity might have been averted by more regard to doctrines such as these, and the effort is now making by planting trees to prevent the recurrence of the disaster. The fact is the forests are actually part and parcel in nature's equilibrium after all. They are, as we saw in a preceding chapter, the result of geologic changes long gone by.

Making and Curing Dimples.

A pretty, lifelike dimple can be made to appear on a lady's cheek by means of a specially designed knife with a very small and very sharp blade, a daintily tiny, keen edged, silvered scoop and a very fine needle.

A small, straight incision is first made in the flesh. The little scoop is then used to remove a small portion of the underlying fat, while the sewing together with the needle the edges of the cut completes the operation. In a day or two the stitches are taken out, within a week the wound being usually entirely healed, leaving the becoming little depression in the surface of the skin that is called a dimple.

It is not often that a woman desires the removal of a natural dimple, but occasionally a man who considers the mark to be a badge of effeminacy desires to get rid of it. Instead of removing the superfluous fat from beneath the surface a small portion of the skin is cut away. The edges of the dimple are drawn together with stitches, the incision heals and the depression disappears.

Fighting Lizards.

The ring necked lizard of the Arizona deserts is not a mere devourer of weaklings. He is always ready to fight, whether he is challenged by another or cornered by a man. When brought to bay in some hole, he opens his jaws and dashes bravely out, snapping at everything which opposes him, and so fierce and sudden is his rush that it is impossible to face it without flinching. By holding two of these lizards loosely by the small of the back and allowing their heads to clash as they struggle to escape, one may be able to induce combats such as must occur every day in the desperate lizard world.

Forgetting that they were captives, they would seize upon each other and vent their thwarted rage to the utmost in a fight which, but for timely interference, would doubtless lead to the death of one or the other. Such bulldog pugnacity is rather unlooked for in lizards, but a student of character could easily read in the set jaw and pouched throat of this species the signs of fighting blood.—Country Life In America.

Billiard Terms.

"What are the principal shots in billiards?" asked the fair young damsel of the wise young man. "The kiss, the follow, the bank and the draw," he replied. "How lovely!" she exclaimed. "It is almost like a courtship. First the lover gets a kiss, then he follows the girl all about and then"—

"And then," interrupts the man who aspires to pessimism—"and then they get married and he goes to the bank and draws, for that is his cue, unless he wises to be frozen." (For the benefit of the unsuspecting reader, adds the Baltimore American, we will state that "cue" and "frozen" also are billiard terms. There are still more than might be worked into the little jeu d'esprit, such as "scratch," "break," "drive," "tip," "table," "run," etc., but lack of space prevents carrying the theme to the bitter end.)

AND MANY OTHERS

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

MOB LYNCHES NEGRO

James Dillard, Criminal Assail- of Two White Women, Is Hanged by Farmers,

Governor Had Ordered Out Militia to Protect the Rapist but His Instructions Were Received Too Late. Crowd Quietly Dispersed.

Sullivan, Ind., Nov. 21.—James Dillard, the Kentucky negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Mary Davis, of Sullivan county, and Mrs. John Lemon, of Knox county, on Tuesday last, was hanged to a telegraph pole one mile east of John Lemon's farm, at 8 o'clock last night by a mob.

Dillard was captured at Lawrenceville, Ills., late Wednesday, after a battle with the town marshal, during which the negro was shot three times and severely wounded. He was then taken to Robinson, Ills., for safe keeping. Late yesterday afternoon the negro was brought to Sullivan in a wagon by the sheriff and his deputies for further identification. A mob of 40 or 50 farmers, heavily armed, took the prisoner from the officers. The negro was taken to the homes of both his victims and by them was identified. From the home of Mrs. Lemon, 10 miles east of here, the crowd started back to Sullivan with the prisoner, but one mile east of the Lemon farm a rope was thrown over the arm of a telegraph pole and the negro was hanged.

The governor had ordered out the Vincennes militia company to protect the negro, but his instructions were received too late.

After hanging the negro the mob quietly dispersed. It was composed mostly of farmers, but was largely augmented by citizens of Sullivan, Oaktown and other towns of this county.

SPECIAL POLICEMAN KILLED.

Surprised a Gang Looting Freight Cars and Was Shot.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Charles F. Dillon, a special policeman employed by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, was shot and instantly killed early yesterday in the yards of the railroad company while endeavoring to prevent the looting of a freight car by a gang of thieves. C. H. Yoran, a switchman, employed by the same company, was arrested shortly after the shooting and in his possession were found a number of broken seals.

After the capture of Yoran, Captain Kelly secured evidence which, he says, brought to light the fact that a conspiracy has existed among employes of the railroad company to rob the cars. Soon after the arrest of Yoran detectives also arrested Charles Watts, engineer, and William Melville, fireman. They were locked up. Watts is a brother of the assistant yardmaster. According to the police, Watts told them that for a long time several railroad employes had been engaged in a conspiracy to rob the company. He mentioned himself, Melville and Yoran.

Smallpox Increasing.

Harrisburg, Nov. 21.—The state board of health held its fifty-third regular meeting yesterday in the senate chamber. The annual report of Dr. Benjamin Lee of Philadelphia, secretary of the board, showed that there were 87 points in the state where smallpox exists and that the increase in the number of cases since Aug. 1 has been over 50 per cent monthly. Most of the cases are in the western and southern counties of Pennsylvania. Dr. Lee also reported that diphtheria exists in six localities in the state; scarlet fever in three and typhoid fever in three.

Freight Congestion Felt at Shamokin.

Shamokin, Pa., Nov. 21.—The effect of the freight congestion which the Pennsylvania railroad is experiencing on account of a shortage of locomotives and cars was first felt here yesterday, when a number of collieries were shut down because of a lack of cars. Several train crews were suspended and some locomotives were shipped to the west.

150 Persons Reported Drowned.

Vienna, Nov. 21.—A Bucharest newspaper publishes an unconfirmed report that the steamer Bosnia, belonging to the Florio and Rubattino company, loaded with cereals, has foundered in a gale in the Black sea, off Sulina, at the mouth of the Danube. One hundred and fifty persons are reported to have perished.

Admiral Schley at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Rear Admiral Schley and party arrived from Kansas City this morning and were tendered a breakfast at the Hamilton club by W. B. Washburn and Edwin A. Munger. There were present at the breakfast a number of the club members and other prominent citizens.

A Bachelor's Cost of Living.

If the average bachelor, with a millionaire's income, not the fellow who goes in for extravagant fads, but the man who maintains good social position and who entertains liberally, were to balance up his personal account for the year, it might contain these charges without comparative extravagance:

House or apartment and service	$10,000
Clubs	1,000
Automobiles	5,000
Total	$59,500

These are the more or less fixed items of expense, and any one who has ever attempted to keep a personal account knows that when you have put down the necessary expenses you may add almost as much for the thousand and one things that may be grouped conveniently under the head of "incidental expenses." In a general way it may be said that the millionaire bachelor who spends from $75,000 to $100,000 a year is living his life in accordance with the demands of the time on men of wealth.—Ainslee's.

A Catch Bet.

Turn round, and, with your back to the table, ask somebody to throw the dice. Then tell the person who threw them to double the number of the spots on the die on the left, and keep the number to himself. Tell him to add five, then multiply by five. To this figure have him add the number of spots on the die in the middle and multiply the product by ten.

Then ask him to multiply the number of spots on the third die and give you the aggregate sum. From the amount subtract mentally 250, and the remainder will show in the three figures the number of spots on each of the three dice. For instance, take three dice. Their numbers are three, five and two. Double the one on the left—five plus five equals ten. Add five, equals fifteen. Multiply by five, equals seventy-five. Add the number of spots on the die in the middle, three, equals seventy-eight. Multiply by ten, equals 780. Add number of spots on the third die, two, equals 782. Subtract 250 and 532 remains, which are numbers on the dice.

PHYSICIANS TESTIFY.

Principal Ills Miners' Asthma, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. One Man Coughed Up Coal Dust 15 Years After Leaving Mines.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The economic and socialogical features of the anthracite coal industry and the effect employment in and about the mines has upon the health of the mine workers were the principal things brought before the arbitration commission yesterday by the attorneys of each side of the controversy. While there was an entire absence of oratory or brilliant cross-examination, which marked the proceedings during the last few days, the cross-examination nevertheless closely held the attention of the commissioners and they gained much information on the several features touched upon by witnesses.

The afternoon session was particularly interesting, because it brought out much expert testimony on the part of the health of the mine workers. The physicians who have practiced in Scranton and Wilkesbarre took the stand for the miners and in substance testified that the occupation of a mine worker was very unhealthy and shortened his life. One physician, Dr. Frank P. Lenahan, of Wilkesbarre, who says he has had a long experience among mine workers, testified that 90 per cent of the men who worked in the mine are anaemic. The health is impoverished and their general condition is below par, thus decreasing their earning power. The principal ills suffered by the miners, the physicians said, were the miners' asthma, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. The miners' asthma comes from coal dust, powder smoke and vitiated air. Dr. John O'Malley, of Scranton, said that at postmortems he had seen miners' lungs as black as anthracite itself, and Dr. Lenahan testified he had personal knowledge of a man coughing up coal dust nine years after he left the mines. He said he had information that a man had coughed up coal dust 15 years after he had left the mines It was also stated that 90 per cent of the miners who reach the age of 50 years are afflicted with some form of rheumatism.

The cross-examination of Rev. Peter Roberts, D. D., of Mahanoy City, Pa., who has studied the anthracite coal industry and written a book on the subject, left the witness stand shortly after the noon recess. He began his testimony Wednesday. Copious extracts from his book were read and placed on record. Ex-Congressman Simon P. Wolverton, counsel for the Reading company, read much of the matter pertaining to violence in the 1900 strike, and also read articles written by Mr. Roberts during the progress of the late contest, which he described in strong language the acts of violence, intimidation and boycotting committed during that suspension. His articles spoke of some of these acts as "brutal outrages," and he also branded the union's action in calling out the steam men in Juneas "foolhardy." In explaining his articles Dr. Roberts said that he did not wish to infer that the organization was responsible for all the lawlessness committed. The doctor said Wednesday that newspaper accounts exaggerated the amount of lawlessness in the coal regions, but Mr. Wolverton's reading of Dr. Robert's description of serious acts of violence and boycotting afforded much amusement for the attorney for the coal companies.

Dr. Roberts gave it as his opinion that attempts to have non-union men form a separate organization instigated by parties opposed to organized labor. In attempting to show that carelessness of the miner contributes materially to the dangerousness of his occupation. Chairman Gray interposed with the remak that a margin of carelessness incident to human nature must be taken into account when estimating the dangerousness of any hazardous occupation.

Mr. Wilcox consumed the greater part of the time of the afternoon session in reading extracts from the book of Dr. Roberts on the anthracite coal industry. Occasionally he asked a question, and, replying to one, Dr. Roberts said that an established minimum wage would necessarily enable a man to live as a man.

Answering a question by Commissioner Parker, Dr. Roberts said that of the 64 children employed in the Olyphant breaker near this city, 50 per cent were under 14 years of age, and had others dependent on them.

The health of miners was still under investigation when the commission adjourned until today.

The commissioners were in conference last night until almost midnight. Among the matters discussed was that of having both sides present evidence more rapidly than it is now being done.

A Score.

Twenty is called a score because it represents the whole man, ten fingers and ten toes. Etymologically it means a cut or mark. In very early times, when men could not count beyond twenty, or "one man," it was usual to cut a notch in a stick and begin again, and so it went on, one man, two men, and so on. This is why sheep are still counted by the score. Now, a tally (French taille, cut or nicked) means an account kept by means of a notched stick, and until the end of the eighteenth century such sticks were given as exchequer receipts, accompanied by a written document. This was also the usual way of keeping accounts in the inns of the middle ages. The number of drinks or meals a customer had were scored against him on what was called a tally stick, and when it reached twenty, or a "whole man," he was expected to pay. In some English country inns scores are still kept on a slate, four chalk marks and one across—five—and four of these make twenty, or a score.

Freaks of the Tariff.

The following amusing details of the freaks of the custom house are told in the Munchener Zeitung: A German gentleman returning from southwest Africa brought with him a tiny monkey weighing about two pounds. From Tanga to Genoa the animal was conveyed gratis. Thence to the Swiss frontier 15d. was charged on it as "a bird." The St. Gothard railway officials, however, viewed it as "a dog," and charged 7s., while on the Eastern Swiss railway it became a mere "package," liable to 8d. Through Baden and Wurttemberg the animal was passed free, but at Stuttgart it again became "a dog" and cost another 17d.

Lacked Heart.

"Once there was a lawyer out near Galesburg," said an Illinois congressman, "who made a brilliant defense in a certain case. Men praised his effort. 'Will he make his mark for ability as an advocate?' some one asked. 'No,' replied the veteran lawyer. 'His ability begins here at the Adam's apple and extends upward. He must have something under his left breast.'" The congressman cited this as an example why some speeches fail in the house of representatives.—Washington Post.

A Modest Request.

To judge from an incident reported in the Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune, the department of agriculture sometimes appears from a distance like a big department store. During the season when members of congress send out seeds one of the packages found its way back to the sender, accompanied by a note from the farmer to whom it had been addressed.

"My dear sir," wrote the farmer, "I appreciate your good will in sending the seeds, but my eldest daughter, Matilda, is going to marry the doctor down to the village next month, and wife and I think of giving up the farm and going there to live. If we do, the seeds won't be much good, as we shan't have a garden; so if you could change them for some stockings (No. 9) and some handkerchiefs or a nice spring bonnet for Matilda I would be much obliged."

Minute Parts of a Watch.

THE MAIL BAG ROBBERS MAY YET BE CAPTURED THROUGH A RECENT CLUE

There came to light this morning evidence which may result in the bringing to justice of the robbers who looted the mail bag containing checks, postal orders and other valuable papers representing thousands of dollars from the C. & P. platform on the night of October 6, the startling account of which was exclusively published in the News Review.

Both the local officers and the secret service men assigned to the case have worked untiringly, not leaving a stone unturned in an effort to locate the guilty parties or discover a clue which would result in the apprehension of them. It leaks out today that the men who stole the valuable pouch are right in East Liverpool and have not been out of the city at any time during the past two months. They are seen on the streets every day and are well known local characters. They are industrious men, each being an employe in a local pottery. How many of them there are connected with the crime is not positively known, but the work was completed by at least two individuals, and it is possible that there were four implicated to a certain degree. One, who, from all appearances, engineered the robbery in strict accordance with his plans and wishes, lives on lower Broadway.

It was through a conversation heard by the head of another family living under the same roof that the evidence was secured. The informant, who refuses to allow his name to be published, states that one night of a recent date the following was heard accidentally coming from the room where one of the men lives:

"I dare you to tell that on me. You know that I know enough about you to land you behind prison bars. If you think for a minute that I will not tell all I know about you men stealing that mail bag, if you open your mouth about me, you are badly mistaken."

The person who happened to hear the above remarks says that they were uttered by a woman to her husband. After giving vent to the threatening language the woman became

EXPERTS IN HANDWRITING UTTERLY AT VARIANCE IN THE OPINIONS GIVEN

A Pittsburg Chirographic Authority Sees No Evidence That Kelly Wrote White-cap Letters.

A point blank difference of opinion as to the authorship of the white cap notices was brought out at the trial in the testimony of the hand writing experts. William J. Kinsley, the New York expert, who was on the stand for the defense yesterday, was an interesting witness. Mr. Kinsley has been called in some of most noted cases in the country among them the Molineux and the Rice will case in New York. He contended that the characteristics of individuals manifest themselves in peculiarities of hand writing as well as in personal appearances and other respects. On this basis he explained in detail why he believed after comparing the white cap letters with Kelley's writing that they were written by the same hand.

George W. Wood, a Pittsburg expert, summoned by the plaintiff was present and heard Kinsley's testimony. On the stand this morning he said, after a very careful comparison and investigation of the anonymous writings, with specimens of Kelly's writing he found nothing whatever to justify him in the belief that they were written by the same hand. He then went on to say that while he recognized in Mr. Kinsley an able and conscientious gentleman, in his opinion he had failed to observe some important and salient features. Mr. Wood compared the formation of certain characteristics which he says are usually overlooked by writers of anonymous literature, including the space between words in which it was shown that the condition in the two handwritings are opposite.

After Mr. Kinsley's testimony yesterday the outlook seemed dark for Kelly, but Mr. Wood's testimony this morning placed the case in a new light. The latter is also recognized as an eminent authority on hand writing.

NO SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

Both Journeymen and Boss Barbers Are Determined to Stand Out.

A MEETING LAST NIGHT

Barbers' Union Instructed Its Committee to Confer With the Employers With a View to Making a Last Attempt to Enforce the New Scale.

Owing to the continued firmness of both sides of the controversy it now looks more favorable for serious trouble between the boss barbers and their employes than at any time since the negotiations for the settlement of the journeymen's new scale began.

No less than three conferences have been held during the past few weeks, and though there is but one point upon which a settlement cannot be reached, neither party is willing to concede that question.

At a joint meeting held last week of the two committees a number of sections in the scale were adjusted satisfactorily, and the only clause remaining was that respecting the closing of all shops on legal holidays the entire day. It was after 10 o'clock when the confab ended and then it had been agreed upon that the question should be submitted to arbitration. The plan was altered, however, as the bosses concluded they might be able to agree among themselves.

Meantime the committee representing the journeymen made its report to the union, and the organization refused to accept it, placing the matter, so far as the journeymen are concerned, just where it was in the beginning.

The scale under which the union had been working for the past year expired on Wednesday and a walkout was expected, but did not occur. Matters were in such a mixed condition that it was thought best to defer action until the regular meeting was held last night. The session was a lengthy one and there were debates galore. The outcome was a continuance of the old committee with instructions to obtain a conference with the bosses at the earliest possible moment—tonight perhaps—and secure a definite answer as to whether or not they propose to sign the scale as it now stands.

In case they fail to receive a favorable reply it is difficult to conjecture what the final decision will be.

ONLY TWO WERE FOR HIM

Salineville Miners' Union In Bad Repute Because Members Refuse to Work With Natives—Will Lose Charter—Labor's Fine Showing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, November 21.—The Ohio Republican delegation will support Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker of the national house of representatives. At the meeting of the delegation held in this city yesterday it developed that the sentiment in this state was almost unanimous for Cannon. Harvey, of Cleveland, and John P. Carrothers, of Port Clinton, appeared at the meeting in behalf of Congressman T. E. Burton and formally announced his candidacy for speaker. The consensus of opinion was that it would be mere waste of time to declare for Burton as there seemed to be no possible chance of his election for the honor. Eleven members were present, and but two were for Mr. Burton. They were Morgan and Jackson, and they declared for Cannon as their second choice. Two of the members recorded as being present were represented by proxies, Kyle and Warnock.

General Dick sent a telegram to of the action taken at the conference. It was signed by Congressman Charles H. Grosvernor as chairman, and Congressman Charles Dick, as secretary. Those not present at the meeting were Gill, Beidler, Nevin and Burton. Congressman-elect James Kennedy was reported as being favorable to Burton when he arrived but he transferred his support to Cannon when it was made plain to him that Burton did not ahve a ghost of a show of winning. Mr. Kennedy was quite clever with the newspaper boys and made a very favorable impression among the members of the congressional delegation. He left for his home Thursday afternoon.

For the first time in the history of the United Mine Workers of America (Ohio) an Ohio local is in disrepute with the organization. The local referred to is located at Salineville, and has been found guilty of insubordination. It has been suspended and its seal and charter will be taken up. The members of the local refuse to work in a mine in which three Italians who are members in good standing of the state organization, are employed. The state officials investigated the matter and decided that as the Italians were unionists they should not be discriminated against on account of their nationality. The case was also placed before National President John Mitchell, who sustained the ruling of the state organization. Suspension is followed by forfeitures of rights to receive benefits from the state or national organizations. Secretary-Treasurer Savage has left for Salineville to secure the seal and charter of the recalcitrant body and he may encounter difficulty in getting them. The local may decide to become an independent miners' organization.

The advance sheets of the annual report of State Labor Commissioner M. D. Ratchford will be given out in a few days. They will show increases in the number of manufactories and wages so large as to be almost startling, according to the commissioner. The statistics were collected under the law passed last winter and will be presented on a more complete and elaborate scale than has been attempted heretofore. The report will deal extensively with the potting industry. Secretary of State Laylin's annual report will show that the receipts of his department for the fiscal year ending Nov. 15, will be upwards of $830,000, of which sum about $588,430 represents the fees paid in under the Willis law. The balance was from miscellaneous sources.

The Ashland contempt cases were heard by the supreme court yesterday. They were the outcome of the action of the probate court of that city in setting aside an order issued by the supreme court. The judge, whose name is Cloyd Mansfield, it developed, was not a lawyer, and he disfavored any intention of disobeying the order of the court. Similar pleas were made by the attorneys and litigant in the cases. The judge and one attorney were let off, but two of the attorneys and the litigant were fined $50, $75, and $100 respectively.

ADS THAT COUNT

Valuable Property Sold Through Five Line Announcement in the News Review.

While other papers are boasting of the recovery of lost watches, brindle pups and similar property through advertisements in their columns, the News Review desires to cite an instance where advertising really counts. By a five line ad inserted in the News Review, J. S. McIntosh, of 1042 Neil avenue, Columbus, Ohio, was enabled to sell a new house and lot in the East End, and the expense to him was only a trifle. He writes: "Through the ad in your paper I have sold the property." Scores of similar instances could be cited.

The News Review is the advertising medium in East Liverpool through which results are certain. And it never boasts unless it has something to boast about. Make your wants known and put your announcements in it and they will receive attention.

Rifled Slot Machine.

A chewing gum slot machine in a shattered condition was found this morning at the rear of Hall's lumber yard on Broadway and the pieces were later removed to the city hall by Officer Dawson. The machine had been rifled of its contents, both money and gum being taken. The police do not know to whom it belongs.

Granted a Pension.

'Squire J. N. Rose received notice this morning that a pension had been granted John P. McIntosh, of this city, who served with Company E in the Eighth Ohio volunteer infantry during the Spanish-American war. Mr. McIntosh will receive over $200 from the government, being granted $6 per month from December 29, 1898, to October 19, 1902.

PROCEEDINGS AVOIDED

Complicated Case of Biddie Versus McSpadden Settled Before 'Squire McCarron.

The case of John Biddle against J. C. McSpadden was settled in 'Squire McCarron's court last evening, Biddle receiving all that he had sued for. The suit was for $43.20, alleged to be due for work done for McSpadden on the Pleasant Heights street railway line. When the case was filed Joan Rinehart appeared in court and stated that he owed the money and not McSpadden. He also said that he would settle with Biddle, providing the plaintiff would liquidate a note with interest amounting to about $10.

Biddle contested the note and there promised to be considerable litigation over the matter, but when Rinehart paid Biddle the total amount plus $25 for a wagon the case was at an end. Biddle allowed the note in order to save legal proceedings.

FORCIBLE DETENTION

Charged in Two Writs Issued By Justice H. P. McCarron Today.

A writ for forcible detention was written in 'Squire McCarron's court this morning for Mrs. Hattie Woodburn, who alleges that "Chip" Gamble and his wife are living in her property on Second street, notwithstanding that she notified them to leave on November 8. The case will be heard tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Another writ of the same kind was issued by the 'squire about noon which will result in the decampment of Mrs. William Evans from the property of Ralph Alcock. Mr. Alcock has waited for several weeks on Mrs. Evans to vacate and she refusing to do so, he decided to eject her by lawful proceedings.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF ELECTRIC LIGHTS

On the night of November 21, 1885, there was an occurrence in East Liverpool which created more excitement than any event during that year. Seventeen years ago tonight the first electric light which was ever turned on in the city was allowed to beam forth. There was great excitement and nearly the entire population turned out to witness the exhibition.

When the average citizen recalls that at the present time something over $800 is paid out each month in light bills for the city it can be readily seen that the growth and progress of the city of East Liverpool has been phenomenal.

RAILROAD AT STATE LINE

Work of Grading Begun On a Line to Reach Coal Lands.

Captain J. L. B. Dawson and others of Beaver county some time ago got a charter for a railroad extending a mile or so up the Little Beaver on the west side. Work has now begun on grading the line, the object being to reach the coal fields in the vicinity of Ohioville.

Delightfully Entertained.

Mrs. George H. Owen and Mrs. J. W. Patterson, at the home of the former, 181 Jefferson street, delightfully entertained the past grands and officers of the society of the Daughters of Rebekah last evening. Much pleasure was derived from the enticing and enjoyable game, peanuts. At the conclusion of the game prizes were awarded to Miss Mary Lloyd and Mrs. Sheridan McGavern for superior playing and the booby prize to Mrs. Alex McBane. Choice refreshments were served and the evening was one long to be remembered by all present.

GIRL'S SAD CASE

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD CHILD COMPLAINS TO THE MAYOR.

Compelled to Earn Own Living Among Disagreeable Associates And Away From Home.

Miss Grace Moore, the young girl of whom Samuel Mann, who was adjudged insane by Judge Boone, talked incessantly while confined in the city jail, appeared at the mayor's office this afternoon and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of Jack Brighouse. She stated that Brighouse had insulted her this morning and that he had acted in a very indecent manner. The mayor advised her to drop her complaint, having no witnesses and also warned her to find another boarding house. She accepted the advice and warning.

Her case is a deplorable one to say the least. She is not more than 15 years of age; she has no mother and is in the city working for a live, good. It is said her father made her leave home two weeks ago and upon her departure recommended the Brighouse home as one fit for her to live and get boarding. She has had an exciting time while in the city and has seen more of the world than in all her life before. After she told her story to the mayor he frankly told her that he did not think much of her father. For a true father would not send his child away unless he knew well the people to whom he sent her for guidance and protection.

She stated that she did not know that Sam Mann was infatuated with her and although she knew him she did not love him.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Fred Ohlenhauser, Formerly of This City, Killed in Wreck at Carnegie.

As the result of injuries received in a railroad wreck at Carnegie, Pa., on Tuesday evening, Fred Ohlenhauser, aged 26 years, formerly of this city, working for several years at his trade at the plant of the Specialty Glass company, died Wednesday. His remains were shipped to this city, arriving on the midnight train for burial. The funeral was held at 3 p. m., at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rose Bowers, Florence street, conducted by Rev. Edwin Weary, of St. Stephen's church. Buriel was made in Spring Grove cemetery.

WHY NOT CHINA?

We have repeatedly advocated the substitution of beautiful so-called silverware for presents, says the Pottery Gazette. Whether as prizes for athletic, cycling, or boating competitions, or as souvenirs of personal regard, nothing can be more appropriate than artistic china. It will retain its beautiful features longer than ware that requires frequent cleanings, and it has the advantage that it may be preserved without deterioation where it can be seen daily for many years. Silver goods on the other hand, will tarnish even when enclosed in a glass case, and require constant attention to retain their brilliancy. It is becoming a custom to present a china loving cup when it is intended to honor a comrade, and we have seen some beautifully ornamented cups specially produced for the purpose. Colored and gilt monograms and crests make effective decorations to such presents. M. Loubet, the French president, gave instructions that the magnificient table service, modeled by Leonard, and which was so greatly admired at last year's exhibition, should be sent to Complege. It was used for the grand state banquet there on the occasion of the Czar's visit, and it is to be forwarded to St. Petersbrug as M. Loubet's gifts to the czarina. Critics are unanimous in approving the good taste of the president's selection, as it is a unique opportunity of bringing under the notice of the czar, the excellence of French decorative art. The set consists of 30 pieces representing female dancers in various costumes and postures, but all characters may be followed with advantage by municipal, legal and sporting bodies who wish to pay a graceful compliment to one of their number.

TWO OBJECT LESSONS.

"Our customers as well as ourselves will no doubt get an object lesson before the close of the year's business," said a prominent manufacturer to a News Review reporter this afternoon. "Most of us have been crowding on a full head of steam in our plants in our desire to have invoices reach our customers in time for the heavy buying season of the holidays and just when we were beginning to congratulate ourselves on our success along comes a freight blockade and shipments are no doubt being held up all along the line. We cannot ship by river as the water is too low for the boats to run, so there is no way out of the dilemma. The lesson we learn is the great advantage of having the river navigable the year round, and the lesson to our customers is that they should place their orders a month earlier in the season. If the river improvements were now completed we could send our western railway shipments by boat to some railroad center less congested than Pittsburg, avoiding the delays now experienced. I have learned the lesson," he concluded, "and will do all in my power to bring about a nine foot stage of water the year round."

FILLING ORDERS PROMPTLY.

The strong demand for the product of the Union Potteries company is evidenced by the heavy shipments from the plant in this city. Especially is this true of decorated ware which is recognized as the equal, in body, decoration and design, to any make in the country. With considerable extra effort the orders have been gotten out with a promptness gratifying to customers. Two cars were sent west this week, one to Peoria and the other to Chicago.

SOLD RIGHT OF WAY.

James Hargreaves, of the packing department at Cartwright's, is one of the owners of a tract of land on Little Beaver creek, near Smith's Ferry, and some time ago the agents of the company that propose to build a railroad along the waterway secured an option from him and the other heirs. This option was taken up this week by Attorney Harry Freese, of Canton, acting for the company and the deed is now in his possession.

LEARNING FROM THE FRENCH.

It is a funny thing, but French people are teaching us how to serve tea just now and Parisian artificers are supposed to lead the world in the production of dainty tea tables. The Louis XV. style is the one most affected just now by the tea makers of Paris, and the service must consist of six pieces—a samovar, a tea pot, coffee pot, sugar bowl, cream jug, and big tray on which the equipage rests.

LOST IN THE FOG.

Will Goppert, of the kiln crew at Vodrey's, lives in Chester and comes across the river every morning to his work in a skiff. The other morning he set sail from the foot of Union street in a heavy fog and soon lost his bearings, finally running aground on Line island. He was so exasperated that he returned to the West Virginia shore, procured his gun and spent the remainder of the day hunting.

TEMPORARY SHUTDOWN.

Operatives to the number of half a dozen were here Wednesday and yesterday from New Cumberland calling on friends in the various plants. They stated that the Chelsea China company's plant at that place was shut down temporarily owing to an unlooked for delay in receiving a car of flint.

FINE DRIVING HORSE.

John T. Cartwright, the popular manager of the Cartwright Bros.' pottery, recently purchased M. E. Golding's fine four-year-old gelding. The animal was "bred in old Kentucky" and has done some promising stunts on the track. Mr. Cartwright will use him only for driving purposes.

MR. McGONIGLE ILL.

It is reported today that Ab McGonigle, of the kiln crew at the Buckeye, is on the sick list, his malady being lead colic. Mr. McGonigle has been off duty several days and is at his home under the care of a physician. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

AT WORK AGAIN.

John Hagen, dish finisher at the D. E. McNicol, who was injured a week or more ago in Chester by stumbling over the car tracks while returning from a dance, has entirely recovered and was at work again yesterday.

POTTERY AT MINERVA.

A $50,000 loan from the town is all that stands in the way of a $75,000 pottery at Minerva, it is said. Frank Sebring and an East Liverpool potter, name not given, are the reported promoters.

NOTES OF THE POTTERS.

Miss Camilla McDonald, a finisher at the Union, has returned to work after a two week's illness.

Ed. Daugherty, who is now running a fruit jigger at New Cumberland, was calling on friends here yesterday.

EAST END

ACCORDING TO BENEFITS.

Councilman Marshall Says a Few Words About Assessment Plans.

Dr. R. J. Marshall, councilman from the Fifth ward, is highly pleased over the support the people of the East End are giving him in his efforts to prevent the entire cost of the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue from being assessed entirely upon the property owners of the East End. He read the interviews with prominent East End citizens in the News Review last evening with a great deal of satisfaction and said to a reporter this morning:

"In assessing according to benefits derived, not alone on Pennsylvania avenue, but on Trentvale street and Calcutta road as well, the assessing board levied according to the amount of money necessary to be raised instead of as to the actual benefits each piece of property derived from the improvement. A piece of property assessed $10 must be enhanced in value an equal amount to be just. If you assess property that has not increased in value you get entirely away from the principle of assessments by benefits."

Social a Success.

The social last evening at the home of Rev. J. N. Swan, on Ohio avenue, given by the Y. P. S. C. E., of the Second Presbyterian church, was a success in every particular. The photograph guessing contest was the amusing feature. Twenty-seven pictures were presented out of which Mrs. Ira Chamberlain guessed 24 correctly. She was awarded the prize, a bunch of beautiful chrysanthemums. Mrs. Mayme Miller guessed correctly the least number and was given the consolation prize, a bag of salt. The sale of refreshments and home made candy netted about $10.

Freak Calf Unclaimed.

The men who appeared at the home of Mrs. Weaver, near the Klondike, recently, and deposited a sum of money in part payment for the freak calf have not appeared to pay the remainder of the purchase and claim the property. It may be that they have changed their minds about it as a museum attraction and if they have Mrs. Weaver is ahead the sum in her possession. Robert Parker, of the decorating room at the National pottery, recently photographed the animal and there has been quite a demand for the pictures.

A Lucky Accident.

Mrs. Taylor Larkins met with a painful injury about six o'clock this morning at her home on First avenue and that she was not more severely injured is almost miraculous The trap door on the rear porch leading to the cellar had been left open and Mrs. Larkins, failing to notice it in the semi-darkness, fell through the aperture. She was severely bruised but unfortunately no bones were broken.

Car No. 1 Was First.

The safety device at the Mulberry street crossing is completed so far as the East Liverpool Street Car company is concerned. The force of men from this company completed the work of laying the derailing switches just before noon yesterday and they went into use immediately. Car No. 1 in charge of Conductor Goodman and Motorman Tice had the honor of being the first to use the switch.

Retail Clerks' Dance.

One of the pleasantest social affairs of the season was the dance at the Columbian park pavilion last evening given by the Retail Clerks' union. At least 250 tickets were sold and the attendance was very little short of this number. The dancing commenced about 8:30 and continued until the last car at 11:30. Ormes Bros.' orchestra furnished the music.

Entertains This Evening.

Miss Inez Darringer will entertain a number of her young friends this evening with a party. Music and games will provide the amusement and refreshments will be served. Thirty invitations are out.

Fractured His Knee.

James Jamison, employed at the Smith & Phillips pottery as a kiln placer, and who lives near the plant, sustained a serious injury yesterday while placing a sagger in one of the kilns. In some way he fell from the steps striking his knee. The injury pained him severely but was not thought to be serious until this morning when it was learned that the knee joint was fractured.

Select the good, avoid the bad, then you will always use Meredith's Diamond Club Pure Rye Whiskey; price fair, goods guaranteed.

Finish Up Tonight.

District Deputy D. F. White, assisted by A. P. Myler, will go to Calcutta this evening to put the finishing touches on the installation of Calcutta circle No. 535 Protected Home Circle. A class of about twelve candidates are to be initiated and a number of additional officers are to be elected.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

The clay hands at Laughlin No. 3 were reported idle today on account of a shortage of boards.

Mrs. Frank Knowles, who has been ill the past three weeks with an attack of grip, is slowly improving.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston, of the Second U. P. church, continues to improve from his recent serious illness.

'Squire L. W. Carman returned this morning from a visit of a few days with relatives in Washington county, Pa.

Attorney J. E. Davis, and T. J. Andrews, Jr., were out near Calcutta yesterday on a hunting expedition and were very successful, bringing home four rabbits and a number of birds.

The operation performed yesterday on Milton Martin, of the Klondike, by Dr. Mowen, assisted by Dr. Hendershot, was very successful and the patient rallied nicely from it. This morning he was resting easy and it is now thought that he will recover from now on.

MANY OBJECTIONS

Raised By Property Owners to Method of Paying for Pennsylvania Avenue Paving.

H. E. Grosshans, W. A. Calhoun and George Olnhausen, the three men appointed by the council at its last meeting as an equalization board for the Pennsylvania avenue improvement, held its first session yesterday.

A number of the property owners who are assessed for the improvement of the road appeared before the board and filed their objections to the assessment. This is the proper method under the law to make protest and the members of the board will meet at stated intervals to receive objections.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Local Members Will Attend Impressive Exercises at Beaver Falls Sunday.

Next Sunday will be an important season for the Knights of Columbus of Beaver Falls. A large delegation of East Liverpool Knights will attend the ceremonies, leaving here early Sunday morning in order to attend solemn high mass to be celebrated in St. Peter's Catholic church at 11 o'clock. This service will be the opening of the program, which will end with a banquet in the evening.

Among the prominent Catholics and distinguished officers of the Knights of Columbus who will be present will be the bishop of the Pittsburg diocese.

The local council is in a flourishing condition, having a membership of 125. Among those who will go to Beaver Falls from here are Rev. Father Mahon, rector of St. Aloysius' church; Joseph P. Harrington, P. J. McKeone, J. H. Grafton, J. M. Ryan, Timothy Hickey, Thomas Nagle, M. J. McGarry and Thomas Plunkett.

"Each Filipino," says President Roosevelt, "is guaranteed his life, his liberty and a chance to pursue happiness as he wishes, so long as he does not harm his fellows, in a way the islands have never before known before during all their recorded history." The Filipinos for the first time in their history, are well governed, and most of them have sense enough to appreciate the fact, and let the antis at home do the complaining.

Secretary Hitchcock will win the country's plaudits for the vigorous way in which he is enforcing the law against the cattle kings who have illegally fenced in tracts of the public domain. The cattle kings are able to buy land if they need it. Even if they were not they would have no past excuse for shutting out settlers anxious to buy.

The Alliance Review of November 20 was printed bearing the date of November 19. Then the error was discovered and remedied by means of a rubber stamp. Fortunately for the "hand printer" the edition was not as large as that of the London Times and he was able to complete his task the same day.

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, whose case has been thoroughly investigated by a special committee, has been completely exonerated. This is welcome news to thousands of workingpeople throughout this country, who have the utmost confidence in Mr. Gompers.

East Liverpool would soon get the reputation of being as slow as Philadelphia if every job undretaken proceeded as slowly as the house moving on Jefferson street. The house has moved three inches in a week, but that was by settling.

The effect of our national prosperity is felt by our neighbors in Canada. American settlers and American capital are flocking in, bank clearings are increasing and farming and manufacturing are expanding in various directions.

The Chinese government is said to be training its army on modern methods, but finds it hard to persuade the soldiers that umbrellas ought not to be carried by soldiers during a battle.

Now an advance in railroad freights is promised, and there are people who will say that the railroads are making it to recoup themselves for that ten per cent. advance in wages.

One of the Democrats elected to congress in Massachusetts is a protectionist. This incident suggests that the Democratic party may yet find an issue.

Teddy killed no bears, but it will be recorded to his credit that he shot no guides either.

Highlandtown, from the testimony produced in court, must have had excitement enough last year to satisfy it for a century.

Alfred Austin's latest poem is disappointing. It is entitled "Good By," but there is nothing in it to indicate that he means it.

Salem newspapers are zealously booming two cross-county electric railroad projects. One at a time ought to suffice.

Ohio also helps to load Cannon for the speakership fight. But it looks now as if there were going to be no fight.

Freight congestion is bound to occur in a growing country that is slow in improving its waterways.

The freight blockade at Pittsburg is no longer effective and business men are rejoicing.

The president is now at home again and both he and the Mississippi bears are safe.

Death of An Infant.

The seven months old child of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Bentz, of 371 Ida street, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, from whooping cough. The interment was made at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Grove cemetery.

AT THE THEATER

Tonight the Chicogo Stock company will present the feature of their engagement, "Nell Gwynn." It is a drama where the men wear torrent curls and gold bespangled vestments. It is a gauntlet and the sword. It is picturesque, and aglow with tragedy and passion. The character of Nell Gwynn, England's once favorite actress, King Charles, the merry monarch of the Louis XVI century, Lord Shaftsbury, the Duke of York and play of velvet, satin and lace, of the Lord Rochester are all known personages of history, whose portrayal lend realism to the great romance and adds interest to the strong dramatic situations.

New specialties will brighten the waits between acts, and as this is a featured bill and tonight is society night, a crowded house will no doubt be out to enjoy the famous production.

THE REPORTS ARE EXAGGERATED

Washington, Nov. 21.—Mr. A. Lazo Arriaga, the minister from Guatemala to the United States, has just received from his government letters and telegrams stating that the reports published in this country about the loss of life and property caused by the eruption of the Santa Maria volcano are exaggerated. While it is true that a part of the present coffee crop is lost, the dispatches say it is generally expected that most of the plantations of the affected district will recuperate. The loss of life was very small and the president of the republic from the first moment adopted the most energetic measures of relief, which the dispatches say avoided considerable suffering and preserved peace and order in the affected region. Minister Lazo Arriaga last night emphatically denied reports that bands of robbers were swarming the desolated sections, robbing and murdering refugees, and said the official correspondence just received by him showed that such outrages could not be perpetrated.

Jackson and Morgan, are pledged to support Burton, of Ohio, in the event he shall become a candidate. Mr. Burton did not attend the conference.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 21.—Ten of the 11 Republican congressmen in Michigan met yesterday and discussed the speakership of the next house. A formal motion was carried that the Michigan delegation go on record in favor of the candidacy of Congressman Joseph Cannon, of Illinois, for speaker.

NEW ERA CLUB

An Enjoyable Meeting Held And an Interesting Program Carried Out.

The third meeting of the New Era club was held last evening at the home of Miss Mary Bruner on Front street. Nearly all of the members were present and thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

The following program was rendered: Quotations, Miss Beranger; "Feudalism and Castle Life," Miss Grace Parker; "Blanche, of Castile," Miss McLean; reading, "Heloise," Julia Ward Howe, Miss Cope; the lesson, Middle Ages. Miss Margaret Arnold acted as leader for the program.

Music and games were enjoyed during the remainder of the evening and refreshments were served at a late hour, after which the members retired to their respective homes.

POLICE RIDE FREE

A Badge And Not Full Uniform Now Suffices Instead of Car Fare.

Wellsville police officers are now allowed to ride on the street cars of the East Liverpool Railway company without car fare. The rule which Manager Healy introduced some time ago compelling local policemen to pay fare when not in full uniform has been annulled and now local officers can ride at any time. All they are required to show is their badge of office.

At a recent meeting of the city council Mayor Fogo requested council to send a written request to the street railway company, asking that the Wellsville policemen be allowed to ride free of charge when wearing their badge. The request was granted by council and Mr. Healy complied favorably.

Trades Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Potters' hall. Final arrangements were made for the dance to be given by the council on New Year's evening. McGraw's orchestra, of East Liverpool, has been engaged. Refreshments will also be served. Trades council took up the question of ascertaining which of the Pittsburg papers were union newspapers and which were not. The question of cleaning the streets of the city was talked of and resolutions will be drawn up and signed at the next meeting.

Excellent Lectures.

Another of Dr. Tracy's superb lectures was given last evening at the Cooper opera house. His subject was "Bitters Creek and Beer River." The lecture was on temperance. The lecture this evening will be on "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." His subject for Saturday evening will be "Our National Curse." All of the moving pictures which Dr. Tracy shows while lecturing are first-class. Excellent music is furnished.

Fire Plugs to Be Placed.

The new fire plugs and the two iron water troughs which were ordered some time ago by the water works trustees from the Eddy Valve company, of Waterford, N. Y., have arrived and will soon be placed around the outlying districts of the city, especially along Steubenville street, where fire protection is badly needed.

Mission Society Meeting.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas Allen on Eighth street. After the usual business a social session was held. Local topics were discussed and music was enjoyed.

Wellsville Barber Held Up.

While en route to his home last night at about 11 o'clock, in the West End, Wellsville, Van Cornell, a barber, was held up by a brutish looking man, but before being victimized he scared the evil accoster away and reached home without further trouble.

Three Arrests Made.

S. E. Anderson, Sylvester Toho and G. G. Burkhart were before the mayor this morning. The latter was charged with resisting officers. The first two were each fined $4.75 and Burkhart had to pay $9.35. He will probably not be so anxious hereafter to show his fighting blood.

quiet, but since that she has burst out in similar threats several times. The husband has for months acted in a very mysterious manner. He leaves the house every night at about 2 o'clock and returns an hour or so later.

It is thought that he is at the head of an organized band of thieves and that the results of their work have reaped them a rich harvest. Early in the morning of October 6, an hour before daylight, sounds came from the room which now are thought to have been made in hammering at the lock on the mail bag. However, this may be only a conjecture, as the lock to all appearances was not dented. Almost every night sounds of a similar ring come forth from the room, and it is said to be plain that something unlawful is being done by the man and his confederates.

The Shanghai ad was offered to the News Review and to thousands of other papers. The News Review rejected it because it was not accompanied by cash. It would be interesting to know how many of the publishers who inserted the notice for the shrewd Celestial have received pay for doing so.

STREET EXTENSIONS

DISCUSSED AT LENGTH BY THE CHESTER COUNCIL.

Mr. Croxall's Offer As Regards California Avenue—Vote to Open Third Street.

The extension of California avenue through the Croxall property was discussed by Chester council last night. Every member was present.

Mr. Riley, of the street committee, reported that he had seen Mr. Croxall and that the latter said, at 15 cents per square foot it would take $2,200 to buy the ground necessary for California avenue through his property, but he was willing to take one-half that, which would be $1,100, for the right to go through. He also stated that Mr. Croxall claims part of Second street between the Railroad and Virginia avenue for a distance of about 70 feet. This he agrees to donate if the town bears the paving assessment. A move to accept this proposition was carried.

Some discussion by all members of council was held in regard to paying Mr. Croxall $1,100 for the right of California avenue through his orchard. Council thought he would have to open the street himself before long. The matter was left, however, in the hands of the street committee.

The railroad crossing was brought up again. Mr. Skinner, who was present, was asked why the company had not met with council as previously arranged. He said he had not heard a word from the officials and did not know why they did not come at the time set. He asked for more time and said he would wire them this morning. A motion to give them another week was carried.

Council then ordered Street Commissioner Severs to repair the alley between Second street and Mr. Roan's on First street.

William Severs was present and showed council where certain streets damaged his property unnecessarily, and council voted unanimously to open up Third street from Carolina avenue through to Middle run.

A bill of Engineer Boyd for services of $232.75 was among those ordered paid.

Mayor Shrader said Contractor Freshwater had not received any money, and as he had finished some work he needed some money and thought property owners should pay it in.

Recorder Mercer was ordered to instruct Engineer Boyd to estimate each property owner's share of the paving assessment, so they could be ready to pay it.

Shrader and Riley referred to some water boxes being left too low on the streets. Mercer moved the light committee to see Risinger Bros. and have lights fixed immediately. The motion carried and council adjourned.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Further Steps Toward Organizing And Building in Chester.

Action was taken some time ago regarding the organization of a Presbyterian church in Chester. It was found that a number of members of that church resided in the town and a committee was appointed to look up a location for a church. This was done and a lot purchased on Indiana street, near Fifth. Samuel Allison and A. G. Pugh were engaged yesterday in securing a list of members of the church, which will reach nearly 100.

It is thought in a short time a church will be built and a regular pastor installed.

Teachers' Institute.

The following is a program of the Grant district teachers' institute to be held in the high school building in Chester tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 12 m: "Biography of E. E. A cordial invitation is extended to patrons and friends of the school.

Takes Another Position.

S. H. Ferguson, who has been telegraph operator with A. L. Skinner, agent at the Panhandle station, Chester, has severed his connection with that office and left today to accept a more lucrative position with the same company in an interlocking tower near Pittsburg. Mr. Ferguson made many friends in Chester and East Liverpool during his stay.

Work On the New Line.

M. Ling and E. B. Fry, millrights of New Oxford, Pa., arrived in Chester last evening to place the machinery in the new Faulk Bros.' mill. A part of the machinery has arrived, but a large part of it was wrong shipped and has not arrived yet. Carpenters are now engaged in building a stable in connection with the mill.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Call Money Easy and In Light Demand—Bonds Quieter and Fluctuations Slight.

New York, Nov. 21.—Except for a few irregular and comparatively unimportant moves yesterday's stock market was very like that of the preceding days of this week. Fractional losses were recorded in the early dealings by all the coal stocks, as well as by the more active industrials. The demand for stocks came chiefly from the shorts and was confined largely to Copper, Sugar, Reading, New York Central and Manhattan.

Time money conditions, while no more acute than they have been recently, continue to excite some apprehension. The demand yesterday was moderate, but lenders were still holding off for a stiff rate. Call money was easy and again in light demand. There was practically no change in the foreign exchange situation. As compared with last week the banks have lost only a nominal sum to the sub-treasury.

The bond market was much quieter and fluctuations were slight either way. Total sales, par value, $1,855,000.

LISBON IS EAGER

The East Liverpool football team, as stated exclusively in the News Review, is practically a thing of the past, but it is said that the members will reorganize for the purpose of playing the Lisbon team for a purse of $100. The following football article appeared in the Buckeye State:

"At a game of football between East Liverpool's first team and the Lisbon eleven played at the former town some time ago, Lisbon won the game by a score of 6 to 5. However, East Liverpool claimed the game by a similar score and proclaimed itself champions of the county. The manager of the East Liverpool team agreed to play a return game at Lisbon on the 15th of the present month, but at the last momont canceled the date. Manager Nicholls, of the Lisbon team, then challenged the East Liverpool team to play for $100 a side on neutral grounds, and that offer has not been accepted, and is still open. The East Liverpool eleven averages 181 pounds while the Lisbon team averages 154 pounds. The East Liverpool team also has two prize fighters in its lineup. The question naturally arises is East Liverpool afraid of Lisbon, or are they ashamed to take easy money? If it is the latter they need have no delicacy as they are most welcome to it. If the former they should hasten to get out of the business."

ROVERS VS. SEBRING

West Enders Have Practiced Diligently And Promise a Warm Game.

Manager Ashbaugh, of the West End Rovers foot ball team, states that his team has not been during the season in better condition than at the present time. The members have been practicing much for the game to be played in West End park on Saturday afternoon with Sebring. Last evening by electric light the team practiced for several hours and this afternoon they will try it again. Following are the lineups that will meet tomorrow:

YOUNGSTOWN CHALLENGED

J. H. Wooliscroft, secretary of the East Liverpool Rovers foot ball team, has written the following challenge to Manager McGrath, of the Youngstown team:

"The East Liverpool Rovers would like to play a game of association foot ball with the Youngstown team, also Niles. The Rovers claim the championship of eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. We have played all the good teams in western Pennsylvania and have not lost a game this season. We played East Pittsburg last Saturday and tied. We would now like to meet the best of the eastern Ohio teams, and from all we can learn the Youngstown team is one of them. If possible we would like to arrange a game with Manager McGrath's eleven for Christmas week, December 27, if he has not already booked that date."

It is thought quite likely that the Youngstown aggregation will accept the defi and local sports are already looking forward to the game with interest.

FRATERNAL VISIT

Of Royal Arch Masons of This City to Wellsville Most Enjoyable.

A large delegation of the members of the local lodge R. A. M., visited the Wellsville chapter last evening in response to an invitation received by them. When the regular business and degree work had been concluded all sat down to an elegant banquet. The visit was a most pleasant one.

The Wellsville lodge has two candidates awaiting initiation while the East Liverpool chapter will confer the same degree upon one applicant in the near future. An attempt will be made to hold a joint meeting for the purpose of initiating all three. If this can be arranged an enjoyable session is anticipated.

LEFT QUARANTINE

Without Permission, Going Away on Crutches—Beggar Eludes Guard.

Alliance, November 21. — Mrs. M. Sherman, a street beggar, who walks with a crutch and who hails from Canton, was one of the unfortunates who by chance was in the Russell house when quarantine was established. She claimed that 29 years ago she had the small pox and hence was immune. She wired the state board of health these facts, but the order came back for her to remain in quarantine the required period.

On Wednesday she made her boast that she would make her escape before Thursday, and she made her boast good. Nobody knows how she got out.

Important Provisions Regarding the Police and Fire Departments.

Personal Solicitation of the Board Disqualifies an Applicant from Securing a Place—Merit System Prevails in Appointments.

In addition to the details given in the News Review yesterday respecting duties and privileges of members of the police and fire departments, there are a number of other points of even more importance which were not touched upon.

It has been explained that the merit system shall control in both the police and fire departments, and the new municipal code makes it perfectly plain as to how the observance of this rule shall be carried out by the mayor and the board of public safety. It is the duty of the department of public safety to classify all offices and places of appointment and employment in each city, with special reference to the examination which shall in every case be made.

The rules in this case—East Liverpool—shall be made to apply to cities of the same sort less than 25,000, and no appointment shall be made unless the rules provided for the government of that department shall have been observed and carried out to the letter.

When the work of classification has been finished the board shall furnish to the mayor a list of all offices, employment of all employes connected therewith. It shall, in connection with these duties furnish to the mayor a detailed statement of the condition and workings of its respective department when called upon by him to do so.

An applicant, in order to entitle him to appear for examination or to be examined must certify to a large number of allegations, such as nationality, age, place of birth, health and physical capacity for public service, residence for the previous five years, educational qualifications and numberless other things which some might think had no bearing upon the subject.

The law also says that a person shall be ineligible for appointment to any position in the gift of the department of public safety unless he or she shall have been a resident of the state and city for at least one year previous to the appointment.

One of the strongest points in the new code, as it deals with this department is that which says: "Any personal solicitation to any officer or member of said board, or to the appointing power in favor of any candidate by any person whatsoever, unless fraudulently done in order to injure him, shall be taken to be and deemed to have been done at the instance of the candidate himself, and shall disqualify him from competing at any examination for appointment for and druing the term of one year thereafter."

The board is privileged to make such changes in the rules governing the departments as from time to time it may deem necessary. None of these rules shall become operative, however, until they shall have been made public for a certain length of time.

The mode of examination and the qualifications neccessary to enable a man to take the examination for appointment on either or both of these departments under the merit system, are lengthy and interesting, and will be given here at another time.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment, and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Druggist.

Superb Decorations, Fine Music And Everything in Excellent Taste.

No entertainment of the social realm of this season has been more elegant in appointments or more typical of an able and popular hostess than the receptions given yesterday afternoon and evening by Mrs. Walter Briggs Hill at her spacious home on Cook street. From 2 until 5:30 the Hill home was thronged with the prominent society leaders of the city, who enjoyed the hospitality of a charming hostess.

As the guests arrived they were received at the door by Master Roland Hill, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill, who in a manner at ease and sedate escorted them to the reception room where they were greeted by the hostess, also by Mrs. H. W. Hill, Mrs. R. W. Patterson and others.

After some time spent in social chat, the guests withdrew to the dining room, where they partook of elaborate refreshments. The assistants in the dining room, who were clad in costumes of white, were Misses Florence Hill and Maude Fisher and Mesdames W. W. Harker, W. T. Tebbutt, W. L. Taylor, Thomas Anderson, Jr., Frank H. Grosshans, George Davidson, W. H. Vodrey, A. T. Kelly and W. L. Thompson.

As the guests passed from the dining room they were favored with a large white carnation by Muriel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tebbatt.

The docorations in the dining room were delicate in design and effectively arranged. Green and white were much in evidence. The center table was decorated with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums about which which was prettily arranged sprays of asparagus, suspended from the chandilier in festoons. Probably the prettiest feature of the latter part of the afternoon was little two year old Eleanor, who, as she danced about to strains of music rendered by Allen's Peerless Mandolin club, seemed utterly unconscious of the shower of compliments she was receiving from the admiring guests whom she was entertaining. It was not until 5:30 the company dispersed delighted with the gracious hospitality extended to them by a gifted hostess.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hill entertained the Flabbergaster club and the members' husbands at cards.

At Mrs. John Patterson's Yesterday an Event of Interest in Church Circles.

One of the pleasantest events of the season in church circles was the missionary tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson yesterday afternoon. Quite a large number attended. By special invitation Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Pratt were present and joined the society. During the afternoon Mrs. Frank Crook, president, requested Dr. Pratt to address the society. He responded to this request in a most felicitous manner, and gave many valuable suggestions regarding home missionary work. At the conclusion of his remarks light refreshments were served.

A canvass for members resulted in eight accessions. Arrangements were perfected for the special service to be held next Sunday morning at the First M. E. church.

The following reception committee was appointed: Mesdames S. J. Cripps, Monroe Patterson, Lawrence Thomas, John Anderson, B. W. Haines, P. Fowler, Andrew Watson, William Morris, Arthur Hill, William Rowe, Esther Thomas, Florence Updegraff, Jessie Manley, Ella Cober and Georgia P. Ikirt.

Mrs. John Patterson, Misses Cliebe, Baum and Campbell were appointed as decorating committee.

Dr. Pratt is preparing a special sermon for this occasion and it is expected to be an occasion of eminent interest which all are cordially invited to attend.

ENTERTAINED AT PEANUTS

An Enjoyable Party Given By Mrs. Metz And Daughters, Fifth Street.

In response to invitations issued by Mrs. Harriet Metz and daughters at 2:30 yesterday a large company assembled and enjoyed to the utmost the hours which passed too swiftly.

The diversion of the afternoon was peanuts, and was participated in with much zest by all present. Mrs. Clifford Bough won the first prize, a handsome vase containing a large bouquet of pink and white carnations. At the conclusion of the game very choice refreshments were served.

After nearly two hours being devoted to the exquisite menu the guests departed with very happy memories of the cordial hospitality of Mrs. Metz and daughters.

No Thanksgiving Ball.

At a meeting of the High school club, composed of 20 members from the junior and senior classes, held at the home of Clarence Bauman, on Fourth street, the advisability of giving a dance on Thanksgiving evening was discussed. As the majority of the club members belong to the high school foot ball team which plays Steubenville on that day it was decided to select a later date.

Stole Chewing Gum Machine—Last evening an automatic chewing gum machine was stolen from the Hodson Drug company's building, corner Fifth and Broadway. The box was nailed to the building and contained a supply of chewing gum and a small sum of money. Mr. Hodson stated this morning that "he would be thankful for its return as he needs it in his business."

Spelling Bee Next—Stratton circle No. 40, P. H. C., held an important and interesting meeting last evening and initiated three candidates. It was decided to have a spelling bee at the next meeting, to be held on the evening of December 4, and W. E. Warren and George Wilhelm were selected to captain the contesting forces. Invitations will be extended to the East End, Chester, Calcutta and Wellsville circles.

A Native Filipino—H. Napoy, a native of the Phipippines, was in this city today. Mr. Napoy has seen a great part of the world, having traveled for the Mergenthaler Linotype company, setting up machines in almost every country where newspapers are published. He has just returned from South America. He said he thought South America was the best adapted for the human race, because the conditions of the country and climate, also the price of things, make it very cheap to live. Mr. Napoy was bound for Pittsburg.

CENTER OF FINANCE

SPLENDID NEW HOME OF THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

How Its Business Has Increased In Recent Years—Membership Worth a Fortune—The Head of the Institution.

Half a block away from Wall street, nearly completed, stands the majestic new home of the New York Stock Exchange, which from the magnitude of its financial operations and its mighty influence in business affairs is destined to become one of the notable buildings of the world.

The new Stock Exchange is an immense structure, a block in length, extending from Broad street, on which it fronts, to New street, and it is 138 feet in width. It has a height of five stories, with a cornice. The effect of magnitude is enhanced by the architectural design of the building, for across its front are six immense Corinthian columns, guarding, as it were, the grand portico and supporting a broad pediment. All the exterior construction of the building is of white Georgia marble, and the interior is of white South Dover marble.

Aside from the beauty and magnitude of the structure there are two other features of it which are of special interest. One of these is the "floor" where the trading will be done, and the other is the safety deposit vault, which is one of the finest in the world.

The trading floor is to be a vast room 140 feet long from the inner face of the columns, 110 feet wide and 80 feet high. Ample opportunity for spectators to observe the busy scene on the great floor below has been provided by two broad galleries, one at either end of the room.

The vault in the basement is completed and is already used by banking and brokerage houses for depositing securities. It is a long room, in the walls of which are hundreds of safety deposit boxes of a variety of shapes and sizes. In the center of the room is a long steel cabinet and in both sides of it more boxes and lockers. The outside wall of the vault is fourteen inches thick. The exterior is a steel coat. Next to it is a wall of fireproof material, and inside of that a thick burglar proof plate of steel. Between the outer wall and the wall in which are the safety deposit boxes is a narrow passage extending entirely around the vault. In the center of each end and each side of the passageway are watchmen's signals. At night two men guard the vault. They pace continually around it through the narrow passage. They are required to "ring up" at each one of these signal boxes every fifteen minutes. This keeps the watchmen active. A further safeguard is the time lock at the front of the vault. It contains the finest and most elaborate lock mechanism made.

Rudolph Keppler, who was elected president of the New York Stock Exchange last spring for the fifth consecutive term, has been an active and beneficial influence in that organization for more than a quarter of a century. He entered the board of governors in May, 1877, and has been identified more or less with the management of the exchange since that date. Although of German birth, Mr. Keppler has been a resident of this country since his youth, and his business career has been developed in Wall street.

Since he became the administrative head of the Stock Exchange there has been a wonderful growth in the business of the institution. New securities aggregating in value $2,000,000,000 have been added to the stock list during the past four years, and the volume of the speculative business in the exchange has steadily increased.

Mr. Keppler's administration is the only period in the history of the New York Stock Exchange in which daily sales of 2,000,000 shares of stock have been recorded.

With the increase of business the value of membership has advanced, until now it takes nearly $100,000 to gain admission to what has been described as the greatest financial mart in the world.

DON'T MAKE FARMES

Grangers Say Agricultural Colleges Teach Cigaret And Cocktail Habit Instead.

Lansing, Mich., November 21.—The farmers of the National Grange, in solemn session, declared that the agricultural class has had another gold brick handed to them in the shape of agricultural colleges. They claim that the institution is a delusion and, instead of training their sons to raise "two blades of grass where one grew before," it gives them the cigaret and cocktail habit and otherwise unfits them for the sterling duties of providing the world with provisions.

The agricultural colleges of every state in the union is included in the attack of the educational committee of the grange. The report recites that the farmers were instrumental in obtaining from the different states the appropriations for colleges, which would train the sturdy offspring of the soil to follow in their father's footsteps, at rather a faster clip than that taken by pioneers.

The recital includes the charge that few of the graduates of the agricultural colleges ever go back to the farms. They declare that the time has come for a vigorous reform and the installation of a system which will turn out real farmers from farmers' colleges, instead of taking the brawn of the country and transforming it into material for city life.

SCRAP THREATENED

Man Against Whom Alex Chafin Got Judgment Wants to Get Even.

"It's all right. I have paid the bill. But mind you, 'Squire McCarron, if I ever get that man over the state line I will get more than that much satisfaction out of him."

These were the parting words of A. J. Decker as he left the office of the justice last evening after paying a judgment for $28 sued for by Alex Chafin on a grocery bill.

Decker can neither read nor write and he claims that he has been outfigured. The 'squire had all of the evidence in hand and Decker failed to produce any witnesses, making the case a clear one for Chafin. The amount orginally sued for was $69. Decker got off with the payment of $28, that including the costs.

Constable Powell states that he will not be at all surprised if he hears of the plaintiff and defendant coming together. On the day that the officer served the notice of action on Decker the two men came very near getting to blows. Decker was in a wagon and Chafin in a buggy. Both arose from their seats and started at each other. They were stopped only by the interference of the constable.

STRUGGLED NEARLY ALL DAY.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—The Socialists came within 400 votes of securing the control of the convention of the American Federation of Labor yesterday. The struggle lasted almost the entire day and many able speeches were made on both sides, notably those of D. A. Hayes, James Duncan and President Gompers, against the Socialists, and Victor Berger, Max Hayes and W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, in behalf of the resolution introduced by Delegate Berger and amended by Delegate Wilson in a manner acceptable to Berger. The debate lasted until 6 o'clock in the evening, when a roll call showed 4,744 votes against the amendment of Mr. Wilson and 4,344 in favor of it. The miners voted solidly in favor of the amendment. No business was transacted in the convention during the day, other than that of the debate and the report of the committee which investigated the Gompers-Shaffer trouble.

President Gompers was completely exhonorated of the charges of infidelity to the principles of trades unionism, said to have been made by Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The special committee reported to that effect before the convention. The committee reported that when Mr. Shaffer appeared before it he declared that he had not at any time, either in writing or otherwise, made any charges against Mr. Gompers of infidelity to trades unionism, nor did he desire to before the committee.

For the time being, at least, all opposition to the election of President Gompers has died out. Since the refusal of James Lynch, of the Typographical union, to run for the office no further effort has been made to secure a candidate, nor is it likely at the present time that there will be a rival candidate.

PRESIDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Shook Hands at Knoxville, Tenn., With Sister of Lieutenant Colonel of His Regiment.

Asheville, N. C. Nov. 21.—The president's homeward journey yesterday was without special incident. The ride across the mountains over the Southern road was made in fast time. The train stopped only to change crews and engines. Its coming was generally unheralded, but there was a small crowd at almost every station. Several times the train was cheered as it swept by. At Chattanooga the president received a telegram from Newport, Tenn., saying that the school children would turn out to see him. By his direction the train was slowed down when that place was reached. About 200 little ones, with flags in their hands, were lined up along the track. The president stood on the rear platform and waved his hand and hat to them. At Stevenson, Ala., early yesterday, about 50 children gathered around his car and begged the porter to let them see the president. The president, who had just got up, heard their cries, and rather than disappoint the little ones he stepped to the door in his stocking feet and said: "Good morning," just as the train drew out. At Ooltewah junction, where the train stopped for water, a tall, raw-boned mountaineer engaged the president in conversation. The Tennesseean remarked that bears in Mississippi had proved too wild for the president. "Perhaps they were Democratic bears, and took to the woods upon my arrival," replied the president, smiling.

At Knoxville the president shook hands with a sister of the lieutenant colonel of his regiment. The president reached Washington at 8 o'clock this morning.

National Founders' Association.

Detroit, Nov. 21.—The convention of the National Founders' association was brought to a close yesterday afternoon by the election of officers and the adoption of a resolution in favor of a national agreement with the molders' union and requesting the members of the association not to make any further local agreements. At the close of the convention the administrative council held an executive session.

Scaffold Gave Way.

Port Washington, Wis., Nov. 21.—While working on the third story of the Ozaukee County Malting company's new malt house yesterday the scaffolding gave way and three men were dashed to the ground below. Two of the men will die of their injuries. It is thought the third will live. The cause of the accident is unknown.

OIL INSPECTION

Report of Barrels Examined And Fees Collected in This Part of the State.

Columbus, November 21.—(Special.) F. L. Baird, inspector of oils of the First district, which comprises the northern and extreme southeastern counties of the state, has filed his annual report with Governor Nash. Toledo is headquarters of the district. During the year ending October 31, 1902, there were 368,969 barrels of oil inspected on which fees were collected amounting to $16,596, which is about $2,000 in excess of the sum collected by State Inspector John R. Malloy, of the Second district, who submitted his annual report on Monday. Of the oil inspected in the First district 311,941 barrels were manufactured in Ohio, 56,725 in Pennsylvania and 303 in West Virginia. There are 12 deputy inspectors in the district, the deputies for eastern Ohio being W. J. Oby, Canton; John K. Lewis, Youngstown, and D. C. Ekerman, Akron.

The inspections in Columbiana county were as follows: East Liverpool, number of barrels inspected, 3,286; fees collected, $164.30. Salem, barrels, 2,543; fees, $127.40. Wellsville, barrels, 1,798; fees, $89.90. East Palestine, barrels, 974; fees, $48.70. Lisbon, barrels, 1,349; fees, $67.45. Salineville, barrels, 1,079; fees, $53.95. Leetonia, barrels, 2,005; fees, $76.90.

MEETING OF RIVER MEN

A meeting of the executive council of the Ohio Valley Improvement association was held yesterday at Cincinnati, for the purpose of making preparations to visit President Roosevelt and lay before him the resolutions adopted by last week's convention held at Parkersburg. It is the desire of the association to have the president make some reference to Ohio river improvements in his forthcoming message, and in view of his public utterances already made in that direction, rivermen do not anticipate any trouble in having the chief executive take cognizance of the worthiness of the improvement.

Robert L. Gregory, the newly elected member of the legislature from Sistersville, W. Va., will introduce a resolution at the next session of the legislature, which was prepared by James Francis Burke, of Pittsburg, demanding of congress the improvement of the Ohio and the sending of a committee to Washington to lay demands of the legislature before congress. The governors of the states bordering on the Ohio river will also be asked to join in similar requests.

WABASH SURVEY

To Reach East Liverpool Is Now Promised—Extension from Steubenville.

Word has just been received that the much-talked-of Wabash road will be surveyed to this city within the next few days.

The rights of way have already been taken from Cross creek, where the river will be bridged and where the company is already grading, to Toronto. That city is in fever heat with excitement over the prospects of the greatest industrial boom it has ever known.

It is now generally believed that the road will be extended from the terminal of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road at Market street, Steubenville, to this city.

The plans and specifications for the bridge to span the Ohio at Cross creek, Brooke county, have been delayed on account of not being in accordance with the law and to the satisfaction of the secretary of war, who has jurisdiction over the matter.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE

M. A. Norris, of Mahoning County, Announced As a Candidate for Next Year.

Youngstown, November 21.—The formal announcement was made yesterday that M. A. Norris, of this city, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for supreme judge at the next state convention.

This announcement has been expected since the convention last summer, when Mr. Norris was within call of the nomination and narrowly missed securing it. As before, Mr. Norris will be the candidate of Mahoning county and every effort will be put forward by the Mahoning county delegation to land him in the office.

His long experience at the bar and the work that he has done while practicing law is of such a nature as to make him one of the foremost men considered for the position.

REVIEW OF BASEBALL

John T. Brush on the Past Season

CONTRAST OF NATIONAL AND JOHNSON CLUBS

NOW that the pennant races have been won, it is interesting to glance back over the year's work in the baseball world to take note of the season's developments.

John T. Brush, the real head of the National league, in a recent interview is credited with the positive statement that the National league has enjoyed a more prosperous season this year than the American, and the former Cincinnati magnate is quoted with details to prove his statement.

of course, the average "fan" who has watched attendance and other figures closely wonders what the magnates have been and are going to do with all their money. No wonder there is a scarcity of the long green in the banks and expedients were considered with reference to obtaining enough to move the crops.

The American league has made money in all but two of its eight cities, and of these Detroit claims to have broken even in spite of the big slump in the playing of the Tigers. It is a pleasure to learn that the National league has surpassed this record, for it means that the game has prospered this year as it has not for many a season past, according to the magnates themselves. It is of course a problem which will puzzle the layman to understand how the old league has beaten out its younger rival in profits, with the latter outdrawing it in all four of the cities where there are conflicting teams and with a tail ender in New York, where a winning team would have been a veritable gold mine. But these problems may be left to Brush's brain to explain. It may be that the National league's salary roll has been so much smaller than the American's that its clubs have been able to make big money out of small receipts. It may possibly be that Brush has multiplied figures where he should have merely added them, and so caused the figures to prevaricate.

The Salary Question.

The records will show, according to other magnates, that the National league has been paying salaries this year to young players quite as high as it used to pay its stars of former years and has been compelled to raise the salaries of what star players it kept out of the ranks of the enemy. If the National league has made more money than Ban Johnson's league this year, the question then arises, What must Brush and his allies have made out of baseball in earlier years, when there was only one big league, paying its players salaries which a Three Eye league player would scorn nowadays and enjoying the undivided patronage of all the larger cities?

Little wonder the National league magnates claim an immense reserve fund and resources enough to exterminate the American league with ease. They ought by this time to have accumulated enough to almost pay off the debt incurred by cutting the league circuit from twelve to eight cities.

Just how the National leaguers will justify a return to the former scale of salaries after they have exterminated the American league is another interesting problem. If they are making so much money now, it would be a crime worse than the famous "crime of '92," when all the players were released in midseason and signed over again at salaries from 30 to 60 per cent lower to save the magnates from sure bankruptcy—so they then claimed.

There is one thing that puzzles the outsider in this war of extermination more than anything else. All summer long the National league has had agents out at big expense offering huge salaries and bonuses to American league players to sign National league contracts. The natural question is, "What's the use?" If the National league's declarations are true that the young league is on its last legs and toppling on the verge of bankruptcy, why all this generosity toward the players whom the National can have for the asking as soon as the American league dies the speedy and natural death so freely predicted by Brush and others?

The American Association.

The season just closed has been a successful one for the American Baseball association despite the prediction that as an "outlaw" organization it would be a failure.

Every team in the association is at least even with the game, and two or three have piled up a satisfactory surplus. The quality of ball played has been of a high standard for the most part.

The Louisville and Indianapolis teams have been the chief money makers, for since the middle of the season they have about evenly divided the honor of heading the percentage table. During the final series between these two teams in Indianapolis the attendance was 25,000.

Manager Tebeau of Louisville says his club has made $10,000, but it is generally believed that $20,000 would come nearer being the true figure.

The Indianapolis club is also a winner, but not to any such extent as Louisville. Manager Watkins admits he is a slight winner. Up to the middle of the season, when Indianapolis reached first place, the team was a loser.

The Columbus Slump.

Columbus, O., started out with a good team, but the discipline became lax, due to the interference of the owners with Manager Grim. The slump occurred in the middle of the season, and up to that time the team had drawn well. Milwaukee may not have broken even owing to the competition by the Western league. Kansas City receipts were also cut by competition.

Louisville's success has been due largely to its hard hitters, while Indianapolis depends on its fielding and pitchers. The Indianapolis team work has been superior.

Kansas City had the next to the highest priced team, but has been a disappointment.

Milwaukee's players also failed to deliver the goods, such men as Dungan and Algy McBride falling to hit. Outfielder Holman was the best man on the team and is said to be billed for the big league.

Kellum was the best pitcher on Indianapolis' staff, his strong point being his absolute control. The veteran Killen was next in point of effectiveness. Captain Fox at second for Indianapolis was the most marvelous fielder in the association.

Louisville has in First Base Man Ganzel and Kerwin, a general utility man, sure winners. Report says Pitcher Flaherty will be with Cincinnati next year.

Kansas City's salvation was in Pitchers Gibson and Wolfe and Catcher Beville, who has signed with New BAN JOHNSON.

York. Grady, first base man, said to be the highest priced man in the association, did good work.

Ferguson, who was with the Chicago Nationals awhile last season, pitched good ball for St. Paul.

In the Toledo team Catcher Kleinow, First Base Man Turner and Pitcher Mock are worth a trial in faster company.

The Cyclers

Floyd McFarland will not follow motors again. The Californian says that the shoulder which he fractured has been giving him a great deal of trouble of late, and he does not care to take the risk.

Major Taylor is waiting for an offer from France to be made. He has been asked to ride there again, but has asked for a proposition which will give him a guaranteed amount.

THE ESQUIMO

The Esquimo eats blubber. The lumbermen eat pork. These people are constantly exposed to cold and physical strain. Experience has taught them that fatty foods give warmth and nourishment.

For those who have cold and thin bodies, or are threatened with consumption or any wasting disease, there is no fat in so digestible and palatable a form as Scott's Emulsion. Physicians prescribe it.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

The Quiet Way In Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin:

My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts. I shall need Mlle. Georges, Mme. Dorval, Bocage, Lockroy, Provost and five new scenes.

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till better days.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shyly draw a manuscript out of his pocket. He would agree to everything. The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musingly, "Dieu, how fine Frederick would be in that part!" "That is true," Horel would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the equipose of the cast and Raucourt, Laferriere and Mlle. Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the stage setting. Old scenes, that the public had tired of, were almost an insult to these great artists. If Horel showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the game would go on, till, little by little, Hugo had obtained everything he wanted, even to changing the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Jim O'Brien's Epitaph.

"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epitaph line than all the rest of the world," remarked a Colorado ex-congressman.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It seems that in the course of a barroom broil one Jim O'Brien, a well known character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's associates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large letters:

"Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m.

"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:

"Heaven, 4:20 p. m.—O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. The worst is feared."

Weeping at a Wedding.

A Chinese marriage is all ceremony—no talk, no levity and much crying. The solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care in a red gown, brocade or silk, if she can get it; her eyelashes are painted a deep black, and she wears a heavy red veil attached to a scarlet headdress, from which imitation pearls are pendent over the forehead. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the blushing bride is led by five of her best female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. The utmost silence prevails, when, finally, the mother leads off in a cry, the maids follow and the bride echoes in the chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters, with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits, and, preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away to his own home. The guests then throw rice at the happy couple, a custom we have borrowed from the heathen.

Army Versus Navy

By FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

Uncle Sam's army and navy are laying plans for the complete annihilation of each other, to wipe each other off the map. No; this is not a story of a terrible complication at Washington or of a deadly feud between Secretary Root and Secretary Moody. The facts in the case are that the army and navy football teams clash on Franklin field, Philadelphia, Nov. 29 in their annual contest, and every officer in either branch of the service that can spare the time will journey to the Quaker City's splendid gridiron to "root" for the team of his choice. And the ladies will be there, too, in goodly numbers and gala dress, for the cadets from West Point and the Annapolis middies are long on popularity as well as ability.

Captain Boyers of West Point is confident of repeating the victory of last year over the navy. The ex-captain and quarterback of Harvard, Charlie Daly, the best man in his position in the country, has been reserved especially for the coming match, and there is every reason to believe that he will duplicate his brilliant work of a year ago, when he secured for West Point the victory over their old time rivals. Daly's work it was that called forth unstinted applause from President Roosevelt, who was on the side lines.

The middies have an able team this year, but I doubt if they will score on West Point. The soldiers are even stronger now than when they played Yale to a standstill (6-6) early in the season.

Probably the best individual all around work on the gridiron this season has been done by John A. De Witt of Princeton university. De Witt at tackle has proved an anchor to the whole tiger line, and his phenomenal goal kicking ability places him easily in the lead among men in his position. He is sure of a place on the official All America's team of 1902. De Witt is also a splendid ground gainer, and a large part of the distance covered on center plays during the year by the

DE WITT KICKING A GOAL FROM THE FIELD.

Jerseymen was the result of the champion hammer thrower's line hitting power.

De Witt's performances in the Cornell and Yale games will never be forgotten by Princeton admirers, and, although he is somewhat inclined to "show off" on some occasions, he is nevertheless deservedly popular and merits the praise of all followers of the orange and black.

Twenty years from now, when present Michigan undergraduates are honored alumni, they will shake their heads and say to the football candidates of those days: "Yes, youngsters, but you should have seen that great game of 1902, when the best team that ever wore the maize and blue beat Wisconsin on Marshall field by a score of 6 to 0. They don't have teams like those now."

Michigan showed the most powerful and concerted attack ever seen in western football. Few of the immense crowd which saw Michigan sweep aside the Wisconsin forwards in the first ten minutes of play for a steady march to a touchdown nearly eighty yards away knew that they were witnessing the acme of modern attack. But the football critics and galaxy of western coaches, drawn from far and wide to see the battle of gridiron giants, marveled at the perfection of unified effort which Yost had taught and his pupils so ably carried out.

It was better offense than the Michigan team of 1901, which registered 550 points without being scored on, showed in its best games of last year.

JUST what the forests of the world stand for, what they signify in the general economy of the lands of earth, has long been a disputed problem. Of course we all know something of the economic value of forest products—we can all at least use wood as fuel—but that the forest plays also its part in the great economies, in the equilibrium of nature's delicate adjustments, we less appreciate. Indeed it is very hard for even the wisest to understand what the equilibrium of nature is. We know not exactly how it has been brought about and too often discover its existence only by the catastrophe which follows close upon some ill advised bit of interference. Nevertheless the problem of the forest is an earth problem second in importance to none other with which as intelligent men we have to deal, more difficult indeed than most because at once physiological and physical. Forests constitute great physical masses on the surface of the earth, and at the same time they are made up of living plants which as such affect the elements about them. There are those who contend that the very climate of the earth is modified by the presence of trees exhaling moisture, conditioning atmospheric heat, the distribution of electric currents, the chemical constitution of the air and soil, but our information in these particulars is less trustworthy, and we shall perhaps for the present keep within the limits of actual knowledge if we assert that trees associated in a forest affect more or less profoundly local conditions of climate and atmospheric change, whatever may be true of their wider and more farreaching influence.

The climate of the locality occupied by the forest or immediately contiguous to it is affected by the organic activity of the trees, but we do not know how or how much. The climatic effect of the forest as a purely physical object, a physical covering of the earth's surface, we can better estimate and understand. For instance, climate is largely a matter of temperature and moisture. Now, the presence of trees certainly greatly retards air currents, but air currents are the usual efficient agents of evaporation and falling temperature. It might seem incredible that forests of trees a hundred feet high or more should avail to check the movements of the great ocean of atmosphere above our heads, but we all know that it is a fact. Men and beasts are wont to take shelter behind a grove. In fact, in the deep woods the air may be perfectly quiet, there may be a great calm, while the storm wind roars and rides high above the treetops. In such case the atmosphere is of heat an almost perfect nonconductor. Caught amid the trunks and branches of the forest, it is comparable to the air entangled in the meshes of a coat of fur, almost impervious to heat or cold. This is the explanation of the western windbreak. A simple grove of trees makes the prairie habitable. Even the willow and the cottonwood and the despised box elder may bid defiance to the blizzard. On a wider scale groves and forests of greater extent may affect in different ways their immediate surroundings. There are scores of instances where the felling of the forest has changed entirely the climatic conditions of the locality, sometimes to such an extent as to modify the whole industry of the region. Such are the stories of the orange orchards and olive yards of southern France and northern Italy, where the path of the mistral seems to vary as the forests wax and wane. Many years ago Mr. Lapham published a paper on the "Transactions of the Wisconsin Agricultural Society," in which he showed that the wholesale destruction of the forests of Wisconsin had already modified the climate of many localities in so far as concerned the raising of fruit.

But, whatever may be the effect of the presence of woodland in matters of heat and cold, it is in relation to the second climatic factor, to moisture, that the forest is most positive and farreaching in influence and efficiency. Forests are great conservators of moisture—this, too, in a purely mechanical way. In summer they greatly retard evaporation, first, by checking the air currents, as we have seen, which would otherwise carry the moisture away, and, second, by their shadows shutting out the solar heat, which would otherwise speedily dry up, dissipate, any moisture that might have fallen. Trees, it is true, in the process of transpiration take from the soil and give off to the surrounding air an immense amount of water, though probably nothing like so much as has been supposed. Nevertheless in a forest the loss of water due to the life processes of the trees does not compare with the results of evaporation in the unprotected open. Every one must have noticed that woodland roads are muddy, very muddy, long after the highway that passes the open field has become perfectly dry. Indeed, road supervisors often make this an excuse for felling shade trees planted by generous landowners along the public way. Trees are cut down to make the road dry. So much for what happens in summer. In winter the same conditions are efficient to retain precipitation in the form of snow. The snow of the woodland is permitted neither to blow away nor to evaporate. The extent to which a coniferous forest, with its dense, persistent foliage, retains the snow is something phenomenal. The snows in the Minnesota pineries used to accumulate all winter and lie unthawed in June; the snows in the Sierras are sometimes fifteen feet in thickness, though perhaps slowly thawing all the time.

But there is still another way in which trees affect the retention of local moisture, and that is by the physical obstacles they oppose to surface drainage. The bodies of the trees, the fallen twigs and foliage with which they strew the ground, and myriad roots and rootlets with which they crowd the soil, all these things hinder the escape of water by process of ordinary drainage, hold it back and suffer a very slow departure, if it escapes at all. The forest sits on the hillside as a giant sponge. The rains and showers keep it forever saturated. It yields to the atmosphere moving about it some of its moisture, to be sure, but the greater part, led by gravitation, escapes at length slowly at the bottom of the hill.

The effect of all this upon the steadfast flow of springs and streams and even rivers has long ago been pointed out. The surplus water of the mountain side filters through roots and rocks and beds of sand or gravel, finally reaches an impervious layer and approaches the surface, there to become an unfailing source of spring or rivulet. The snows of winter linger long in the shadows of the trees, thawing slowly, yielding scarcely anything to drainage on the surface.

It is evident from the present argument that forests tend by their very nature to keep uniform the water supply in the region they affect. It is not always the amount of water a land receives that determines its fertility. It is rather the amount retained and used. So that even if we concede, as some people would have us do, that forests have little to do with the amount of rainfall in any case it is yet evident that a land with its proportion of woodland is likely to be more moist than one without. The moisture it receives is longer retained. The state of Iowa, for instance, enjoys perchance as much precipitation as it ever enjoyed. Nevertheless the state as a whole is much drier than it was thirty or forty years ago simply because ill advised agriculture is rapidly removing from all the streams their forest cover, is draining every lake and pond. The prairie slopes, trodden hard by the hoofs of ten thousand herds, shed rainwater like slated roofs, and much of the rainfall the state receives today is hurried as rapidly as possible to the sea.

But there is another particular in which the presence or absence of forest may profoundly affect the welfare of civilized men. This also is a matter of the purely mechanical or physical sort. Forests not only hold the air, the water, but they likewise hold the soil on which they stand. Where this is loose, sandy, gravelly or rocky the removal of the trees exposes it to an erosion which, as far as all human purposes are concerned, is often simply destruction. The best illustrations of this are seen in the older countries of the world. Thus in Asia Minor, in southern Europe, lands once the happy homes of millions are now desert; the hills are naked rocks, the uncovered framework of the world; the valleys are drifting sands. But Americans need by no means visit the old world to find ruin of this sort. In almost any of our older states the same thing can everywhere be seen. In northern Mississippi thousands of acres of land have been abandoned of the farmer, sold for taxes to the state, because ruined by erosion. Every river valley in the west shows the same disastrous condition in greater or less degree. In eastern Iowa, where the woods have been cleared from steep clay hills, these now exhibit great ravines and gullies, down which with every storm torrents of water carry loads of sand and gravel, at least of inferior soil, to cover the richer fields and meadows spread below.

When a country loses its forest cover, especially from collecting basins, from hills, ridges and mountain sides, the loss is therefore at least threefold—it loses its timber supply; it loses its water supply, at least in regularity; it loses large portions of its tillable soil, swept away or buried by the force of uncontrollable torrents.

The bearing of all this is plain. Especially is it interesting in view of our present effort to reclaim our western arid lands, to utilize the scant supplies of water that reach our interior mountain ridges. Artificial dams encounter their greatest hazard in the flood. Nothing known to man so holds back a deluge as does a forest. It is thought the Johnstown calamity might have been averted by more regard to doctrines such as these, and the effort is now making by planting trees to prevent the recurrence of the disaster. The fact is the forests are actually part and parcel in nature's equilibrium after all. They are, as we saw in a preceding chapter, the result of geologic changes long gone by.

Making and Curing Dimples.

A pretty, lifelike dimple can be made to appear on a lady's cheek by means of a specially designed knife with a very small and very sharp blade, a daintily tiny, keen edged, silvered scoop and a very fine needle.

A small, straight incision is first made in the flesh. The little scoop is then used to remove a small portion of the underlying fat, while the sewing together with the needle the edges of the cut completes the operation. In a day or two the stitches are taken out, within a week the wound being usually entirely healed, leaving the becoming little depression in the surface of the skin that is called a dimple.

It is not often that a woman desires the removal of a natural dimple, but occasionally a man who considers the mark to be a badge of effeminacy desires to get rid of it. Instead of removing the superfluous fat from beneath the surface a small portion of the skin is cut away. The edges of the dimple are drawn together with stitches, the incision heals and the depression disappears.

Fighting Lizards.

The ring necked lizard of the Arizona deserts is not a mere devourer of weaklings. He is always ready to fight, whether he is challenged by another or cornered by a man. When brought to bay in some hole, he opens his jaws and dashes bravely out, snapping at everything which opposes him, and so fierce and sudden is his rush that it is impossible to face it without flinching. By holding two of these lizards loosely by the small of the back and allowing their heads to clash as they struggle to escape, one may be able to induce combats such as must occur every day in the desperate lizard world.

Forgetting that they were captives, they would seize upon each other and vent their thwarted rage to the utmost in a fight which, but for timely interference, would doubtless lead to the death of one or the other. Such bull dog pugnacity is rather unlooked for in lizards, but a student of character could easily read in the set jaw and pouched throat of this species the signs of fighting blood.—Country Life In America.

Billiard Terms.

"What are the principal shots in billiards?" asked the fair young damsel of the wise young man. "The kiss, the follow, the bank and the draw," he replied. "How lovely!" she exclaimed. "It is almost like a courtship. First the lover gets a kiss, then he follows the girl all about and then"—

"And then," interrupts the man who aspires to pessimism—"and then they get married and he goes to the bank and draws, for that is his cue, unless he wises to be frozen." (For the benefit of the unsuspecting reader, adds the Baltimore American, we will state that "cue" and "frozen" also are billiard terms. There are still more than might be worked into the little jeu d'esprit, such as "scratch," "break," "drive," "tip," "table," "run," etc., but lack of space prevents carrying the theme to the bitter end.)

AND MANY OTHERS

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

MOB LYNCHES NEGRO

James Dillard, Criminal Assail- of Two White Women, Is Hanged by Farmers.

Governor Had Ordered Out Militia to Protect the Rapist but His Instructions Were Received Too Late. Crowd Quietly Dispersed.

Sullivan, Ind., Nov. 21.—James Dillard, the Kentucky negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Mary Davis, of Sullivan county, and Mrs. John Lemon, of Knox county, on Tuesday last, was hanged to a telegraph pole one mile east of John Lemon's farm, at 8 o'clock last night by a mob.

Dillard was captured at Lawrenceville, Ills., late Wednesday, after a battle with the town marshal, during which the negro was shot three times and severely wounded. He was then taken to Robinson, Ills., for safe keeping. Late yesterday afternoon the negro was brought to Sullivan in a wagon by the sheriff and his deputies for further identification. A mob of 40 or 50 farmers, heavily armed, took the prisoner from the officers. The negro was taken to the homes of both his victims and by them was identified. From the home of Mrs. Lemon, 10 miles east of here, the crowd started back to Sullivan with the prisoner, but one mile east of the Lemon farm a rope was thrown over the arm of a telegraph pole and the negro was hanged.

The governor had ordered out the Vincennes militia company to protect the negro, but his instructions were received too late.

After hanging the negro the mob quietly dispersed. It was composed mostly of farmers, but was largely augmented by citizens of Sullivan, Oaktown and other towns of this county.

SPECIAL POLICEMAN KILLED.

Surprised a Gang Looting Freight Cars and Was Shot.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Charles F. Dillon, a special policeman employed by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, was shot and instantly killed early yesterday in the yards of the railroad company while endeavoring to prevent the looting of a freight car by a gang of thieves. C. H. Yoran, a switchman, employed by the same company, was arrested shortly after the shooting and in his possession were found a number of broken seals.

After the capture of Yoran, Captain Kelly secured evidence which, he says, brought to light the fact that a conspiracy has existed among employes of the railroad company to rob the cars. Soon after the arrest of Yoran detectives also arrested Charles Watts, engineer, and William Melville, fireman. They were locked up. Watts is a brother of the assistant yardmaster. According to the police, Watts told them that for a long time several railroad employes had been engaged in a conspiracy to rob the company. He mentioned himself, Melville and Yoran.

Smallpox Increasing.

Harrisburg, Nov. 21.—The state board of health held its fifty-third regular meeting yesterday in the senate chamber. The annual report of Dr. Benjamin Lee of Philadelphia, secretary of the board, showed that there were 87 points in the state where smallpox exists and that the increase in the number of cases since Aug. 1 has been over 50 per cent monthly. Most of the cases are in the western and southern counties of Pennsylvania. Dr. Lee also reported that diphtheria exists in six localities in the state; scarlet fever in three and typhoid fever in three.

Freight Congestion Felt at Shamokin.

Shamokin, Pa., Nov. 21.—The effect of the freight congestion which the Pennsylvania railroad is experiencing on account of a shortage of locomotives and cars was first felt here yesterday, when a number of collieries were shut down because of a lack of cars. Several train crews were suspended and some locomotives were shipped to the west.

A Bachelor's Cost of Living.

If the average bachelor, with a millionaire's income, not the fellow who goes in for extravagant fads, but the man who maintains good social position and who entertains liberally, were to balance up his personal account for the year, it might contain these charges without comparative extravagance:

House or apartment and service	$10,000
Valet	500
Clubs	1,000
Restaurant and entertaining	12,000
Clothing	3,000
Automobiles	5,000
Chartered yacht	10,000
Cards	5,000
Bad loans	3,000
Horses, coach, grooms, etc.	10,000
Total	$59,500

These are the more or less fixed items of expense, and any one who has ever attempted to keep a personal account knows that when you have put down the necessary expenses you may add almost as much for the thousand and one things that may be grouped conveniently under the head of "incidental expenses." In a general way it may be said that the millionaire bachelor who spends from $75,000 to $100,000 a year is living his life in accordance with the demands of the time on men of wealth.—Ainslee's.

A Catch Bet.

Turn round, and, with your back to the table, ask somebody to throw the dice. Then tell the person who threw them to double the number of the spots on the die on the left, and keep the number to himself. Tell him to add five, then multiply by five. To this figure have him add the number of spots on the die in the middle and multiply the product by ten.

Then ask him to multiply the number of spots on the third die and give you the aggregate sum. From the amount subtract mentally 250, and the remainder will show in the three figures the number of spots on each of the three dice. For instance, take three dice. Their numbers are three, five and two. Double the one on the left—five plus five equals ten. Add five, equals fifteen. Multiply by five, equals seventy-five. Add the number of spots on the die in the middle, three, equals seventy-eight. Multiply by ten, equals 780. Add number of spots on the third die, two, equals 782. Subtract 250 and 532 remains, which are numbers on the dice.

PHYSICIANS TESTIFY.

Principal Ills Miners' Asthma, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. One Man Coughed Up Coal Dust 15 Years After Leaving Mines.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The economic and socialogical features of the anthracite coal industry and the effect employment in and about the mines has upon the health of the mine workers were the principal things brought before the arbitration commission yesterday by the attorneys of each side of the controversy. While there was an entire absence of oratory or brilliant cross-examination, which marked the proceedings during the last few days, the cross-examination nevertheless closely held the attention of the commissioners and they gained much information on the several features touched upon by witnesses.

The afternoon session was particularly interesting, because it brought out much expert testimony on the part of the health of the mine workers. The physicians who have practiced in Scranton and Wilkesbarre took the stand for the miners and in substance testified that the occupation of a mine worker was very unhealthy and shortened his life. One physician, Dr. Frank P. Lenahan, of Wilkesbarre, who says he has had a long experience among mine workers, testified that 90 per cent of the men who worked in the mine are anaemic. The health is impoverished and their general condition is below par, thus decreasing their earning power. The principal ills suffered by the miners, the physicians said, were the miners' asthma, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. The miners' asthma comes from coal dust, powder smoke and vitiated air. Dr. John O'Malley, of Scranton, said that at postmortems he had seen miners' lungs as black as anthracite itself, and Dr. Lenahan testified he had personal knowledge of a man coughing up coal dust nine years after he left the mines. He said he had information that a man had coughed up coal dust 15 years after he had left the mines. It was also stated that 90 per cent of the miners who reach the age of 50 years are afflicted with some form of rheumatism.

The cross-examination of Rev. Peter Roberts, D. D., of Mahanoy City, Pa., who has studied the anthracite coal industry and written a book on the subject, left the witness stand shortly after the noon recess. He began his testimony Wednesday. Copious extracts from his book were read and placed on record. Ex-Congressman Simon P. Wolverton, counsel for the Reading company, read much of the matter pertaining to violence in the 1900 strike, and also read articles written by Mr. Roberts during the progress of the late contest, which he described in strong language the acts of violence, intimidation and boycotting committed during that suspension. His articles spoke of some of these acts as "brutal outrages," and he also branded the union's action in calling out the steam men in Juneas "foolhardy." In explaining his articles Dr. Roberts said that he did not wish to infer that the organization was responsible for all the lawlessness committed. The doctor said Wednesday that newspaper accounts exaggerated the amount of lawlessness in the coal regions, but Mr. Wolverton's reading of Dr. Robert's description of serious acts of violence and boycotting afforded much amusement for the attorney for the coal companies.

Dr. Roberts gave it as his opinion that attempts to have non-union men form a separate organization instigated by parties opposed to organized labor. In attempting to show that carelessness of the miner contributes materially to the dangerousness of his occupation. Chairman Gray interposed with the remak that a margin of carelessness incident to human nature must be taken into account when estimating the dangerousness of any hazardous occupation.

Mr. Wilcox consumed the greater part of the time of the afternoon session in reading extracts from the book of Dr. Roberts on the anthracite coal industry. Occasionally he asked a question, and, replying to one, Dr. Roberts said that an established minimum wage would necessarily enable a man to live as a man.

Answering a question by Commissioner Parker, Dr. Roberts said that of the 64 children employed in the Olyphant breaker near this city, 50 per cent were under 14 years of age, and had others dependent on them.

The health of miners was still under investigation when the commission adjourned until today.

The commissioners were in conference last night until almost midnight. Among the matters discussed was that of having both sides present evidence more rapidly than it is now being done.

A Score.

Twenty is called a score because it represents the whole man, ten fingers and ten toes. Etymologically it means a cut or mark. In very early times, when men could not count beyond twenty, or "one man," it was usual to cut a notch in a stick and begin again, and so it went on, one man, two men, and so on. This is why sheep are still counted by the score. Now, a tally (French taille, cut or nicked) means an account kept by means of a notched stick, and until the end of the eighteenth century such sticks were given as exchequer receipts, accompanied by a written document. This was also the usual way of keeping accounts in the inns of the middle ages. The number of drinks or meals a customer had were scored against him on what was called a tally stick, and when it reached twenty, or a "whole man," he was expected to pay. In some English country inns scores are still kept on a slate, four chalk marks and one across—five—and four of these make twenty, or a score.

Freaks of the Tariff.

The following amusing details of the freaks of the custom house are told in the Munchener Zeitung: A German gentleman returning from southwest Africa brought with him a tiny monkey weighing about two pounds. From Tanga to Genoa the animal was conveyed gratis. Thence to the Swiss frontier 15d. was charged on it as "a bird." The St. Gothard railway officials, however, viewed it as "a dog," and charged 7s., while on the Eastern Swiss railway it became a mere "package," liable to 8d. Through Baden and Wurttemberg the animal was passed free, but at Stuttgart it again became "a dog" and cost another 17d.

Lacked Heart.

"Once there was a lawyer out near Galesburg," said an Illinois congressman, "who made a brilliant defense in a certain case. Men praised his effort. 'Will he make his mark for ability as an advocate?' some one asked. 'No,' replied the veteran lawyer. 'His ability begins here at the Adam's apple and extends upward. He must have something under his left breast.'" The congressman cited this as an example why some speeches fail in the house of representatives.—Washington Post

A Modest Request.

To judge from an incident reported in the Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune, the department of agriculture sometimes appears from a distance like a big department store. During the season when members of congress send out seeds one of the packages found its way back to the sender, accompanied by a note from the farmer to whom it had been addressed.

"My dear sir," wrote the farmer, "I appreciate your good will in sending the seeds, but my eldest daughter, Matilda, is going to marry the doctor down to the village next month, and wife and I think of giving up the farm and going there to live. If we do, the seeds won't be much good, as we shan't have a garden; so if you could change them for some stockings (No. 9) and some handkerchiefs or a nice spring bonnet for Matilda I would be much obliged."

Minute Parts of a Watch.
